THE REYNOLDS

Mower & Reaper KNIVES,

MANUFACTURED EXCLUSIVELY BY US, UNDER REYNOLDS' PATENTS for Tempering Steel without the aid of any liquids, received the only award at the Great National Implement Trial, held at Auburn, in 1866. They possess the following superior qualities:

1. They are made with a fine Cutlery Temper at the edges.
2. They hold only a Spring Temper at the center and at the heel.
3. They are warranted perfectly uniform, every knife being exactly alike in temper.
4. We warrant they can be ground from 8 to 10 times without losing their cutting edge.
5. Finally, we will warrant them to cut from 40 to 50 acres of grain or grass without being once ground.

We are the sole Manufacturers of these Knives in the United States.

INTRODUCTION.

In presenting to the public the initial number of the "Gazetteer and Directory of Albany and Schenectady Counties," the publisher desires to return his sincere thanks to all who have so kindly assisted in obtaining the valuable information which it contains, and without whose aid it would have been impossible to collect it in the brief space of time in which it is essential that all such works should be completed. Especially are our thanks due to the several editors of the Argus, Evening Journal, and Express, Albany; the Union, Star, and Gazette, Schenectady; and the Cohoes Cataract; for the uniform kindness which has been evinced in calling public attention to the author's efforts; and to the following persons viz., H. A. Homes, Librarian, State Library; Ralph P. Lathrop, Assessor of Internal Revenue; H. Scripture, Deputy Superintendent of Penitentiary, Albany; Prof. J. Pearson, Union College; S. B. Howe, Supt. Public Schools, and Walter T. L. Sanders, County Judge, Schenectady; G. A. Lomas, Shakers, Albany; Robert Taylor, New Salem, and Hon. T. G. Younglove, Cohoes; for essential aid in furnishing material for the work. Many others have kindly volunteered their aid, to all of whom we return our sincere thanks.

The following works have been consulted in its preparation: French's "Gazetteer of the State of New York;" "Documentary History of New York;" Munsell's "Annals of Albany;" Dyer's "History of the Albany Penitentiary;" "State Census Reports of 1865;" "History of Cohoes," "Albany Directory," published by Sampson, Davenport & Co., and many other works.

BUCKEYE Mower and Self-Raking Reaper, the most Perfect Harvester in the World. Adriansz, Platt & Co., 165 Greenwich St., New York. See Card on Map.

That errors may have occurred in so great a number of names and dates as are here given, is probable, and that names have been omitted that should have been inserted is quite certain. We can only say that we have exercised more than ordinary diligence and care in this difficult and complicated feature of book-making. Of such as feel aggrieved in consequence of error or omission, we beg pardon, and ask the indulgence of the reader in marking such as had been observed in the subsequent reading of the proofs, and which are noted in the Errata, on pages 17, 18 and 19.

It is also suggested that our patrons observe and become familiar with the explanations at the commencement of the Directory.

Efforts were made to procure the new census statistics for Albany and Schenectady Counties, but it was found impossible to secure them without delaying the publication of the work.

The Map of the two Counties was engraved with great care by Messrs. "Weed, Parsons & Co.," of Albany, and, it is believed, will prove a valuable acquisition to the work.

The Advertisers represent some of the leading business men and firms of these and adjoining counties, also many enterprising and reliable dealers in other parts of the State. We most cheerfully commend them all to the patronage of those under whose observation these pages may come.

With thanks to friends generally, we leave our work to secure the favor which earnest endeavor ever wins from a discriminating business public.

HAMILTON CHILD.

ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

Stamp Duties.—The last Congress passed an act, "That on and after the first day of October, 1870, the stamp tax imposed in Schedule B, on promissory notes for a less sum than one hundred dollars, and on receipts for any sum of money, or for the payment of any debt, and the Stamp tax imposed in Schedule C, on canned and preserved fish, be, and the same are hereby repealed. And no stamp shall be required upon the transfer or assignment of a mortgage, where it or the instrument it secures has been once duly stamped."

Postal Rates and Regulations.—The postal arrangements ordinarily regulating the transmission of the mails between this country and France and Germany, have necessarily been rendered inoperative by the Franco-Prussian War, now in progress. Until the cessation of hostilities between those countries, when it is presumed the usual postal regulations will be resumed, the mail service to and from France and Germany will of necessity be irregular.

A free school has lately been opened in a separate building.

Trusses.—Professor Rainbow, 658 Broadway, New York, has invented a Truss, which bids fair to supersede all others in use. It operates entirely by muscular action, having no metallic spring or band. It contracts and relaxes instantly without any perceptible movement of the body. It has been proved effectual where the Metallic Spring and Hard Rubber Truss had failed, and judging from the testimony of many respectable citizens of New York, who have tried it, we infer that all other kinds will soon be thrown aside. The Professor imparts much valuable information to those who call on him, and he appears to understand thoroughly the subject upon which he treats. We advise all who are wearing the old style of Truss to send a stamped envelope with their address for a circular. His card appears on page 466.

Elliptic Lock Stitch Sewing Machine is advertised on page 86. The Sewing Machine has become an indispensable article of household furniture, and the only question with the ladies is, "what machine shall I buy?" This machine appears to possess some advantages over others and deserves an examination by those about to purchase. Simple in construction and not liable to get out of repair, easy of management and noiseless in action, are some of the qualities which recommend it. Those interested will receive all needed information by calling on S. V. Trull, General Agent, No. 10 Mansion House Block, Broadway, Troy, N. Y. Mr. Trull is also agent for the celebrated Florence Reversible Feed Sewing Machine.

The New Light.—That anything new in the line of Cooking Stoves should be invented, that is really worthy to take the place of the many that have hitherto been before the public, is indeed a wonder. We have not the space to give the full description of the many excellent qualities of the New Light Cooking Stove, but from an examination of its new features and from the recommendations of those who have tested it, we are satisfied that it is destined to become a general favorite. It is manufactured by Buwell, Durant & Co., Troy, N. Y., and is advertised on colored page 86.

Clapp & Wilder, Broadway, corner of Second Street, Troy, N. Y., keep a large and well selected stock of Gents' Furnishing Goods, a large part of which are of their own manufacture. "The Eureka Shirt" is made by this firm, and is one of the best fitting shirts to be found in the market. All of their goods are made from good stock and will give abundant satisfaction to all who purchase. They manufacture to order and warrant fits. Gentlemen will find it for their advantage to call before purchasing elsewhere. See card, page 103.

G. L. Stevenson, dealer in Watches, Jewelry, Silver and Plated Ware &c., No. 6 Green Street, Albany, N. Y., advertises on colored page 490. Mr. S. is a native of this County and commenced business in Albany five years ago with a capital of $75, and by integrity, industry and honorable dealing, has increased his business until it amounts to $35,000 annually. We take pleasure in calling the attention of the farmers and others of our patrons, to this establishment, where they will find anything desirable in this line and at prices to suit. If you want a good article and are not a judge of it yourself, call on Stevenson. He makes to order any kind of jewelry and repairs watches and jewelry in the best manner. His old friends in the country will be glad to hear of his prosperity, and he will be equally glad to receive a call from them. His stock of Watches of American and Foreign manufacture is fine, embracing all styles of cases to suit purchasers. We commend him to the patronage of the public generally.

Craft, Wilson & Co., dealers in Clothing, corner of Broadway and Maiden Lane, Albany, N. Y., keep one of the largest and best stocks of Clothing to be found in the City. Their goods are substantially and fashionably made, of good materials. Those who propose to treat themselves or their boys to new clothes will find everything in this line to satisfy their desire, by calling on Craft, Wilson & Co. Country dealers will find it for their advantage to examine their stock before purchasing. See advertisement, page 491.

THE STATES,

THEIR SETTLEMENT, ADMITTANCE TO THE UNION, POPULATION, SUFFRAGE LAWS, ETC.

ALABAMA was settled near Mobile, in 1702, by the French; was formed into a Territory by act of Congress, approved March 3, 1817, from the eastern portion of the Territory of Mississippi; framed a Constitution August 2, 1819, and was admitted into the Union December 14 of the same year. Area 50,722 square miles, or 32,462,080 acres.—Population in 1860, 964,201, of whom 435,080 were slaves. It is the chief cotton growing State of the Union. White male citizens who have resided one year in the State and three months in the county, are entitled to vote. An election for a Convention was held December 24, 1860, and a majority of over 50,000 votes cast for secession; the Convention met January 7, 1861, and on the 11th passed the ordinance of secession, by a vote of 61 to 39, which was followed on the 21st by the resignation of its members of Congress.

ARKANSAS was settled at Arkansas Post in 1685, by the French, and was part of the Louisiana purchase ceded by France to the United States, April 30, 1803. It was formed into a Territory by act of Congress, March 2, 1819, from the southern part of the Territory of Missouri; its western boundary was settled May 26, 1824, and its southern, May 19, 1828. Having adopted a Constitution, a memorial was presented in Congress, March 1, 1836, and an act for its admission into the Union passed June 15 of the same year. Area 52,198 square miles, or 33,406,720 acres. In 1860 its population was 435,450, of whom 111,115 were slaves. It is an agricultural State, its staples being corn and cotton.—Citizenship and residence in the State for six months, qualify voters in the county and district where they reside. January 18, 1861, its Legislature ordered a State Convention, which assembled, and on May 6, voted to secede, 69 to 1. January 4, 1864, a Convention assembled in Little Rock, which adopted a new Constitution, the principle feature of which consisted in a clause abolishing slavery. The Convention adjourned January 22. This body also inaugurated a Provisional Government. The Constitution was submitted to the people, and 12,177 votes cast for it, to 226 against it. The State was re-organized under the plan contained in the Amnesty Proclamation of President LINCOLN, in pursuance of which an election was held March 14, 1864. The vote required under the Proclamation was 5,405. About 16,000 votes were cast.

CALIFORNIA was settled at Diego in 1768, by Spaniards, and was part of the territory ceded to the United States by Mexico, by the treaty concluded at Guadaloupe Hidalgo, February 22, 1848. After several ineffectual attempts to organize it as a Territory or admit it as a State, a law was passed by Congress for the latter purpose, which was approved September 9, 1850. Area 188,981 square miles, or 120,947,784 acres. Population in 1860, 305,489. It is the most productive gold mining region on the continent, and also abounds in many other minerals.—White male citizens of the United States, and those of Mexico who may choose to comply with the provisions of the treaty of Queretaro, of May 30, 1848, who have resided in the State six months and in the county or district thirty days, are entitled to vote.

CONNECTICUT was settled at Windsor, in 1633, by English Puritans from Massachusetts, and continued under the jurisdiction of that Province until April 23, 1662, when a separate charter was granted, which continued in force until a Constitution was formed, September 15, 1818. It was one of the original thirteen States, and ratified the United States Constitution, January 9, 1788. Area 4,674 square miles, or 2,991,360 acres. Population in 1860, 460,147. It is one of the most densely populated and principal manufacturing States in the Union. Residence for six months, or military duty for a year, or payment of State tax, or a freehold of the yearly value of seven dollars, gives the right to vote.

DELAWARE was settled at Wilmington, early in 1638, by Swedes and Finns; was granted to William Penn, in 1682, and continued under the government of Pennsylvania until the adoption of a Constitution, September 20, 1776; a new one was formed June 12, 1792. It was one of the original thirteen States, and ratified the United States Constitution, December 7, 1787. Area 2,120 square miles, or 1,356,800 acres.—Population, in 1860, 112,216, of whom 1,798 were slaves. It is a grain and fruit growing State, with some extensive manufactories. Residence in the State one year, and ten days in the election district, with payment of a State or county tax assessed ten days prior to an election, gives the right to vote, except that citizens between twenty-one and twenty-two years of age need not have paid the tax.

FLORIDA was settled at St. Augustine, in 1565, by Spaniards; was formed from part of the territory ceded by Spain to the United States by treaty of February 22, 1819; an act to authorize the President to establish a temporary government was passed March 3, 1819; articles of surrender of East Florida were framed July 10, and of West Florida, July 17, 1821, and it was then taken possession of by General Jackson as Governor. An act for the establishment of a Territorial Government was passed March 30, 1822, and by act of March 3, 1823, East and West Florida were constituted one Territory. Acts to establish its boundary line between Georgia and Alabama were passed May 4, 1826, and March 2, 1831. After several ineffectual attempts to organize it into two Territories, or into a State and Territory, an act for its admission into the Union was passed March 3, 1845. Area 59,268 square miles, or 37,980,520 acres. Population, in 1860, 140,425, of whom 61,745 were slaves. It is an agricultural State, tropical in its climate and products. Every free white male citizen, who has resided in the State two years and in the county six months, and has been enrolled in the militia (unless exempt by law,) is qualified to vote; but no soldier, seaman or marine can vote unless qualified before enlistment. Its Legislature called a Convention, December 1, 1860, which met January 3, 1861, and passed a secession ordinance on the 10th by a vote of 62 to 7.

GEORGIA was settled at Savannah, in 1733, by the English under General Oglethorpe. It was chartered June 9, 1732; formed a Constitution February 5, 1777; a second in 1785 and a third May 30, 1798.—It was one of the original thirteen States, and ratified the United States Constitution January 2, 1788. Area 58,000 square miles, or 37,120,000 acres. Population, in 1860, 1,057,286, of whom 462,198 were slaves. It is a large cotton and rice growing State. Citizens of the State, six months resident of the county where voting, who have paid taxes the year preceding the election, are entitled to vote. November 18, 1860, its Legislature ordered an election for a State Convention, which assembled and passed a secession ordinance January 19, 1861, by a vote of 208 to 89, and on the 23d of the same month its members of Congress resigned.

ILLINOIS was settled at Kaskaskia, in 1683, by the French, and formed part of the northwestern territory ceded by Virginia to the United States. An act for dividing the Indiana Territory and organizing the Territory of Illinois, was passed by Congress, February 3, 1809; and an act to enable it to form a State Constitution, Government, &c., was passed April 18, 1818; a Constitution was framed August 26, and it was admitted into the Union December 23 of the same year. Area 54,405 square miles, or 64,819,200 acres. Population, in 1860, 1,711,951. It is the chief "prairie" State, and the largest grain growing and second largest cattle raising State in the Union. All white male inhabitants, who have resided in the State one year and election district sixty days, can vote in the district where actually residing.

INDIANA was settled at Vincennes, in 1690, by the French, and formed part of the northwestern territory ceded by Virginia to the United States. It was organized into a Territory May 7, 1800, from which the Territory of Michigan was set off in 1805, and Illinois in 1809. On the 26th of November, 1861, a Convention representing the western counties assembled in Wheeling and framed a Constitution for West Virginia, which was submitted to the people on the 3d of May, 1862, and adopted by them by a nearly unanimous vote. The division of the State was sanctioned by the Legislature May 13, 1862, and ratified by Congress by an act approved December 31, 1862, conditioned on the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution providing for the gradual abolition of slavery, which was done on the 24th of March, 1863, by a vote of the qualified electors of the proposed State, 28,318 voting in favor of the amendment, and 572 against it. In pursuance of the act of Congress, the President issued a Proclamation, April 20, 1863, admitting the State sixty days from the date thereof, and on the 20th of June the new State Government was formally inaugurated. Area 24,000 square miles. Population in 1860, 350,599, of whom 12,754 were slaves. It is a large corn producing State, and abounds in coal and other minerals. The Alexandria Legislature adopted the United States Constitutional Amendment February 9, 1865. White male citizens, residents of the State one year and county thirty days, unless disqualified by rebellion, are entitled to vote.

WISCONSIN was settled at Green Bay, in 1669, by the French; was a part of the territory ceded by Virginia, and was set off from Michigan December 24, 1834, and was organized into a Territory April 30, 1836. Iowa was set off from it June 12, 1838, and acts were passed at various times setting its boundaries. March 3, 1847, an act for its admission into the Union was passed, to take effect on the issuing of a Proclamation by the President, and by act of May 29, 1848, it was admitted into the Union. Area 53,924 square miles, or 34,511,360 acres. Population in 1860, 775,881. It is an agricultural State, chiefly engaged in grain raising and wool growing. Both white and colored citizens of the United States, or white foreigners who have declared their intention to become citizens, are entitled to vote. Colored citizens were admitted to the franchise, by a decision of the Supreme Court, rendered the 27th day of March, 1866, holding that, whereas an election was held in 1849, under the provisions of chapter 137, of that year, at which election 5,265 votes were cast in favor of the extension of the right of suffrage to colored men, and 4,075 against such extension, therefore, the section of said law conferring such right had been constitutionally adopted and is the law of the land.

THE TERRITORIES,

THEIR BOUNDARIES, AREA, PHYSICAL FEATURES, ETC.

ALASKA, our new territory, recently purchased of Russia, comprehends all the north-west coast on the Pacific, and the adjacent islands north of the parallel of 50 degrees 40 minutes north, and the portion of the mainland west of the meridian (about 140° west) of Mount St. Elias. The area is computed at 481,276 square miles. The climate, although warmer than in the same latitude on the eastern coast, is too rigorous to admit of successful agricultural operations, and the chief value of the country and adjacent seas is derived from their fisheries and hunting grounds. The southern and central portions are mountainous; the northern portion along the Arctic ocean is quite flat, nowhere rising more than fifteen or twenty feet above the sea. The population is estimated at about 80,000, mostly Esquimaux.

ARIZONA was organized by the Thirty-Seventh Congress, in the winter of 1863, out of the western half of New Mexico, the boundary between the two Territories being the 109th meridian (32d west from Washington,) and includes the greater portions of the valleys of Colorado and Gila, which two rivers drain its entire surface, with parts of Utah, New Mexico and Nevada, and yet convey, it is reported, a less volume of water to the sea than the Hudson at Albany. The fertile Messilla Valley was left with New Mexico. The Territory forms a block nearly square, and contains 126,141 square miles, or 80,730,240 acres. Its white population is probably considerably less than 10,000. For agricultural purposes it is probably the most worthless on the Continent, owing to the absence of rains, but it is reputed to abound in silver mines.

COLORADO was organized March 2, 1861, from parts of Kansas, Nebraska and Utah, and is situated on each side of the Rocky Mountains, between latitude 37° and 41°, and longitude 25° and 32° west from Washington. Area 104,500 square miles, or 66,880,000 acres. Population 50,000, besides numerous tribes of Indians. By an enabling act passed March 21, 1864, the people of the Territory were authorized to frame a State Constitution and organize a State Government, and a Convention accordingly met in 1865, and on the 12th of August adopted a Constitution, which was submitted to and adopted by the people September 5, and State officers elected November 14. A bill to admit the Territory as a State passed Congress, but was vetoed May 25, 1866. It is said to be a superior grazing and cattle producing region, with a healthy climate and rich soil. An extensive coal bed, and also gold, iron and other minerals abound.

DAKOTA was first settled by employees of the Hudson Bay Company, but is now being peopled by emigrants from the Northern and Western States. It was set off from the western portion of Minnesota when that Territory became a State in 1857, and was organized March 2, 1861. Area 148,932 square miles, or 95,316,480 acres. Population 2,576 whites, and 2,261 Indians, besides the roving tribes.

IDAHO was organized by the Thirty-Seventh Congress, at its second session, in the winter of 1863. Its name means 'Bead of the Mountains,' and it embraces the whole breadth of the Rocky Mountain region, and has within its bounds the head waters of nearly all the great rivers that flow down its either slope, but the greater portion lies east of the mountains. Its southern boundary is the 41st, its northern the 46th parallel of latitude. It extends from the 104th meridian on the east to the 110th on the west. Area 326,373 square miles, or 208,870,720 acres. For agricultural purposes it is comparatively worthless, but abounds in gold and other valuable mines.

MONTANA was settled by emigrants from the Northern and Western States. Organized in 1864, with the following boundaries: Commencing at a point formed by the intersection of the 27th L. W. from Washington with the 45th N. L.; thence due west on said 45th degree to a point formed by its intersection with the 34th degree W. from Washington; thence due south along said 34th degree of longitude to its intersection with the 44th degree and 30 minutes of N. L.; thence due west along said 44th degree and 30 minutes of N. L. to a point formed by its intersection with the crest of the Rocky Mountains; thence following the crest of the Rocky Mountains northward till its intersection with the Bitter Root Mountains; thence northward along the crest of said Bitter Root Mountains to its intersection with the 39th degree of longitude W. from Washington; thence along said 39th degree of longitude northward to the boundary line of the British possessions; thence eastward along said boundary to the 27th degree of longitude W. from Washington; thence southward along said 27th degree to the place of beginning. This makes it the northernmost Territory next the States east of the Missouri Valley. It is a good mining and agricultural region. The total population is put down at 15,822. Large accessions have been made since the census was taken.

NEW MEXICO was formed from a part of the territory ceded to the United States by Mexico, by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, February 2, 1848, and was organized into a Territory September 9, 1850.—Area 121,201 square miles, or 77,568,640 acres. Population 83,000, besides large tribes of warlike Indians. The principal resource of the country is its minerals.

UTAH was settled by the Mormons, and was formed from a part of the territory ceded to the United States by Mexico, by the treaty of Guadalupe Hidalgo, February 2, 1848, and was organized into a Territory, September 9, 1850. Area, 106,382 square miles, or 68,084,480 acres. Population, 40,273, of whom 29 were slaves. Brine, sulphureous and chalybeate springs abound; limestone, granite, sandstone and marble are found in large quantities; iron is abundant, and gold, silver, copper, lead and zinc have been found. Not one-fiftieth part of the soil is fit for tillage, but on that which is, abundant crops of grain and considerable cotton are raised. A Convention was held at Great Salt Lake City, January 22, 1862, and a State Constitution formed, but it has not been acted on by Congress.

WASHINGTON was settled by emigrants from the Northern and Western States, and was organized into a Territory, March 2, 1853, from the northern portion of Oregon, to which was added another portion from the eastern part when the latter Territory was admitted as a State, February 14, 1859. Area 69,994 square miles, or 48,636,800 acres. Population 11,168, besides numerous tribes of Indians.

WYOMING was organized in July 1868. It lies between the 27th and 34th meridians of longitude west from Washington, and between the 41st and 45th parallels of latitude. The Territory is rich in mineral wealth, having large quantities of iron, coal, gypsum and building stone, besides vast quantities of gold, silver and copper. Salt springs of great value are found within its limits. The western portion of the Territory embraces what is generally known as the "Sweet Water Mines." The climate is healthy, and the Territory is rapidly filling up with an enterprising and hardy population. The act of Congress organizing the Territory, provides that "There shall be no denial of the elective franchise or any other right, on account of color or race, and all persons shall be equal before the law."

the collection from the United States Government of claims by soldiers, or their legal representatives, for pensions, back pay, bounty, or for property lost in the service, exempt.

CANCELLATION.

In all cases where an adhesive stamp is used for denoting the stamp duty upon an instrument, the person using or affixing the same must write or imprint thereupon in ink the initials of his name, and the date (the year, month, and day) on which the same is attached or used. Each stamp should be separately cancelled. When stamps are printed upon checks, &c., so that in filling up the instrument, the face of the stamp is and must necessarily be written across, no other cancellation will be required.

All cancellation must be distinct and legible, and except in the case of proprietary stamps from private dies, no method of cancellation which differs from that above described can be recognized as legal and sufficient.

PENALTIES.

A penalty of fifty dollars is imposed upon every person who makes, signs, or issues, or who causes to be made, signed, or issued, any paper of any kind or description whatever, or who accepts, negotiates, or pays, or causes to be accepted, negotiated, or paid, any bill of exchange, draft, or order, or promissory note, for the payment of money, without the same being duly stamped, or having thereupon an adhesive stamp for denoting the tax chargeable thereon, cancelled in the manner required by law, with intent to evade the provisions of the revenue act.

A penalty of two hundred dollars is imposed upon every person who pays, negotiates, or offers in payment, or receives or takes in payment, any bill of exchange or order for the payment of any sum of money drawn or purporting to be drawn in a foreign country, but payable in the United States, until the proper stamp has been affixed thereto.

A penalty of fifty dollars is imposed upon every person who fraudulently makes use of an adhesive stamp to denote the duty required by the revenue act, without effectually cancelling and obliterating the same in the manner required by law.

Attention is particularly called to the following extract from section 155, of the act of June 30, 1864, as amended by the act of July 13, 1866:

"If any person shall wilfully remove or cause to be removed, alter or cause to be altered, the cancelling or defacing marks on any adhesive stamp, with intent to use the same, or to cause the use of the same, after it shall have been used once, or shall knowingly or wilfully sell or buy such washed or restored stamps, or offer the same for sale, or give or expose the same to any person for use, or knowingly use the same or prepare the same with intent for the further use thereof, or if any person shall knowingly and without lawful excuse (the proof whereof shall lie on the person accused) have in his possession any washed, restored, or altered stamps, which have been removed from any vellum, parchment, paper, instrument or writing; then, and in every such case, every person so offending, and every person knowingly and wilfully aiding, abetting, or assisting in committing any such offence as aforesaid, shall, on conviction thereof, * * * be punished by a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars, or by imprisonment and confinement to hard labor not exceeding five years, or both, at the discretion of the court."

It is not lawful to record any instrument, document, or paper required by law to be stamped, or any copy thereof, unless a stamp or stamps of the proper amount have been affixed and cancelled in the manner required by law; and such instrument or copy and the record thereof are utterly null and void, and cannot be used or admitted as evidence in any court until the defect has been cured as provided in section 158.

All wilful violations of the law should be reported to the United States District Attorney within and for the district where they are committed.

GENERAL REMARKS.

Revenue stamps may be used indiscriminately upon any of the matters or things enumerated in Schedule B, except proprietary and playing card stamps, for which a special use has been provided.

Postage stamps cannot be used in payment of the duty chargeable on instruments.

The law does not designate which of the parties to an instrument shall furnish the necessary stamp, nor does the Commissioner of Internal Revenue assume to determine that it shall be supplied by one party rather than by another; but if an instrument subject to stamp duty is issued without having the necessary stamps affixed thereto, it cannot be recorded, or admitted, or used in evidence, in any court, until a legal stamp or stamps, denoting the amount of tax, shall have been affixed as prescribed by law, and the person who thus issues it is liable to a penalty, if he omits the stamps with an intent to evade the provisions of the internal revenue act.

The first act imposing a stamp tax upon certain specified instruments took effect, so far as said tax is concerned, October 1, 1862. The impression which seems to prevail to some extent, that no stamps are required upon any instruments issued in the States lately in insurrection, prior to the surrender, or prior to the establishment of collection districts there, is erroneous.

Instruments issued in those States since October 1, 1862, are subject to the same taxes as similar ones issued at the same time in the other States.

No stamp is necessary upon an instrument executed prior to October 1, 1862, to make it admissible in evidence, or to entitle it to record.

Certificates of loan in which there shall appear any written or printed evidence of an amount of money to be paid on demand, or at a time designated, are subject to stamp duty as "promissory notes."

When two or more persons join in the execution of an instrument, the stamp to which the instrument is liable under the law, may be affixed and cancelled by either of them; and "when more than one signature is affixed to the same paper, one or more stamps may be affixed thereto, representing the whole amount of the stamp required for such signatures."

No stamp is required on any warrant of attorney accompanying a bond or note, when such bond or note has affixed thereto the stamp or stamps denoting the duty required; and, whenever any bond or note is secured by mortgage, but one stamp duty is required on such papers—such stamp duty being the highest rate required for such instruments, or either of them. In such case a note or memorandum of the value or denomination of the stamp affixed should be made upon the margin or in the acknowledgement of the instrument which is not stamped.

Particular attention is called to the change in section 154, by striking out the words "or used;" the exemption thereunder is thus restricted to documents, &c., issued by the officers therein named. Also to the changes in sections 152 and 158, by inserting the words "and cancelled in the manner required by law."

The acceptor or acceptors of any bill of exchange, or order for the payment of any sum of money, drawn or purporting to be drawn in any foreign country, but payable in the United States, must, before paying or accepting the same, place thereupon a stamp indicating the duty.

It is only upon conveyances of realty sold that conveyance stamps are necessary. A deed of real estate made without valuable consideration need not be stamped as a conveyance; but if it contains covenants, such, for instance, as a covenant to warrant and defend the title, it should be stamped as an agreement or contract.

When a deed purporting to be a conveyance of realty sold, and stamped accordingly, is inoperative, a deed of confirmation, made simply to cure the defect, requires no stamp. In such case, the second deed should contain a recital of the facts, and should show the reasons for its execution.

Partition deeds between tenants in common, need not be stamped as conveyances, inasmuch as there is no sale of realty, but merely a marking out, or a defining, of the boundaries of the part belonging to each; but where money or other valuable consideration is paid by one co-tenant to another for equality of partition, there is a sale to the extent of such consideration, and the conveyance, by the party receiving it, should be stamped accordingly.

A conveyance of lands sold for unpaid taxes, issued since August 1, 1866, by the officers of any county, town, or other mu-municipal corporation in the discharge of their strictly official duties, is exempt from stamp tax.

A conveyance of realty sold, subject to a mortgage, should be stamped according to the consideration, or the value of the property unencumbered. The consideration in such case is to be found by adding the amount paid for the equity of redemption to the mortgage debt. The fact that one part of the consideration is paid to the mortgagor and the other part to the mortgagee does not change the liability of the conveyance.

The stamp tax upon a mortgage is based upon the amount it is given to secure. The fact that the value of the property mortgaged is less than that amount, and that consequently the security is only partial, does not change the liability of the instrument. When, therefore, a second mortgage is given to secure the payment of a sum of money partially secured by a prior mortgage upon other property, or when two mortgages upon separate property are given at the same time to secure the payment of the same sum, each should be stamped as though it were the only one.

A mortgage given to secure a surety from loss, or given for any purpose whatever, other than as security for the payment of a definite and certain sum of money, is taxable only as an agreement or contract.

The stamp duty upon a lease, agreement, memorandum, or contract for the hire, use, or rent of any land, tenement, or portion thereof, is based upon the annual rent or rental value of the property leased; and the duty is the same whether the lease be for one year, for a term of years, or for the fractional part of a year only.

Upon every assignment or transfer of a mortgage, a stamp tax is required equal to that imposed upon a mortgage for the amount remaining unpaid; this tax is required upon every such transfer in writing, whether there is a sale of the mortgage or not; but no stamp is necessary upon the endorsement of a negotiable instrument, even though the legal effect of such endorsement is to transfer a mortgage by which the instrument is secured.

An assignment of a lease within the meaning and intent of Schedule B, is an assignment of the leasehold, or of some portion thereof, by the lessee, or by some person claiming by, from, or under him; such an assignment as subrogates the assignee to the rights, or some portion of the rights, of the lessee, or of the person standing in his place. A transfer by the lessor of his part of a lease, neither giving nor purporting to give a claim to the leasehold, or to any part thereof, but simply a right to the rents, &c., is subject to stamp tax as a contract or agreement only.

The stamp tax upon a fire insurance policy is based upon the premium.

Deposit notes taken by a mutual fire insurance company, not as payment of premium nor as evidence of indebtedness therefor, but to be used simply as a basis upon which to make rateable assessments to meet the losses incurred by the company, should not be reckoned as premium in determining the amount of stamp taxes upon the policies.

When a policy of insurance properly stamped has been issued and lost, no stamp is necessary upon another issued by the same company to the same party, covering the same property, time, &c., and designed simply to supply the loss. The second policy should recite the loss of the first.

An instrument which operates as the renewal of a policy of insurance, is subject to the same stamp tax as the policy.

When a policy of insurance is issued for a certain time, whether it be for one year only or for a term of years, a receipt for premium, or any other instrument which has the legal effect to continue the contract and extend its operation beyond that time, requires the same amount of revenue stamps as the policy itself; but such a receipt as is usually given for the payment of the monthly, quarterly, or annual premium, is not a renewal within the meaning of the statute. The payment simply prevents the policy from expiring, by reason of non-performance of its conditions; a receipt given for such a payment requires a two-cent stamp, if the amount received exceeds twenty dollars, and a two-cent stamp only. When, however, the time of payment has passed, and a tender of the premium is not sufficient to bind the company, but a new policy or a new contract in some form, with the mutuality essential to every contract, becomes necessary between the insurer and the insured, the same amount of stamps should be used as that required upon the original policy.

A permit issued by a life insurance company changing the terms of a policy as to travel, residence, occupation, &c., should be stamped as a contract or agreement.

A bill single or a bill obligatory, i. e., an instrument in the form of a promissory note, under seal, is subject to stamp duty as written or printed evidence of an amount of money to be paid on demand or at a time designated, at the rate of five cents for each one hundred dollars or fractional part thereof.

A waiver of protest, or of demand and notice, written upon negotiable paper and signed by the indorser, is an agreement, and requires a five-cent stamp.

A stamp duty of twenty-five cents is imposed upon the "protest of every note, bill of exchange, check or draft," and upon every marine protest. If several notes, bills of exchange, drafts, &c., are protested at the same time and all attached to one and the same certificate, stamps should be affixed to the amount of twenty-five cents for each note, bill, draft, &c., thus protested.

When, as is generally the case, the caption to a deposition contains other certificates in addition to the jurat to the affidavit of the deponent, such as a certificate that the parties were or were not notified, that they did or did not appear, that they did or did not object, &c., it is subject to a stamp duty of five cents.

When an attested copy of a writ or other process is used by a sheriff or other person in making personal service, or in attaching property, a five-cent stamp should be affixed to the certificate of attestation.

A marriage certificate issued by the officiating clergyman or magistrate, to be returned to any officer of a State, county, city, town, or other municipal corporation, to constitute part of a public record, requires no stamp; but if it is to be retained by the parties, a five-cent stamp should be affixed.

The stamp tax upon a bill of sale, by which any ship or vessel, or any part thereof, is conveyed to or vested in any other person or persons, is at the same rate as that imposed upon conveyances of realty sold; a bill of sale of any other personal property should be stamped as a contract or agreement.

An assignment of real or personal property, or of both, for the benefit of creditors, should be stamped as an agreement or contract.

Written or printed assignments of agreements, bonds, notes not negotiable, and of all other instruments the assignments of which are not particularly specified in the foregoing schedule, should be stamped as agreements.

No stamp is necessary upon the registry of a judgment, even though the registry is such in its legal effect as to create a lien which operates as a mortgage upon the property of the judgment debtor.

When a "power of attorney or proxy for voting at any election for officers of any incorporated company or society, except religions, charitable, or literary societies, or public cemeteries," is signed by several stockholders, owning separate and distinct shares, it is, in its legal effect, the separate instrument of each, and requires stamps to the amount of ten cents for each and every signature; one or more stamps may be used representing the whole amount required.

A notice from landlord to tenant to quit possession of premises requires no stamp.

A stamp tax is imposed upon every "manifest for custom-house entry or clearance of the cargo of any ship, vessel, or steamer for a foreign port." The amount of this tax in each case depends upon the registered tonnage of the vessel.

If a vessel clears in ballast and has no cargo whatever, no stamp is necessary; but if she has any, however small the amount—a stamp should be used.

A bond to convey real estate requires stamps to the amount of twenty-five cents.

The stamp duty upon the probate of a will, or upon letters of administration, is based upon the sworn or declared value of all the estate and effects, real, personal, and mixed, undiminished by the debts of the estate for or in respect of which such probate or letters are applied for.

When the property belonging to the estate of a person deceased, lies under different jurisdictions and it becomes necessary to take out letters in two or more places, the letters should be stamped according to the value of all the property, real, personal, and mixed, for or in respect of which the particular letters in each case are issued.

Letters de bonis non should be stamped according to the amount of property remaining to be administered upon thereunder, regardless of the stamps upon the original letters.

A mere copy of an instrument is not subject to stamp duty unless it is a certified one, in which case a five-cent stamp should be affixed to the certificate of the person attesting it; but when the instrument is executed and issued in duplicate, triplicate, &c., as in the case of a lease of two or more parts, each part has the same legal effect as the other, and each should be stamped as an original.

Infalible Rules for Detecting Counterfeit or Spurious Bank Notes.

RULE 1st.—Examine the shading of the letters in title of Bank called LATHEWORK, which in genuine notes presents an even, straight, light and silky appearance, generally so fine and smooth as to appear to be all in one solid, pale body. In the counterfeit the lines are coarse and irregular, and in many of the longer lines breaks will be perceived, thus presenting a very inferior finish in comparison to genuine work.

2d.—Observe the dies, circles and ovals in the genuine; they are composed of a network of lines, which, by crossing each other at certain angles, produce an endless variety of figures; SEE THE ONE CENT STAMP ATTACHED. The fine line alone is the unit which enables you to detect spurious work. In the counterfeit, the REPRESENTED white lines are coarse, irregular, and cross each other in a confused, irregular manner, thus producing blurred and imperfect figures.

3d.—Examine the form and features of all human figures on the note. In the genuine, the texture of the skin is represented by fine dots and lines intermixed. In the eyes, the pupil is distinctly visible, and the white clearly seen; the nose, mouth and chin, well formed, natural and expressive; the lips are slightly pouting, and the chin well thrown out; and the delicate shading of the neck perfectly harmonizes with the rest of the figure. Observe the fingers and toes; they should be clearly and accurately defined. The hair of the head should show the fine strands and present a natural appearance. The folds of the drapery of human figures should lay natural and present a fine, finished appearance. In the counterfeit the female figure does not bear the natural prominence in outline; observe, the eyes and shading surrounding does not present the lifelike appearance it should. The fingers and toes are not properly and proportionately defined; the hair does not bear that soft and finished appearance as in the genuine.

4th.—Examine the imprint or engraver's names in the evenness and shape of the fine letters. Counterfeits never bear the imprint perfect. This rule should be strictly observed, as it is infalible in detecting counterfeits.

5th.—In the genuine note the landscapes are well finished; trees and shrubs are neatly drawn; the limbs well proportioned, and the foliage presenting a fine natural appearance; clear sky is formed of fine parallel lines, and when clouds or heavy skies appear, they cross each other, and bear a soft, smooth and natural appearance. The perspective, showing a view of the surrounding country, is always clear and distinct. The small figures in the background are always plainly seen, and their outline and general character recognized. Ships are well defined and the canvass has a clear texture; railroad cars are very accurately delineated; in examining a train observe carefully the car most distant. In the counterfeit the landscape is usually poorly executed; the leaves of trees poorly and unnaturally defined.—The lines representing still water are scratchy rather than parallel, the sky is represented generally in like manner, and where rolling clouds are to be seen, the unnatural effect is obvious. Domestic animals are generally poorly executed, particularly the head and limbs; the eyes are seldom clearly defined. Ships are poorly drawn, the texture of the canvass coarse and inferior in style of workmanship, thus giving an artificial appearance. Railroad cars are also poorly executed; the car farthest from the eye is usually the most imperfect. The perspective is always imperfect, the figures in the background can seldom be recognized.

6th.—Bills altered from a smaller to a higher denomination, can readily be detected by a close observer, in consequence of the striking difference between the parts which have been extracted and the rest of the note. This difference is readily perceived in the lack of color, body and finish of the dye; we have seen bills where the surrounding shading in altered dies was too dark, but from the back or finish of the white lines you have a sure test. Again observe particularly the words "Five" or "Ten Dollars" as the case may be, denoting the denomination of the note; the parallel outlines and shading (if any) are coarse and imperfect. Alterations are frequently made by pasting a greater denomination over a smaller, but by holding the bill up to the light, the fraud will be perceived. Another method resorted to is to cut out the figures in the dies as well as the words one dollar, or the words two or three as the case may be, and with a sharp eraser, scrape down the ends and also the edges of the pieces to be inserted; when the pieces thus prepared are affixed they are hardly perceptible; but by passing the note through the hand, so as to feel the die both with the finger and thumb at the same time, the fraud will be detected by the stiffness of the outer edges, "occasioned by the gum or method adopted" in affixing the parts. The letter S should always be examined, as in many alterations it is pasted or stamped at the end of the word "dollar," and even when stamped there, the carrying out of the outlines for its shading will readily show the fraud. Bills of broken banks are frequently altered by extracting the name of bank, state and town; they may readily be detected by observing first the state, second the title or name of the bank, third the town or location.

GENERAL REMARKS IN REFERENCE TO COUNTERFEITS.—The paper on which they are printed is generally of a very inferior quality, with less body, finish and toughness than bank note paper has. The ink generally lacks the rich luster of the genuine; the red letters and figures are generally imperfect, and the ink does not present the vermilion hue as it should. The printing is generally inferior, usually exhibiting specks of white in the most prominent letters. The date and filling up, and the President's and Cashier's names are generally written by the same person, although in many instances they present a different appearance. There are bills in circulation bearing either genuine dies or vignettes; but upon close examination you will be enabled to detect any spurious bill, whether counterfeit or altered, by the instructions here given, if persevered in for a short time. We beg to suggest, if time will admit, the learner should examine minutely every bill he receives. A powerful pocket magnifying glass, which can be purchased for from fifty cents to one dollar at any of the opticians, will greatly enable you to see and comprehend the difference between genuine and spurious work.

HOW TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS.

What will my readers give to know how to get rich? Now, I will not vouch that the following rules will enable every person who may read them to acquire wealth; but this I will answer for, that if ever a man does grow rich by honest means, and retains his wealth for any length of time, he must practice upon the principles laid down in the following essay. The remarks are not original with me, but I strongly commend them to the attention of every young man, at least as affording the true secret of success in attaining wealth. A single perusal of such an essay at an impressive moment, has sometimes a very wonderful effect upon the disposition and character.

Fortune, they say, is a fickle dame—full of her freaks and caprices; who blindly distributes her favors without the slightest discrimination. So inconstant, so wavering is she represented, that her most faithful votaries can place no reliance on her promises. Disappointment, they tell us, is the lot of those who make offerings at her shrine. Now, all this is a vile slander upon the dear blind lady.

Although wealth often appears the result of mere accident, or a fortunate concurrence of favorable circumstances without any exertion of skill or foresight, yet any man of sound health and unimpaired mind may become wealthy, if he takes the proper steps.

Foremost in the list of requisites are honesty and strict integrity in every transaction of life. Let a man have the reputation of being fair and upright in his dealings, and he will possess the confidence of all who know him. Without these qualities every other merit will prove unavailing. Ask concerning a man, "Is he active and capable?" Yes. "Industrious, temperate and regular in his habits?"—Oh yes. "Is he honest? Is he trustworthy?" Why, as to that, I am sorry to say that he is not to be trusted; he needs watching; he is a little tricky, and will take an undue advantage, if he can. "Then I will have nothing to do with him," will be the invariable reply. Why, then, is honesty the best policy? Because, without it, you will get a bad name, and everybody will shun you.

A character for knavery will prove an insurmountable obstacle to success in almost every undertaking. It will be found that the straight line is, in business, as in geometry, the shortest. In a word, it is almost impossible for a dishonest man to acquire wealth by a regular process of business, because he is shunned as a depredator upon society.

Needy men are apt to deviate from the rule of integrity, under the plea that necessity knows no law; they might as well add that it knows no shame. The course is suicidal, and by destroying all confidence, ever keeps them immured in poverty, although they may possess every other quality for success in the world.

Punctuality, which is said to be the soul of business, is another important element in the art of money getting. The man known to be scrupulously exact in the fulfillment of his engagements, gains the confidence of all, and may command all the means he can use with advantage; whereas, a man careless and regardless of his promises in money matters will have every purse closed against him. Therefore be prompt in your payments.

Next, let us consider the advantages of a cautious circumspection in our intercourse with the world. Slowness of belief and a proper distrust are essential to success. The credulous and confiding are ever the dupes of knaves and impostors. Ask those who have lost their property how it happened, and you will find in most cases that it has been owing to misplaced confidence. One has lost by endorsing, another by crediting, another by false representations; all of which a little more foresight and a little more distrust would have prevented. In the affairs of this world men are not saved by faith, but by the want of it.

Judge of men by what they do, not by what they say. Believe in looks rather than words. Observe all their movements. Ascertain their motives and their ends. Notice what they say or do in their unguarded moments, when under the influence of excitement. The passions have been compared to tortures which force men to reveal their secrets. Before trusting a man, before putting it in his power to cause you a loss, possess yourself of every available information relative to him. Learn his history, his habits, inclinations and propensities; his reputation for honor, industry, frugality and punctuality; his prospects, resources, supports, advantages and disadvantages; his intentions and motives of action; who are his friends and enemies, and what are his good or bad qualities. You may learn a man's good qualities and advantages from his friends—his bad qualities and disadvantages from his enemies. Make due allowance for exaggeration in both. Finally, examine carefully before engaging in anything, and act with energy afterwards. Have the hundred eyes of Argus beforehand, and the hundred hands of Briarins afterwards.

Order and system in the management of business must not be neglected. Nothing contributes more to dispatch. Have a place for everything and everything in its place; a time for everything, and everything in its time. Do first what presses most, and having determined what is to be done, and how it is to be done, lose no time in doing it. Without this method all is hurry and confusion, little or nothing is accomplished, and business is attended to with neither pleasure nor profit.

A polite, affable deportment is recommended. Agreeable manners contribute powerfully to a man's success. Take two men, possessing equal advantages in every other respect, but let one be gentlemanly, kind, obliging and conciliating in his manners; the other harsh, rude and disobliging; and the one will become rich, while the other will starve.

We are now to consider a very important principle in the business of money-getting, namely—Industry—persevering, indefatigable attention to business. Persevering diligence is the Philosopher's stone, which turns everything to gold. Constant, regular, habitual and systematic application to business, must in time, if properly directed, produce great results. It must lead to wealth, with the same certainty that poverty follows in the train of idleness and inattention. It has been truly remarked that he who follows his amusements instead of his business, will, in a short time, have no business to follow.

The art of money-saving is an important part of the art of money-getting. Without frugality no one can become rich; with it, few would be poor. Those who consume as fast as they produce, are on the road to ruin. As most of the poverty we meet with grows out of idleness and extravagance, so most large fortunes have been the result of habitual industry and frugality. The practice of economy is as necessary in the expenditure of time as of money. They say if "we take care of the pence the pounds will take care of themselves." So, if we take care of the minutes, the days will take care of themselves.

The acquisition of wealth demands as much self-denial, and as many sacrifices of present gratification, as the practice of virtue itself. Vice and poverty proceed, in some degree, from the same source, namely—the disposition to sacrifice the future to the present; the inability to forego a small present pleasure for great future advantages. Men fail of fortune in this world, as they fail of happiness in the world to come, simply because they are unwilling to deny themselves momentary enjoyments for the sake of permanent future happiness.

Every large city is filled with persons, who, in order to support the appearance of wealth, constantly live beyond their income, and make up the deficiency by contracting debts which are never paid. Others, there are, the mere drones of society, who pass their days in idleness, and subsist by pirating on the hives of the industrious. Many who run a short-lived career of splendid beggary, could they be but persuaded to adopt a system of rigid economy for a few years, might pass the remainder of their days in affluence. But no! They must keep up appearances, they must live like other folks.

Their debts accumulate; their credit falls; they are harassed by duress, and besieged by constables and sheriff. In this extremity, as a last resort, they submit to a shameful dependence, or engage in criminal practices which entail hopeless wretchedness and infamy on themselves and families.

Stick to the business in which you are regularly employed. Let speculators make thousands in a year or a day; mind your own regular trade, never turning from it to the right hand or to the left. If you are a merchant, a professional man, or a mechanic, never buy lots or stocks, unless you have surplus money which you wish to invest. Your own business you understand as well as other men; but other people's business you do not understand. Let your business be some one which is useful to the community. All such occupations possess the elements of profit in themselves.

How to Secure the Public Lands,

OR THE ENTRY OF THE SAME UNDER THE PRE-EMPTION AND HOMESTEAD LAWS.

The following circular gives all necessary information as to the procedure necessary in purchasing and securing the public lands:

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR,
GEN'L LAND OFFICE, July 19, 1865. }

Numerous questions having arisen as to the mode of procedure to purchase public lands, or acquire title to the same by county land locations, by pre-emptions or by homestead, this circular is communicated for the information of all concerned.

In order to acquire title to public lands the following steps must be taken:

1. Application must be made to the Register of the district land office in which the land desired may be situated.

A list of all the land offices in the United States is furnished by the Department, with the seats of the different offices, where it is the duty of the Register and Receiver to be in attendance, and give proper facilities and information to persons desirous of obtaining lands.

The minimum price of ordinary public lands is $1.25 per acre. The even or reserved sections falling within railroad grants are increased to double the minimum price, being $2.50 per acre.

Lands once offered at public sale, and not afterwards kept out of market by reservation, or otherwise, so as to prevent free competition, may be entered or located.

2. By the applicant filing with the Register his written application describing the tract, with its area; the Register will then certify to the receiver whether the land is vacant, with its price; and when found to be so, the applicant must pay that price per acre, or may locate the same with land warrant, and thereafter the Receiver will give him a "duplicate receipt," which he is required to surrender previous to the delivery to him of the patent, which may be had either by application for it to the Register or to the General Land Office.

3. If the tract has not been offered at public sale it is not liable to ordinary private entry, but may be secured by a party legally qualified, upon his compliance with the requirements of the pre-emption laws of 4th September, 1841, and 2d March, 1843; and after such party shall have made actual settlement for such a length of time as will show he designs it for his permanent home, and is acting in good faith, building a house and residing therein, he may proceed to the district land office, establish his pre-emption claim according to law, by proving his actual residence and cultivation, and showing that he is otherwise within the purview of these acts.— Then he can enter the land at $1.25, either in cash or with bounty land warrant, unless the premises should be $2.50 acre lands. In that case the whole purchase money can be paid in cash, or one-half in cash, the residue with a bounty land warrant.

4. But if parties legally qualified desire to obtain title under the Homestead Act of 20th May, 1862, they can do so on complying with the Department Circular, dated 30th October, 1862.

5. The law confines Homestead entries to surveyed lands; and although, in certain States and Territories noted in the subjoined list, pre-emptors may go on land before survey, yet they can only establish their claim after return of survey, but must file their pre-emption declaration within three months after receipt of official plat, at the local land-office where the settlement was made before survey. Where, however, it was made after survey, the claimant must file within three months after date of settlement; and where actual residence and cultivation have been long enough to show that the claimant has made the land his permanent home, he can establish his claim and pay for the same at any time before the date of the public sale of lands within the range in which his settlement may fall.

6. All unoffered surveyed lands not acquired under pre-emption, homestead, or otherwise, under express legal sanction, must be offered at public sale under the President's Proclamation, and struck off to the highest bidder, as required by act of April 24, 1820.

J. M. EDMUNDS,
Commissioner General Land Office.

LAW MAXIMS.

1. A promise of a debtor to give "satisfactory security" for the payment of a portion of his debt, is a sufficient consideration for a release of the residue by his creditor.

2. Administrators are liable to account for interest on funds in their hands, although no profit shall have been made upon them, unless the exigencies of the estate rendered it prudent that they should hold the funds thus uninvested.

3. Any person who voluntarily becomes an agent for another, and in that capacity obtains information to which as a stranger he could have had no access, is bound in subsequent dealing with his principal, as purchaser of the property that formed the subject of his agency, to communicate such information.

4. When a house is rendered untenable in consequence of improvements made on the adjoining lot, the owner of such cannot recover damages, because it is presumed that he had knowledge of the approaching danger in time to protect himself from it.

5. When a merchant ship is abandoned by order of the master, for the purpose of saving life, and a part of the crew subsequently meet the vessel so abandoned and bring her safe into port, they will be entitled to salvage.

6. A person who has been led to sell goods by means of false pretences, cannot recover them from one who has purchased them in good faith from the fraudulent vendor.

7. An agreement by the holder of a note to give the principal debtor time for payment, without depriving himself of the right to sue, does not discharge the surety.

8. A seller of goods who accepts, at the time of sale, the note of a third party, not endorsed by the buyer, in payment, cannot in case the note is not paid, hold the buyer responsible for the value of the goods.

14. Agents are solely liable to their principals.

20. An action for malicious prosecution will lie, though nothing further was done than suing out warrants.
21. An agreement not to continue the practice of a profession or business in any specified town, if the party so agreeing has received a consideration for the same, is valid.
22. When A consigns goods to B to sell on commission, and B delivers them to C, in payment of his own antecedent debts, A can recover their value.
23. A finder of property is compelled to make diligent inquiry for the owner thereof, and to restore the same. If, on finding such property, he attempts to conceal such fact, he may be prosecuted for larceny.
24. A private person may obtain an injunction to prevent a public mischief by which he is affected in common with others.
25. Any person interested may obtain an injunction to restrain the State or a municipal corporation from maintaining a nuisance on its lands.
26. A discharge under the insolvent laws of one State will not discharge the insolvent from a contract made with a citizen of another State.
27. To prosecute a party with any other motive than to bring him to justice, is malicious prosecution, and actionable as such.
28. Ministers of the gospel, residing in any incorporated town, are not exempt from jury, military, or fire service.
29. When a person contracts to build a house, and is prevented by sickness from finishing it, he can recover for the part performed, if such part is beneficial to the other party.

41. In an action for slander, the party making the complaint must prove the words alleged; other words of like meaning will not suffice.
42. In a suit of damages for seduction, proof of pregnancy, and the birth of a child, is not essential. It is sufficient if the illness of the girl, whereby she was unable to labor, was produced by shame for the seduction; and this is such a loss of service as will sustain the action.
43. Addressing to a wife a letter containing matter defamatory to the character of her husband is a publication, and renders the writer amenable to damages.
44. A parent cannot sustain an action for any wrong done to a child, unless he has incurred some direct pecuniary injury therefrom in consequence of some loss of service or expenses necessarily consequent thereupon.
45. A master is responsible for an injury resulting from the negligence of his servant, whilst driving his cart or carriage, provided the servant is at the time engaged in his master's business, even though the accident happens in a place to which his master's business does not call him; but if the journey of a servant be solely for a purpose of his own, and undertaken without the knowledge and consent of his master, the latter is not responsible.
46. An emigrant depot is not a nuisance in law.
47. A railroad track through the streets is not a nuisance in law.

48. If an agreement upon which a party relies be oral only, it must be proved by evidence. But if the contract be reduced to writing, it proves itself; and now no evidence whatever is receivable for the purpose of varying the contract or affecting its obligations. The reasons are obvious. The law prefers written to oral evidence, from its greater precision and certainty, and because it is less open to fraud. And where parties have closed a negotiation and reduced the result to writing, it is presumed that they have written all they intended to agree to, and therefore, that what is omitted was finally rejected by them.—[PARSONS.]

49. Delivery of a husband's goods by a wife to her adulterer, he having knowledge that she has taken them without her husband's authority, is sufficient to sustain an indictment for larceny against the adulterer.

54. Any person dealing with the representative of a deceased person, is presumed, in law, to be fully apprized of the extent of such representative's authority to act in behalf of such estate.

55. In an action against a railroad company, by a passenger, to recover damages for injuries sustained on the road, it is not compulsory upon the plaintiff to prove actual negligence in the defendants; but it is obligatory on the part of the latter to prove that the injury was not owing to any fault or negligence of theirs.

56. A guest is a competent witness, in an action between himself and an inn-keeper, to prove the character and value of lost personal baggage. Money in a trunk, not exceeding the amount reasonably required by the traveler to defray the expenses of the journey which he has undertaken, is a part of his baggage; and in case of its loss, while at any inn, the plaintiff may prove its amount by his own testimony.

57. The deed of a minor is not absolutely void. The court is authorized to judge, from the instrument, whether it is void or not, according to its terms being favorable or unfavorable to the interests of the minor.

58. A married woman can neither sue nor be sued on any contract made by her during her marriage, except in an action relating to her individual property. The action must be commenced either by or against her husband. It is only when an action is brought on a contract made by her before her marriage, that she is to be joined as a co-plaintiff, or defendant, with her husband.

59. Any contract made with a person judicially declared a lunatic is void.

60. Money paid voluntarily in any transaction, with a knowledge of the facts, cannot be recovered.

73. Confession by a prisoner must be voluntarily made, to constitute evidence against him.

74. The defendant in a suit must be served with process; but service of such process upon his wife, even in his absence from the State, is not, in the absence of statutory provisions, sufficient.

75. The measure of damages in trespass for cutting timber, is its value as a chattel on the land where it was felled, and not the market price of the lumber manufactured.

76. To support an indictment for malicious mischief in killing an animal, malice towards its owner must be shown, not merely passion excited against the animal itself.

77. No action can be maintained against a sheriff for omitting to account for money obtained upon an execution within a reasonable time. He has till the return day to render such account.

78. An interest in the profits of an enterprise, as profits, renders the party holding it a partner in the enterprise, and makes him presumptively liable to share any loss.

80. All cattle found at large upon any public road, can be driven by any person to the public pound.

81. Any dog chasing, barking, or otherwise threatening a passer-by in any street, lane, road, or other public thoroughfare, may be lawfully killed for the same.

82. A written promise for the payment of such amount as may come into the hands of the promisor, is held to be an instrument in writing for the payment of money.

83. The declaration of an agent is not admissible to establish the fact of agency.—But when other proper evidence is given, tending to establish the fact of agency, it is not error to admit the declarations of the agent, accompanying acts, though tending to show the capacity in which he acted. When evidence is competent in one respect and incompetent in another, it is the duty of the court to admit it, and control its effects by suitable instructions to the jury.

84. The court has a general power to remove or suspend an attorney for such immoral conduct as rendered him unworthy of confidence in his official capacity.

85. Bankruptcy is pleadable in bar to all actions and in all courts, and this bar may be avoided whenever it is interposed, by showing fraud in the procurement of the discharge, or a violation of any of the provisions of the bankrupt act.

86. An instrument in the form of a deed, but limited to take effect at the termination of the grantor's natural life, is held to be a deed, not a will.

87. A sale will not be set aside as fraudulent, simply because the buyer was at the time unable to make the payment agreed upon, and knew his inability, and did not intend to pay.

88. No man is under an obligation to make known his circumstances when he is buying goods.

89. Contracting parties are bound to disclose material facts known to each, but of which either supposes the other to be ignorant, only when they stand in some special relation of trust and confidence in relation to the subject matter of the contract. But neither will he be protected if he does anything, however slight, to mislead or deceive the other.

90. A contract negotiated by mail is formed when notice of acceptance of the offer is duly deposited in the post-office, properly addressed. This rule applies, although the party making the offer expressly requires that if it is accepted, speedy notice of acceptance shall be given him.

91. The date of an instrument is so far a material part of it, that an alteration of the date by the holder after execution, makes the instrument void.

92. A corporation may maintain an action for libel, for words published of them and relating to its trade or business, by which it has incurred special damages.

93. It is unprofessional for a lawyer who has abandoned his case without trying it, a term or two before trial, to claim a fee conditional upon the success of his client, although his client was successful.

94. Although a party obtaining damages for injuries received through the default of another, was himself guilty of negligence, yet that will not defeat his recovery, unless his negligence contributed to cause the injury.

95. A person may contract to labor for another during life, in consideration of receiving his support; but his creditors have the right to inquire into the intention with which such arrangement is made, and it will be set aside if entered into to deprive them of his future earnings.

96. A grantor may by express terms exclude the bed of a river, or a highway, mentioned as boundary; but if without language of exclusion a line is described as 'along,' or 'upon,' or as 'running to' the highway or river, or as 'hy,' or 'running to the bank of' the river; these expressions carry the grantee to the center of the highway or river.

97. The court will take pains to construe the words used in a deed in such a way as to effect the intention of the parties, however unskillfully the instrument may be drawn. But a court of law cannot exchange an intelligible word plainly employed in a deed for another, however evident it may be that the word used was used by mistake for another.

98. One who has lost his memory and understanding is entitled to legal protection, whether such loss is occasioned by his own misconduct or by an act of Providence.

99. When a wife leaves her husband voluntarily, it must be shown, in order to make him liable for necessaries furnished to her, that she could not stay with safety. Personal violence, either threatened or inflicted, will be sufficient cause for such separation.

100. Necessaries of dress furnished to a discarded wife must correspond with the pecuniary circumstances of the husband, and be such articles as the wife, if prudent, would expect, and the husband should furnish, if the parties lived harmoniously together.

101. A fugitive from justice from one of the United States to another, may be arrested and detained in order to his surrender by authority of the latter, without a previous demand for his surrender by the executive of the State whence he fled.

102. A watch will not pass under a bequest of "wearing apparel," nor of household furniture and articles for family use."

103. Money paid for the purpose of settling or compounding a prosecution for a supposed felony, cannot be recovered back by a party paying it.

104. An innkeeper is liable for the death of an animal in his possession, but may free himself from liability by showing that the death was not occasioned by negligence on his part.

105. Notice to the agent of a company is notice to the company.

106. An employer is not liable to one of his employes for an injury sustained by the latter in consequence of the neglect of others of his employes engaged in the same general business.

107. Where a purchaser at a Sheriff's sale has bid the full price of property under the erroneous belief that the sale would divest the property of all liens, it is the duty of the court to give relief by setting aside the sale.

108. When notice of protest is properly sent by mail, it may be sent by the mail of the day of the dishonor; if not, it must be mailed for the mail of the next day; except that if there is none, or it closes at an unseasonably early hour, then notice must be mailed in season for the next possible mail.

109. A powder-house located in a populous part of a city, and containing large quantities of gunpowder, is a nuisance.

110. When the seller of goods accepts at the time of the sale, the note of a third person, unindorsed by the purchaser, in payment, the presumption is that the payment was intended to be absolute; and though the note should be dishonored, the purchaser will not be liable for the value of the goods.

111. A man charged with crime before a committing magistrate, but discharged on his own recognizance, is not privileged from arrest on civil process while returning from the magistrate's office.

112. When one has been induced to sell goods by means of false pretences, he cannot recover them from one who has bona fide purchased and obtained possession of them from the fraudulent vendor.

113. If the circumstances attendant upon a sale and delivery of personal property are such as usually and naturally accompany such a transaction, it cannot be declared a legal fraud upon creditors.

114. A stamp impressed upon an instrument by way of seal, is good as a seal, if it creates a durable impression in the texture of the paper.

115. If a party bound to make a payment use due diligence to make a tender, but through the payee's absence from home is unable to find him or any agent authorized to take payment for him, no forfeiture will be incurred through his failure to make a tender.

Government Land Measure.

A township, 36 sections, each a mile square.

A section, 640 acres.

A quarter section, half a mile square, 160 acres.

An eighth section, half a mile long, north and south, and a quarter of a mile wide, 80 acres.

A sixteenth section, a quarter of a mile square, 40 acres.

The sections are numbered from one to thirty-six, commencing at the northeast corner, thus:

6	5	4	3	2	N	W	E
7	8	9	10	11	12
18	17	16	15	14	13
19	20	21	22	23	24
30	29	28	27	26	25
31	32	33	34	35	36

The sections are all divided in quarters, which are named by the cardinal points, as in section one. The quarters are divided in the same way. The description of a 40 acre lot would read: The south half of the west half of the southwest quarter of section 1 in township 24, north of range 7 west, or as the case might be; and sometimes will fall short, and sometimes overrun the number of acres it is supposed to contain.

THE DECIMAL SYSTEM OF WEIGHTS AND MEASURES.

As Authorized by Act of Congress--Approved July 28, 1866.

STANDARDS.

In every system of Weights and Measures it is necessary to have what are called "Standards," as the pound, yrd, gallon, &c., to be divided and multiplied into smaller and larger parts and denominations. The definition and construction of these Standards involve philosophical and scientific principles of a somewhat abstruse character, and are made and procured by the legislative department of the government. The nominal Standards in the new system are the METER, the ARE, the LITER, and the GRAM. The only real Standard, the one by which all the other standards are measured, and from which the system derives its name of "Metric," is the METER.

THE METER

Is used for all measures of length, distance, breadth, depth, height, &c., and was intended to be, and is very nearly, one ten-millionth of the distance on the earth's surface from the equator to the pole. It is about 39 $\frac{1}{2}$  inches, or 3 feet, 3 inches and 3 eighths, and is to be substituted for the yard.

THE ARE

Is a surface whose side is ten Meters, and is equal to 100 square Meters or about 4 square rods.

THE LITER

Is the unit for measuring solids and capacity, and is equal to the contents of a cube whose edge is one-tenth of a meter. It is about equal to 1 quart, and is a standard in cubic, dry and liquid measures.

☞ A cubic Meter (or Kiloliter) is called a stere, and is also used as a standard in certain cubic measures.

THE GRAM

Is the Unit of weight, and is the weight of a cube of pure water, each edge of the cube being one one-hundredth of a Meter. It is about equal to 15 $\frac{1}{2}$  grains. It is intended as the Standard in all weights, and with its divisions and multiples, to supersede the use of what are now called Avoirdupois, Apothecaries and Troy Weights.

Each of the foregoing Standards is divided decimally, and larger units are also formed by multiples of 10, 100, &c. The successive subordinate parts are designated by the prefixes Deci, Centi and Milli; the successive multiples by Deka, Hecto, Kilo and Myria; each having its own numerical signification, as will be more clearly seen in the tables hereinafter given.

The terms used may, at first sight, have a formidable appearance, seem difficult to pronounce, and to retain in memory, and to be, therefore, objectionable; but with a little attention and use, the apprehended difficulty will be found more apparent than real, as has been abundantly proved by experience. The importance, also, of conformity in the use of commercial terms, on the part of the United States, with the practice of the many nations in which the system, with its present nomenclature, has already been adopted, must greatly overbalance the comparatively slight objection alluded to.

PUBLIC — No. 183.

AN ACT to authorize the use of the metric system of weights and measures.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That from and after the passage of this act, it shall be lawful throughout the United States of America to employ the weights and measures of the metric system; and no contract or dealing, or pleading in any court, shall be deemed invalid or liable to objection, because the weights or measures expressed or referred to therein are weights or measures of the metric system.

SEC. 2. And be it further enacted, That the tables in the schedule hereto annexed, shall be recognized in the construction of contracts, and in all legal proceedings, as establishing, in terms of the weights and measures now in use in the United States, the equivalents of the weights and measures expressed therein in terms of the metric system; and said tables may be lawfully used for computing, determining and expressing, in customary weights and measures, the weights and measures of the metric system.

Discount and Premium.

When a person buys an article for $1.00—20 per cent off, (or discount,) and sells it again for $1.00, he makes a profit of 25 per cent. on his investment. Thus: He pays 80 cents and sells for $1.00—a gain of 20 cents, or 25 per cent of 80 cents. And for any transaction where the sale or purchase of gold, silver, or currency is concerned, the following rules will apply in all cases.

RULE 1st.—To find premium when discount is given: Multiply 100 by rate of discount and divide by 100, less rate of discount.

RULE 2d.—To find discount when premium is given. Multiply the rate of interest by 100, and divide by 100, plus the rate of premium.

Suppose A has $140 in currency, which he wishes to exchange for gold, when gold is 27 per cent. premium, how much gold should he receive? In this case the premium is given, consequently we must find the discount on A's currency and subtract it from the $140, as per rule 2d, showing the discount to be a trifle more than 21 per cent. and that he should receive $110.60 in gold.

Facts on Advertising.

The advertisements in an ordinary number of the London Times exceed 2,500. The annual advertising bills of one London firm are said to amount to $300,000; and three others are mentioned who each annually expend for the purpose $50,000. The expense for advertising the eight editions of the "Encyclopædia Britannica" is said to have been $15,000.

In large cities nothing is more common than to see large business establishments, which seem to have an immense advantage over all competitors, by the wealth, experience, and prestige they have acquired, drop gradually out of public view, and be succeeded by firms of a smaller capital, more energy, and more determined to have the fact that they sell such and such commodities known from one end of the land to the other. In other words, the establishments advertise; the old die of dignity.—The former are ravenous to pass out of obscurity into publicity; the latter believe that their publicity is so obvious that it cannot be obscured. The first understand that they must thrust themselves upon public attention, or be disregarded; the second, having once obtained public attention, suppose they have arrested it permanently; while, in fact, nothing is more characteristic of the world than the ease with which it forgets.

Stephen Girard, than whom no shrewder business man ever lived, used to say: I have always considered advertising liberally and long to be the great medium of success in business, and the prelude to wealth. And I have made it an invariable rule too, to advertise in the dullest times as well as the busiest; long experience having taught me that money thus spent is well laid out; as by keeping my business continually before the public it has secured me many sales that I would otherwise have lost.

Brilliant Whitewash.

Many have heard of the brilliant stacco whitewash on the east end of the President's house at Washington. The following is a recipe for it; it is gleaned from the National Intelligencer, with some additional improvements learned by experiments: Take half a bushel of nice unslacked lime, slack it with boiling water, cover it during the process to keep in the steam. Strain the liquid through a fine sieve or strainer, and add to it a peck of salt, previously well dissolved in warm water; three pounds of ground rice, boiled to a thin paste, and stirred in boiling hot; half a pound of powdered Spanish whiting, and a pound of clean glue, which has been previously dissolved by soaking it well, and then hanging it over a slow fire, in a small kettle within a large one filled with water. Add five gallons of hot water to the mixture, stir it well, and let it stand a few days covered from the dirt.

It should be put on right hot; for this purpose it can be kept in a kettle on a portable furnace. It is said that about a pint of this mixture will cover a square yard upon the outside of a house if properly applied. Brushes more or less small may be used according to the neatness of the job required. It answers as well as oil paint for wood, brick or stone, and is cheaper. It retains its brilliancy for many years. There is nothing of the kind that will compare with it, either for inside or outside walls.

Coloring matter may be put in and made of any shade you like. Spanish brown stirred in will make red pink, more or less deep according to the quantity. A delicate tinge of this is very pretty, for inside walls. Finely pulverized common clay, well mixed with Spanish brown, makes a reddish stoe color. Yellow-ochre stirred in makes yellow wash, but chrome goes further, and makes a color generally esteemed prettier. In all these cases the darkness of the shades of course is determined by the quantity of coloring used. It is difficult to make rules, because tastes are different. It would be best to try experiments on a shingle and let it dry. We have been told that green must not be mixed with lime. The lime destroys the color, and the color has an effect on the whitewash, which makes it crack and peel. When walls have been hadly smoked, and you wish to have them a clean white, it is well to squeeze indigo plentifully through a hag into the water you use, before it is stirred in the whole mixture. If a larger quantity than five gallons be wanted, the same proportion should be observed.

How to get a Horse out of a Fire.

The great difficulty of getting horses from a stable where surrounding buildings are in a state of conflagration, is well known.—The plan of covering their eyes with a blanket will not always succeed.

A gentleman whose horses have been in great peril from such a cause, having tried in vain to save them, hit upon the expedient of having them harnessed as though going to their usual work, when, to his astonishment, they were led from the stable without difficulty.

The Chemical Barometer.

Take a long narrow bottle, such as an old-fashioned Eau-de-Cologne bottle, and put into it two and a half drachms of camphor, and eleven drachms of spirits of wine; when the camphor is dissolved, which it will readily do by slight agitation, add the following mixture: Take water, nine drachms; nitrate of potash (saltpetre) thirty-eight grains; and muriate of ammonia (sal ammoniac) thirty-eight grains. Dissolve these salts in the water prior to mixing with the camphorated spirit; then shake the whole well together. Cork the bottle well, and wax the top, but afterwards make a very small aperture in the cork with a red-hot needle. The bottle may then be hung up, or placed in any stationary position. By observing the different appearances which the materials assume, as the weather changes, it becomes an excellent prognosticator of a coming storm or of a sunny sky.

Leech Barometer.

Take an eight ounce phial, and put in it three gills of water, and place in it a healthy leech, changing the water in summer once a week, and in winter once in a fortnight, and it will most accurately prognosticate the weather. If the weather is to be fine, the leech lies motionless at the bottom of the glass and coiled together in a spiral form; if rain may be expected, it will creep up to the top of its lodgings and remain there till the weather is settled; if we are to have wind, it will move through its habitation with amazing swiftness, and seldom goes to rest till it begins to blow hard; if a remarkable storm of thunder and rain is to succeed, it will lodge for some days before almost continually out of the water, and discover great uneasiness in violent throes and convulsive-like motions; in frost as in clear summer-like weather it lies constantly at the bottom; and in snow as in rainy weather it pitches its dwelling in the very mouth of the phial. The top should be covered over with a piece of muslin.

TO MEASURE GRAIN IN A BIN.—Find the number of cubic feet, from which deduct one-fifth. The remainder is the number of bushels—allowing, however, one bushel extra to every 224. Thus in a remainder of 224 there would be 225 bushels. In a remainder of 448 there would be 450 bushels, &c.

VALUABLE RECIPES.

[The following recipes are vouched for by several who have tried them and proven their virtues. Many of them have been sold singly for more than the price of this book.—PUB.]

HORSES.

RING BONE AND SPAVIN.—2 oz. each of Spanish flies and Venice turpentine; 1 oz. each of aqua ammonia and euphorbium;  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. red precipitate;  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. corrosive sublimate; 1 $\frac{1}{2}$  lbs. lard. When thoroughly pulverized and mixed, heat carefully so as not to burn, and pour off free from sediment.

For ring-bone, rub in thoroughly, after removing hair, once in 48 hours. For spavin, once in 24 hours. Cleanse and press out the matter on each application.

POLL-EVIL.—Gum arabic  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz.; common potash  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz.; extract of belladonna  $\frac{1}{2}$  dr. Put the gum in just enough water to dissolve it. Pulverize the potash and mix with the dissolved gum, and then put in the extract of belladonna, and it will be ready for use. Use with a syringe after having cleansed with soap suds, and repeat once in two days till a cure is effected.

SCOURA.—Powdered tormentil root, given in, from 3 to 5 times daily till cured.

GREASE-HEEL AND SCRATCHES.—Sweet oil 6 ozs.; borax 2 ozs.; sugar of lead 2 ozs. Wash off with dish water, and, after it is dry, apply the mixture twice a day.

CHOLIC IN HORSES.—To  $\frac{1}{2}$  pt. of warm water add 1 oz. laudanum and 3 ozs. spirits of turpentine, and repeat the dose in about  $\frac{1}{2}$  of an hour, adding  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. powdered aloes, if not relieved.

BOTA.—Three doses. 1st. 2 qts milk and 1 of molasses. 2d. 15 minutes after, 2 qts. warm sage tea. 3d. After the expiration of 30 minutes, sufficient lard to physic.—Never fails.

MISCELLANEOUS.

PILES—PERFECTLY CURED.—Take flour of sulphur 1 oz., rosin 3 ozs., pulverize and mix well together. (Color with carmine or cochineal, if you like.) Dose—What will lie on a five cent piece, night and morning, washing the parts freely in cold water once or twice a day. This is a remedy of great value.

The cure will be materially hastened by taking a table-spoon of sulphur in a half pint of milk, daily, until the cure is effected.

SURE CURE FOR CORNS, WARTS AND CHILBLAINS.—Take of nitric and muriatic acids, blue vitriol and salts of tartar, 1 oz. each. Add the blue vitriol, pulverized, to either of the acids; add the salts of tartar in the same way; when done foaming, add the other acid, and in a few days it will be ready for use. For chilblains and corns apply it very lightly with a swab, and repeat in a day or two until cured. For warts, once a week, until they disappear.

HOOF-AIL IN SHEEP.—Mix 2 ozs. each of butter of antimony and muriatic acid with 1 oz. of pulverized white vitriol, and apply once or twice a week to the bottom of the foot.

COMMON RHEUMATISM.—Kerosene oil 2 ozs.; neat-foot oil 1 oz.; oil of organum  $\frac{1}{2}$  oz. Shake when used, and rub and heat in twice daily.

VERY FINE SOAP, QUICKLY AND CHEAPLY MADE.—Fourteen pounds of bar soap in a half a boiler of hot water; cut up fine; add three pounds of sal-soda made fine; one ounce of pulverized rosin; stir it often till all is dissolved; just as you take it off the fire, put in two table-spoonfuls of spirits of turpentine and one of ammonia; pour it in a barrel, and fill up with cold soft water; let it stand three or four days before using. It is an excellent soap for washing clothes, extracting the dirt readily, and not fading colored articles.

WATER PROOF FOR LEATHER.—Take linseed oil 1 pint, yellow wax and white turpentine each 2 ozs. Burgundy pitch 1 oz., melt and color with lampblack.

TO KEEP CIDER SWEET.—Put into each barrel, immediately after making,  $\frac{1}{4}$  lb. ground mustard, 2 oz. salt and 2 oz. pulverized chalk. Stir them in a little cider, pour them into the barrel, and shake up well.

AGUE CURE.—Procure  $1\frac{1}{2}$  table-spoons of fresh mandrake root juice, (by pounding) and mix with the same quantity of molasses, and take in three equal doses, 2 hours a part, the whole to be taken 1 hour before the chill comes on. Take a swallow of some good bitters before meals, for a couple of weeks after the chills are broken, and the cure will be permanent.

CURE FOR SALT RHEUM OR SOUBRY.—Take of the pokeweed, any time in summer; pound it; press out the juice; strain it into a pewter dish; set it in the sun till it becomes a salve—then put it into an earthen mug; add to it fresh water and bees' wax sufficient to make an ointment of common consistency; simmer the whole over a fire till thoroughly mixed. When cold, rub the part affected. The patient will almost immediately experience its good effects, and the most obstinate cases will be cured in three or four months. Tested.—The juice of the ripe berries may be prepared in the same way.

SUPERIOR PAINT—FOR BRICK HOUSES.—To lime whitewash, add for a fastener, sulphate of zinc, and shade with any color you choose, as yellow ochre, Venetian red, etc. It outlasts oil paint.

FELONS.—Stir 1 oz. of Venice turpentine with  $\frac{1}{2}$  tea-spoonful of water, till it looks like candied honey, and apply by spreading upon cloth and wrapping around the finger. If not too long delayed will cure in 6 hours.

A puke root poultice is also said to be a sure remedy.

WATER-PROOF BLACKING AND HARNESS POLISH.—Take two and a half ounces gum shellac and half a pint of alcohol, and set in a warm place until dissolved; then add two and a half ounces Venice turpentine to neutralize the alcohol; add a tablespoonful of lampblack. Apply with a fine sponge. It will give a good polish over oil or grease.

MOSQUITOS.—To get rid of these tormentors, take a few hot coals on a shovel, or a chafing dish, and burn upon them some brown sugar in your bed-rooms and parlors, and you effectually banish or destroy every mosquito for the night.

CHEAP OUTSIDE PAINT.—Take two parts (in bulk) of water lime ground fine, one part (in bulk) of white lead ground in oil. Mix them thoroughly, by adding best hoiled linseed oil, enough to prepare it to pass through a paint mill, after which temper with oil till it can be applied with a common paint brush. Make any color to suit. It will last three times as long as lead paint, and cost not one-fourth as much. It is SUPERIOR.

CURE FOR A COUGH.—A strong decoction of the leaves of the pine, sweetened with loaf sugar. Take a wine-glass warm on going to bed, and half an hour before eating three times a day. The above is sold as a cough syrup, and is doing wonderful cures, and it is sold at a great profit to the manufacturers.

How to Judge a Horse.

A correspondent, contrary to old maxims, undertakes to judge the character of a horse by outward appearances, and offers the following suggestions, the result of his close observation and long experience:

If the color be light sorrell, or chestnut, his feet, legs and face white, these are marks of kindness. If he is broad and full between the eyes, he may be depended on as a horse of good sense, and capable of being trained to anything.

As respects such horses, the more kindly you treat them the better you will be treated in return. Nor will a horse of this description stand a whip, if well fed.

If you want a safe horse, avoid one that is dish-faced. He may be so far gentle as not to scare; but he will have too much go-ahead in him to be safe with everybody.

If you want a fool, but a horse of great bottom, get a deep bay, with not a white hair about him. If his face is a little dish-ed, so much the worse. Let no man ride such a horse that is not an adept in riding—they are always tricky and unsafe.

If you want one that will never give out, never buy a large, overgrown one.

A black horse cannot stand heat, nor a white one cold.

If you want a gentle horse, get one with more or less white about the head; the more the better. Many persons suppose the parti-colored horses belonging to the circus, shows, &c., are selected for their oddity. But the selections thus made are on account of their great docility and gentleness.

Measurement of Hay in the Mow or Stack.—It is often desirable, where conveniences for weighing are not at hand, to purchase and sell hay by measurement. It is evident that no fixed rule will answer in all cases, as it would require more cubic feet at the top of a mow than at the bottom. The general rule adopted by those who have tested it, is that a cube, each side of which shall measure eight feet, of solid Timothy hay, as taken from mow or bottom of stack will weigh a ton. The rule may be varied for upper part of mow or stack according to pressure.

ALBANY COUNTY.

THIS COUNTY was formed Nov. 1, 1683, and confirmed Oct. 1, 1691. It was one of the original counties and embraced the "Manor of Rensselaerwyck, Schenectady, and all the villages, neighborhoods and Christian plantations on the east side of Hudson's River from Roeliffe Jansen's Creek; and on the west side from Sawyer's Creek to the outermost end of Saraghtoga." The Manor of Livingston was annexed to Dutchess County, May 27, 1717, and by subsequent statutes, the County of Albany was also made to comprise all that part of the Colony of New York north and west of its present limits, and at one time the whole of the present State of New York. Tryon and Charlotte Counties, embracing the present Counties of Montgomery, Fulton and Washington, were taken off in 1772, Columbia in 1786, Rensselaer and Saratoga in 1791, a part of Schoharie in 1795, a part of Greene in 1800, and Schenectady in 1809. The Manor of Rensselaerwyck was erected into a district March 24, 1772, and subdivided into east and west districts soon after the Revolution. The County lies upon the west bank of Hudson River, about 150 miles from its mouth, and contains an area of 544 square miles. The surface is undulating and hilly with a general inclination to the south-east. A narrow interval extends along the river, bounded by a series of steep bluffs from 100 to 180 feet high, from the summits of which the surface stretches out in an undulating and slightly ascending plateau to the foot of the Helderbergh Hills, where it reaches a height of 400 feet above tide. This range of hills rises from 400 to 800 feet above the plateau, and 800 to 1200 above tide. Their declivities are very steep and sometimes precipitous, on the east, but slope more gradually towards the west. Several other ranges of hills, inferior to them in height, extend in a northerly and southerly direction through the County. The highest point in the County is the summit of the Helderberghs, in the north-east corner of the town of Berne, and is 1200 feet above tide. All these ranges are outlying spurs of the Catskills, which are a northerly continuation of the Alleghany Mountains and a part of the great Appalachian system.

The geological formations of this County belong to the Upper Silurian system, and comprise nearly all the rocks of the "New York System," from the Utica slate to the corniferous limestone. Above the rocks, in the east part of the County, are deposits of drift, consisting of sand, gravel and clay; and along the river intervals are rich alluvial deposits. The lowest rock is the Utica slate, cropping out on the Hudson, Norman's Kil and Mohawk. Above this are the graywacke and shales of the Hudson River group, which appear in the valleys of all the streams which flow into the Hudson, and apparently underlie the entire eastern part of the County. This stone is extensively quarried for flagging and building purposes. The red rocks which form the base of the Helderberghs probably belong to the Medina sandstone series, though they have sometimes been confounded with the red shales of the Onondaga salt group. Next in order above this, and forming the first terrace of the mountains, is the water lime group, from 50 to 200 feet in thickness, and furnishing both water and quicklime. Next in order is the pentamerus limestone, 50 feet in thickness, and consisting of impure gray and black limestone, mixed with slate and shale. Overlying this is the Catskill limestone, from 50 to 180 feet in thickness, consisting of thick compact masses of limestone, alternating with thin layers of shale. It is quarried for building stone and lime. The Oriskany sandstone next appears in a stratum only two feet in thickness, followed by the cauda-galli grit, from 50 to 60 feet in thickness. This last has a fine grit and resembles black or gray slates, but is easily disintegrated and crumbles upon exposure to the air. The Onondaga and corniferous limestones next appear, the latter forming the summits of the mountains. These rocks furnish excellent building stone and a superior quality of lime. The surface of the eastern part of the County is covered with immense beds of clay, gravel and sand. The highlands west of the City of Albany are covered to the depth of forty feet with sand, which rests upon a bed of clay, estimated to be one hundred feet deep. In this drift are found small beds of bog ore and numerous chalybeate and sulphuretted springs. In the limestone regions are numerous caves, sink holes, and subterranean water courses, forming a peculiar and interesting feature of the County.

The principal streams are the Hudson River, which forms the eastern boundary; the Mohawk, forming a part of the north boundary; Patroon Creek, Norman's Kil, Vlamans, Coeymans, Haanakrois and Catskill Creeks, and their branches. Most of the streams which flow into the Hudson have worn deep gulleys in the sand and clay. Some of these gorges are a hundred feet deep and extend from one-fourth of a mile to a mile from the river. In the western part of the County the streams generally flow through narrow rocky ravines, bordered by steep banks. These streams are for the most part very rapid and subject to extremes of flood and drouth, rising rapidly during a rain of a few hours, and as suddenly falling. There are several small lakes among the hills, but they are of little importance. The soil upon the intervals is a deep rich alluvial loam. In Water-vliet, Albany, and the eastern parts of Guilderland and Bethlehem, it consists of almost pure sand, with strips of clay along the banks of the streams. The belt of land lying between the sandy region and the foot of the Helderberghs is principally a clayey and gravelly loam, and is very productive. Upon the Helderberghs the soil consists of alternate layers of clay, slate and gravel, generally with a subsoil of tenacious clay or hardpan. Some portions are stony and other portions are wet, cold and only moderately productive. The principal timber is pitch pine, oak and chestnut, growing upon the sandy region. In some parts these trees are mere dwarfs, the region being very barren and unproductive. A limited amount of red cedar grows in the south-east corner of the County. West of the sandy tract are found the usual trees of this latitude, including the deciduous and evergreen.

The principal occupation of the people in the farming districts is raising hay, spring grains, dairying, stock raising and gardening for the Troy and Albany markets. Manufacturing of various kinds is extensively carried on in Albany, West Troy and Cohoes, each of which places has also considerable commerce.

The City of Albany is the County Seat and the State Capital. The Court House is an elegant structure faced with Sing Sing marble and erected at the joint expense of the City and County. It contains the principal County and City offices. The building is 109 feet front and 80 deep. It has in front a recessed porch supported by six Ionic columns. The Jail is a commodious brick structure, located on Maiden Lane, in rear of the Court House.

The Albany County Penitentiary is a fine structure, located in the western part of the City, on a site embracing about fifteen acres. Its erection was commenced in 1845 and was so far completed as to be opened for prisoners in April, 1846. It was constructed under the supervision of Mr. Amos Pilsbury, who has been its efficient Superintendent until the present time, with the exception of a few months in 1858. The main building fronts the east and consists of a center and two wings, making the entire front four hundred feet. The center building is occupied as the residence of the Superintendent, his family and the subordinate officers. The rear of the second story is occupied as a hospital, and the third story as a chapel. The chapel is 76 feet by 48, finely arranged, with a gallery, and capable of seating 600 persons. It is one of the finest prison chapels in the United States. The south wing contains the cells of the male prisoners, arranged in four tiers, one above the other, in the center of the wing, making, with the recent additions, 256 in all. The cells are each seven feet by four, and seven feet high, furnished with an iron bedstead which can be turned up against the wall during the day. The doors are of iron rods, allowing nearly as much light and air when shut as when open. Each cell has a distinct ventilator. The north wing is occupied by the female prisoners and contains eighty-eight cells, besides a large, pleasant workshop. The workshop and outbuildings of the institution are commodious and all surrounded by a substantial wall. There is a library of over one thousand volumes to which the prisoners have access. Since 1851 there has been but one year during which the Penitentiary has not been self-sustaining, the aggregate income over the ordinary expenditures being over $140,000. Convicts from the District of Columbia, from the United States Courts, and from many of the eastern counties of the State, are received here.

Everything in and around the Penitentiary is kept in the best of order. The convicts are chiefly engaged in making shoes and bottoming chairs. The following Resolution, passed by the Board, will give an idea of the estimation in which the Superintendent is held :

"Resolved, That Gen. Pilsbury is not only entitled to the approbation of our immediate constituency, for the prudent and skillful management by which he has so long conducted the affairs of the Penitentiary, as to entirely relieve the County of Albany from any taxation for the board and safe keeping of criminals and vagrants; but he also merits the gratitude of the whole people of this State for having practically demonstrated, that under his excellent management, large bodies of convicts can be strictly disciplined, safely guarded, humanely treated and properly managed and cared for in all respects, without cruel or unusual punishment, and without imposing any burden upon the public treasury."

The principal public works of the County are the Erie Canal, which opens into a basin at Albany and communicates with the Hudson at West Troy; the Champlain Canal connects with the Erie and with the Hudson River at West Troy; it crosses the Mohawk in a basin produced by a dam below the Cohoes Falls. The Erie Canal crosses the Mohawk upon a stone aqueduct above the Falls. The New York Central Railroad and the Rensselaer and Saratoga Railroad terminate at Albany; the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad extends southwest through the County to Binghamton; the Hudson River, Boston and Albany, Harlem, and Troy and Greenbush Railroads are connected with Albany by a bridge across the Hudson. A pier about one and one-fourth miles long has been constructed in front of Albany, opening into the river at both ends. It is also divided for the accommodation of the ferries, and contains elevators and warehouses for transportation purposes. The basin inclosed within the pier affords a secure harbor during the winter for vessels and canal boats. Several bridges connect the pier with the City.

Henry Hudson is supposed to have ascended the river as far as the present site of Albany, in 1607. He commenced the memorable voyage on the 12th of September, and having proceeded two leagues, came to anchor. Here twenty-eight canoes, full of men, women and children, came from the shore, bringing oysters and beans, and having "great tobacco pipes of yellow copper and pots of earth to dresse their meate in." The next day the Indians "brought a great store of very good oysters aboard, which wee bought for trifles." The river contained great numbers of salmon and other fish, which the sailors caught. On the 16th the natives "came aboard and brought us eares of Indian Corne, Pompions and Tobacco, which wee bought for trifles." "On the 19th the natives again came on boord bringing grapes, pompions, beaver skins and other skins, which were exchanged for beads, knives and hatchets." "The one and twentieth day was faire weather and the wind all southerly, we determined yet once more to goe farther up into the River to trie what depth and breadth it did beare, but much people resorted aboard so we went not this day. Our carpenter went on land and made a foreyard. And our Master and his Mate determined to trie some of the chiefe men of the countrey, whether they had any treacherie in them. So they took them down in the cabbin and gave them so much wine and aqua vitæ that they were all merrie, and one of them had his wife with him, which sat so modestly, as any of our country women would do in a strange place. In the end one of them was drunke, which had been aboard of our ship all the time that we had been there, and that was strange to them, for they could not tell how to take it. The canoes and folke went all on shore, but some of them came againe and brought stropes of beads, some had six, seven, eight, nine, ten, and gave him. So he slept all night quietly. The two and twentieth was faire weather. In the morning our Master's Mate and four more of the companie went up with our Boat to sound the River higher up. The people of the countrey came not aboard till noone, but when they came and saw the savages well, they were glad. So at three of the clocke in the afternoon they came aboard and brought Tobacco and more Beades, and gave them to our Master, and made an Oration and showed him all the countrey round about. Then they sent one of their companie on land, who presently returned and brought a great Platter full of Venison, dressed for themselves, and they caused him to eat with them; then they made reverence and departed all save the old man that lay aboard. This night at ten of the clocke, our Boat returned in a shower of raine from sounding of the River, and found it to bee at an end for shipping to goe in. For they had been up eight or nine leagues and but seven foot water and unconstant soundings." The next day they began their voyage down the river and arrived at its mouth October 4th. The diary of their voyage is published in the Transactions of the New York Historical Society, from which the above extracts were taken.

. Soon after this voyage of Hudson, a number of adventurers followed in his track and pursued a small trade with the Indians. The most noted of these adventurers were Adrien Block, Hendrick Corstiaensen and Cornelius Jacobsen Mey, in the year 1614. Intelligence of the discoveries made by Block and his associates having been transmitted to Holland in the fall of 1614, measures were immediately taken to secure for themselves the exclusive trade of the countries thus explored, which was guaranteed to them by the ordinance of March 27th. A special grant was made to "Gerrit Witsen, former burgo-master of the city of Amsterdam, Jonas Witsen and Simon Mastersen, owners of the ship called the Little Fox, Captain Jarnde Witt, master; Hans Hongers, Paul Pelgrom and Lambrecht Van Tweenhuysen, owners of the two ships called the Tiger and the Fortune, Captains Adrian Block and Hendrick Corstiaensen, masters; Arnoudt Van Lybergen, Wessel Schenck, Hans Claessen and Barens Sweetsen, owners of the ship, the Nightingale, Captain Thugs Volckertsen, merchant in the city of Amsterdam, master; and Pieter Clementsen Brouwer, Jan Clementsen Kies and Cornelis Volkertsen, merchants in the city of Hoorn, owners of the ship the Fortune, Captain Cornelis Jacobsen Mey, master," who had united into a company for these purposes, "that they shall be permitted exclusively to visit and navigate the above described lands situate in America, between New France and Virginia, the sea coasts of which lie between the 40th and 45th degrees of latitude and which are now named New Netherland, as it is to be seen on the figurative maps by them prepared; and to navigate or cause to be navigated the same for four voyages within a period of three years, to commence from the first day of January 1615 or sooner, without it being permitted, directly or indirectly, to any one else to sail, to frequent or navigate out of the New Netherlands, those newly discovered lands, havens or places within the space of three years as above, on penalty of the confiscation of the vessel and cargo, besides a fine of fifty thousand Netherlands ducats for the benefit of said discoverers." Having obtained these exclusive privileges they assumed the name of "The United New Netherland Company," and proceeded to make arrangements to draw the largest returns from their new possessions. They took possession of a small island a short distance below the present City of Albany and erected a trading house 36 by 26 feet. Around this they erected a stockade fifty feet square, which was next encircled by a ditch eighteen feet wide, the whole defended by two pieces of cannon and eleven stone guns, mounted on swivels and garrisoned by ten or twelve men. This post was commanded by Jacob Jacobz Elkens who continued here four years. In the spring of 1618 a freshet injured the Company's works on the island to such an extent that they were abandoned, and another fort was built a short distance south, on the Norman's Kil. In 1623 the West India Company erected a fort on the west bank of the river, near the present steamboat landing, and named it "Fort Orange."

In 1629 a charter of privileges and exemptions was passed for the encouragement of patroons to settle colonies, and in the following year several wealthy and influential directors of the Dutch West India Company availed themselves of its advantages. Among these were Killian Van Rensselaer, a pearl merchant of Amsterdam. Having purchased of the Indians the title to the land, he received a grant of about twenty-four miles from north to south, and forty-eight from east to west, lying on both sides of the river, north and south of Fort Orange, embracing most of the counties of Albany and Rensselaer. The charter gave him privileges similar to those enjoyed by the feudal barons of Europe. By the terms of the grant the Colony must contain at least fifty persons over fifteen years of age, within four years, one-fourth of whom must be located within the first year. In the spring of 1630 a number of colonists with their families sailed from Texel, and on their arrival at Fort Orange were furnished with comfortable farm houses, stock, seeds and farming utensils. The land was leased at an annual rent payable in grain, beeves and wampum, or a share of the products. The proprietor received the title of Patroon and was invested with authority to administer justice either in person or by deputy, to appoint local officers and magistrates, to erect courts and take cognisance of all crimes committed within the Colony. He was allowed to keep a gallows for the execution of criminals, but if it fell during an execution, another could only be erected for another criminal. In matters affecting life or limb, and where the amount in dispute was more than twenty dollars, the charter allowed the right of an appeal from the local courts to the Director General and Council at Fort Amsterdam, but the local authorities required of all settlers a promise never to avail themselves of this privilege. As already intimated, farms were located in the vicinity of Fort Orange, and every facility offered for the establishment of colonists. At the close of harvest every farmer was required to report the amount of grain he had for sale, and if the agents of the Patroon did not wish to purchase it, he was at liberty to sell it elsewhere. The same rule prevailed respecting cattle. The Patroon was required to erect and keep in repair a mill, and the settlers in turn were required to take their corn there for grinding. No person was allowed to hunt or fish within the limits of the Colony without a license, and if any real estate was for sale it must first be offered to the Patroon, and in case a person died intestate his property reverted to the "lord of the manor." The Colony gradually increased, and in a few years quite a hamlet arose in the vicinity of Fort Orange, called the Fuyck or Beversfuyck, and afterwards for many years Beverswyck, by which name the City of Albany was called until 1664. One of the most important aims of the founders of Rensselaerwyck was to secure the trade in furs with the Indians. To accomplish this all foreign and unlicensed traders were excluded. The Patroon and his partners were the only privileged importers of European merchandise, and the settlers were bound under oath not to purchase any peltries from the Indians without being duly licensed. Many of the settlers subsequently obtained license to engage in this trade, but all furs must be brought to the Patroon's magazine to be sent over to Holland to him, he retaining half of the profits as his share. A change was subsequently made so that the Patroon received only the sixth beaver, and one guilder on each of the remaining five-sixths. This system produced competition, and the price of peltries increased nearly one hundred per cent. About the year 1640, the inhabitants of Rensselaerwyck, perceiving the avidity of the Mohawks for fire-arms, and that they willingly paid twenty beavers for a musket and twelve guilders for a pound of powder, desired to share in so profitable a trade. The consequence was that large quantities of the munitions of war were furnished them, thus enabling them to become a terror to all surrounding tribes.

The winter of 1645-6 was unusually long and severe. The Hudson River closed the 24th of November, and remained frozen about four months. A very high freshet occurred in the spring, causing considerable damage. Among the remarkable occurrences mentioned in the annals of the "old Colonie" at this time, was the appearance in the river of "A certain fish of considerable size, snow-white in color, round in the body, and blowing water out of its head. What it portended, 'God the Lord only knew,' for "at the same instant that this fish appeared to us we had the first thunder and lightning this year." Scarcely had the public astonishment subsided when another monster of the deep, forty feet in length, and of a brown color, with fins in his back, and ejecting water like the other, came up the river. Some seafaring people at length pronounced the animal a whale. It shortly after grounded on an island at the mouth of the Mohawk, and the people turned out in great numbers to secure so valuable a prize. Though a large amount of oil was obtained, the river was covered with grease for three weeks, and the air was infected with the smell of the decaying animal for several miles around. Several other whales grounded in the river further down, during the same season.

Mills, propelled by wind or water, were erected in various places to grind corn and saw lumber. A mill run by horse power was erected in 1646, of which the following is a contract, dated Jan. 31 :

“The mill situate on Fifth Kil being to the great damage of the Patroon and inhabitants of the Colonie for a considerable time out of repair, or unfit to be worked, either by the breaking of the dam, the severity of the winter, or the high water or otherwise; besides being out of the way, to the prejudice of the inhabitants in going and returning, a contract, after being duly proposed to the Court, is therefore made with Pieter Cornelissen to build a horse mill in the Pine Grove, whereby not only the Colonie but also, if so be, the navigators who come hither may be encouraged to provide themselves with other things. Pieter Cornelissen shall complete the work for fl.300 ($120,) I furnishing him fl.200 in stones, two good horses, the expense of which is to be divided between us, half and half. The standing work, plank, labor and other expenses we shall defray in common, bearing, each equal profit and loss. On the completion of the mill, and on its being ready to go, Pieter Cornelissen shall work one day for himself and the other day for the Patroon, and so forth, the Patroon paying him one Rix dollar for his day. Should it happen as we expect that so great a demand shall arise, so that the mill will not supply all the Colonie or strangers, then P. Cornelissen is alone authorized and privileged to erect in company with the Patroon, another such mill on these or such other conditions as are now, or shall hereafter be agreed on. Signed,

PIETER CORNELISSEN.”

A mill worked by horses, formerly stood on the lot at the north-east corner of Hudson and Grand streets, in Albany. A mill also stood on the Rutten Kil in 1646. A brewery was erected in the same quarter previous to 1637, with the exclusive right to supply retail dealers with beer. Private individuals were allowed the right to brew all that was required for their own use.

The following sentence of banishment pronounced upon one of the colonists in 1644, will show how justice was administered at that early day.

“By the President and Council of the Colonie of Rensselaerwyck:—Having heard the free confession of Adriaen Willemssen at present in confinement, to-wit: That he on Saturday last, the 6th of August, at the house of the Patroon, where the Commissary-General, Arendt Van Curler resides, climbing in through the window of said house, stole seven beavers and at noon of the following Monday, eight beavers and one drieling, (third of a skin,) also that on Saturday aforesaid he had stolen from the cellar of said house a half skin which remained. And having moreover examined the demand of the prosecutor against the aforesaid delinquent observing what appertains thereto; we have hereby ordered and adjudged, and do order and adjudge that the said delinquent shall be taken to the public place where justice is executed, and there be ignominiously tied to a post for the space of two hours, with some of the stolen property on his head; after which he shall prostrate himself at the feet of the Worshipful Magistrates and beg of God and justice for forgiveness, that he moreover shall be henceforward and forever banished out of this Colonie, and never more return thereto. Done in Collegio, this 13th day of August, anno 1644. By order of their Worships the President and Council of this Colonie of Rensselaerwyck.

ARENDT VAN CURLER."

By the surrender of the Colony to the English in 1664, the personal rights of the colonists were secured, and a new charter was granted to the Patroon, restricting his civil power but confirming the relations between landlord and tenant. The feudal tenures were abolished in 1787.

The leasehold tenures from an early period excited discontent among the tenants. The late Patroon had by his indulgence secured their regard, and when he died, in 1837, there was considerable anxiety as to the course that would be pursued by his successor. In his Will he had given the east part of the Manor to his son, William P. Van Rensselaer, of New York, and the west part to his son Stephen. A committee of respectable citizens appointed by the tenants waited upon him to confer upon subjects of mutual interest, but they were treated with coldness and disdain. This did not serve to relieve their anxiety, and they began to consult together to devise some plan to throw off the burden which they had so long borne. Associations were formed and delegates appointed to meet and deliberate for the general welfare. These local societies soon became known as Anti-rent Associations, and the feeling of opposition to the payment of the rent became so strong as to manifest itself in open resistance to the process of collection. A secret organization was formed extending through several counties. It was composed of men who were pledged to appear in disguise, armed and ready to protect the tenants from arrest and guard their property from execution. Whenever the Sheriff appeared in one of the disaffected towns, a troop of men in fantastic calico dresses, with faces masked or painted to resemble Indians, armed with guns, pistols, swords, tomahawks &c., and generally on horseback, would gather around him or hover near and warn him by threats to desist from the service of any process. In 1844-5 large numbers of men were accustomed to meet in Albany and other counties, disguised, and listen to speeches and pass resolutions. The leaders assumed the names of distinguished Indian chiefs, and the highways became familiar with their whoops and antics. Under such circumstances a conflict between them and the authorities became inevitable. In some instances the military were called out to aid in enforcing the law. Citizens who disapproved of their conduct were subjected to insult in the streets and at their homes. Bad men, under cover of the disguise, took occasion to gratify their passions and to seek redress for private grievances. A rude system of telegraphing existed in the towns, and gave warning of the approach of an officer, when from all parts disguised men came flocking in. In 1844 the Legislature passed a law imposing severe penalties upon persons who should appear in public armed and in disguise. The Anti-rent feeling at length manifested itself in political action, and in 1846 John Young, the candidate of the Anti-renters, was elected Governor over Silas Wright, the opposing candidate. The Constitution of 1846 abolished all feudal tenures and incidents, and provided that no lease or grant of agricultural lands in which shall be reserved any rent or service of any kind, shall be valid for a longer period than twelve years. Since that time a considerable portion of the leased land has been conveyed in fee.

The following description of the Helderbergh Hills, is taken from an article written by Verplanck Colvin, and published in Harper's Magazine for October, 1869:

"The Helderberghs, a line of small mountains, form not the least of the mountain systems of New York. They are a long, angular range of solid blue limestone cliffs, running nearly east and west. 'Helderbergh' is a Dutch corruption of the old German Helle-berg, meaning 'Clear Mountain.' Though plainly visible, and but ten or fifteen miles from the ancient City of Albany, few of its citizens appear even to know of their existence, let alone their traditions and their beauties. The Susquehanna Railroad trains, as they leave Albany crowded with tourists bound for Sharon Springs, the beauteous Susquehanna River Valley, or distant Pennsylvania, are forced to follow the wall-like precipices facing the Helderbergh almost along their whole extent, far to the north and west, before they are able to climb it. It is its romantic wooded rock scenery, dark caverns and spray waterfalls, its varied landscape and accessible mountain grandeur, that render the Helderbergh interesting to artist, author, poet, tourist or rusticator.

"Taking an early train on the Susquehanna Railroad, and stopping at Guilderland Station, brings one within a mile of the Indian Ladder Gap. Even from that distance the mountain spurs are visible. A scarcely discernible zig-zag ascending line, not unressembling a military siege-approach, shows the Indian Ladder Road, crawling up the mountain and along and beneath the precipices. But you should not return without mementoes of your visit. Carry then a satchel, unless you have capacious pockets, for curiosities will meet you on every side. Besides the fossil medals of creation—petrifications and minerals—the collector will find a thousand objects of interest. If he have keen eyes he may note some curious grafts, great hemlocks on huge pine trees, perhaps of Indian handicraft. Large slow worms, unknown lizards, insects, perhaps black snakes, toads and eels, mingled in strange confusion, swarm amidst the rocks. The place was once renowned for the multitude, size and venom of its rattlesnakes. The damp, thick woods of oak, hickory, red (slippery) elm, basswood (linden), butternut, ash, beech and birch, with white pine, hemlock, and some spruce, give color to the scenery, heightened by the green, graceful frondage of the scarlet-fruited sumac, the trailing cordage of the wild grapevines, and the numberless other rare wild plants, annuals, biennials, perennials, everywhere luxuriant.

“What is this Indian Ladder, so often mentioned? In 1710 this Helderbergh region was a wilderness; nay, all westward of the Hudson River settlements was unknown. Albany was a frontier town, a trading post, a place where annuities were paid and blankets exchanged with Indians for beaver pelts. From Albany over the sand-plains—Schen-ec-ta-da (pine barrens) of the Indians—led an Indian trail westward. Straight as the wild bee or the crow, the wild Indian made his course from the white man's settlement to his own home in the beautiful Schoharie Valley. The stern cliffs of these hills opposed his progress; his hatchet fells a tree against them, the stumps of the branches which he trimmed away formed the rounds of the Indian Ladder. That Indian trail, then, led up this valley, up yonder mountain slope, to a cave now known as the ‘Tory House.’ The cave gained that name during the Revolution. The trail ended in a corner of the cliffs where the precipice did not exceed 20 feet in height. Here stood the tree—the old Ladder. In 1820 this ancient ladder was yet in daily use. There are one or two yet living who have climbed it. Greater convenience became necessary, and the road was constructed during the next summer. It followed the old trail up the mountain. The ladder was torn away and a passage through the cliffs blasted for the roadway. The rock-walled pass at the head of the road is where the Indian Ladder stood.

“You have followed the rapid brook up the valley, through the shadowy woods, and have reached a little prairie—an opening surrounded almost on every side by the great mountain slopes which rise grandly to the impregnable cliffs walling the summits. This spot was known as the 'Tory Hook,' or Plat, and in days gone by was their rendezvous—a lone, sequestered glade of the savage forest. Above you, in front, and to right and left, is a colossal natural amphitheater, the long, wooded slopes rising tier on tier to the base of the circling precipices. Two rocky gorges, which ascend like the diverging aisles of an amphitheater, part the wilderness of green. Towering above the uppermost tree-tops are the gray, battlement-like cliffs. Many a dark opening, gloomy recess, and inaccessible ledge can be seen which human foot has never trod; once, probably, the pathway and home of that blood-thirsty savage, the nimble and stealthy footed cougar. Two lofty waterfalls stream down, milk white, from the cliff-top at the head of each dry, rock-filled gorge. Your way lies to the right, up the gorge, to the smaller of the two falls. Following the stream and entering the opposite woods you commence the ascent of the gorge. At length you reach what may be termed the foot of the gorge. The stream rushes down in a number of little cascades—above it is lost amidst the huge rocks. From the brink of the dark cliff drops a spray-white stream, about eighty feet, unbroken. Lost for a moment to sight, it issues from a rocky basin, and ripples down in two streams brightly over a series of little stone steps. Suddenly the smooth descent ceases; the rock drops perpendicularly fifteen or eighteen feet. Down the face of this wall dash two little cascades; they fall upon another series of the miniature rock steps, and, glittering and shining like a magic stream of crystal, hurry down to lose their waters among the huge rocks of the gorge; lost for a thousand feet of that dread mountain slope ere coming forth to light again as the stream in the valley below. At last beneath the precipice you stand in the cool shadow of the dark-dripping rocks, at the foot of the falls, the top of the gorge. This is the Small Fall, sometimes called the 'Dry Falls.' The latter name you will hardly appreciate should you visit it when swollen by recent rains. Below (and on the cliffs above) this fall is one of the best localities for Helderbergh fossils or petrifications. Among these fossil shells of ancient seas are many peculiar to the Helderberghs.

"When, years ago, Lyell, in his geological travels, visited these hills, he was struck with amazement. It seemed a new, a forgotten world. There is a stratum of the cliff rock, sometimes fifty feet in thickness, entirely composed of one variety of fossil shell—the Pentamerus galeatus—the shells massed together in a way astounding. This, once the shell-covered bed of an ocean, is now a portion of a mountain cliff. It is this that gives such interest to Helderbergh precipices, more than to basalt palisades, or even dread Wall-Face of the Adirondacks.

“Along beneath the cliffs runs a narrow path. The debris of the mountain drops on one side (a steep wooded slope); on the other the overhanging precipice forms a wall. Westward, this path leads to the Indian Ladder road; and, going that way, you pass a curious spring. At the base of the cliff is a dark opening, about three feet high by six or eight in width, narrowing inward. From the dark interior of the cliff a clear, sparkling stream issues, constant summer and winter.

“Eastward the path leads to the ‘Big,’ ‘Mine Lot,’ or ‘Indian Ladder Falls.’ Suddenly you turn a corner of the cliff and pause in admiration of the scene before you. From the edge of the overhanging precipice, more than an hundred feet above your head, streams down a silvery rope of spray, with a whispering rush, sweeping before it damp, chilly eddies of fugitive air, that sway the watery cable to and fro. Back beneath the rocky shelf, from off which the fall precipitates its unceasing stream, is a black, cavernous semi-circle of rock, its gloomy darkness in deep contrast with the snow-white fall. Below, to the left, the woods are swept away to the base of the mountains, and in their place a wild and desolate descent of broken rocks falls sharply—rendered more savage to the eye by the shattered trunks of dead trees mingled. Back of the fall, at the base of the precipice, is a low, horizontal cavity in the rock, from four to six feet in height, fifty or sixty feet in length, by fifteen feet in depth. Stooping and clambering in over a low heap of rubbish—probably the old waste of the mine—you enter. Mine, strictly, there is none; but the marks of mining implements and the excavation show that operations of some kind have been carried on. Here is a massive vein of iron pyrites (bisulphide of iron), fine-grained and solid, and well suited for sulphuric acid manufacture. The bed or vein of pyrites has evidently been much thicker, but it has decomposed, a yellow oxyd of iron and sulphate of lime (gypsum) resulting. Long years ago wild stories were told about this mine and its workers; of two strange, taciturn, foreign men who frequented the spot, who kept their mouths shut, and minded their own business in a way astonishing and irritating to the country people around. Nay, more incomprehensible, they lived there beneath those silent rocks, and often in dark nights, strange lights were seen flashing and moving among the dangerous precipices—wild, heathenish shouts and noises heard among the cavernous recesses of the cliffs. At times, in the misty haze of early morning, they had been met upon the road with heavy packs upon their sturdy shoulders, wending their way toward some mart, and all who saw them, muttered ‘a good riddance.’ But suddenly some night-lights would again be seen flashing far above the farm-houses, among the gloomy, night-hidden rocks. At length they vanished, never to return. The object of their labors is unknown, the ruinous remains of a stone structure resembling a vat, said to be of their construction, yet exists. It is called 'The Leach.' The mine is known as the 'Red Paint Mine,' and it is asserted that the miners were engaged in the manufacture of a red paint from the yellow, ochery oxyd of iron there existing. How they managed it seems now among the lost arts.

"You may reach the cliff top from here by going further east, where the precipices decrease in hight. Search till you find the ascent to a narrow ledge that leads to a square embrasure-like break in the cliff; it seems as though a huge block, twenty feet square, had been quarried out. In one corner you will discover the crumbling fragments of a tree-ladder; it cannot exceed twenty-five feet to the summit. Ascend and you will have an idea of the Indian Ladder. Westward now, along the cliff-tops, back towards the falls again, and the Indian Ladder road. You reach the stream which forms the Big or Mine Lot Fall, and, stepping through the bushes which obscure your view, stand upon the verge of the precipice. To your left, from the lowest ledge below, the fall leaps the cliff brink, and pours in a steady stream.

"It is grand, thus reclining on the cliff brink, to view the wide spread landscape to the north of the mountains—the joint basin of the Hudson and the Mohawk—a deep valley, more than sixty miles in width. From here you see a wide-spread level country, a true basin, bounded by distant mountain chains. You see nearest, the deep savage valley, with shades predominating, mountain walled; the checkered fields and woods beyond, in vast perspective; the distant white farm houses and the red barns, and half forest-hidden steeple of the village church—all vanishing in hazy distance; last, the blue, rugged outline of the northern granite mountains, a bright sky, flecked with feathery cirro-oumuli, ever changing, lit with a rich, warm, mellow North American sun-light, brighter than which cannot shine either in Italy or on South Sea palm groves.

"The cliff measured by cord and plummet, is here about 126 feet in hight; that of the waterfall may be estimated at 116 feet. Amidst the bushes back from the falls is a deep, narrow crevice. A stone dropped in rattles and clatters and hops till lost to hearing. To what gloomy cavern is this the sky-light? Such crevices account for the numerous springs at the cliff base. The rock must be ramified with caverns.

“Leaving the fall, westward again, along the cliff tops, brings you to the Small Fall and a road; following this you come out upon another road. Look to your right; that deep, angular cut through the rock is the Pass, the head of the Indian Ladder road. Descend the defile; you are below the cliffs again, in gloomy shadow. Here stood the Indian Ladder. As you descend the road the cliffs increase in height, and the Dome, a mantle-piece-like projection, fairly overhangs and threatens it. Climb the debris beneath the Dome and you will find a path. Follow it. It leads to a cave, the resort of Tories and Indians during the Revolution.

“The ‘Tory House’ is a large circular or semi-circular cavity in the cliff, just above the road, a good view of which it commands. It is a single room, perhaps twenty-five or thirty feet in diameter, open on one side. Here Jacob Salisbury, a notorious royalist spy, is said to have been captured, about the time that Burgoyne was marching his army towards the now historic plains of Saratoga.

“Within thirty miles of the Indian Ladder, one may count twenty caverns, large and small. Sutphen’s Cave, near the Indian Ladder, is reached by descending a narrow crevice through the rock, to a ledge a few inches wide. Along this you crawl, the cliff above and below you. Reaching a chill recess, beneath overhanging cliffs, you are at the cave entrance. A short distance in, after wading at one place knee-deep, icy cold, the cave becomes spacious, and you reach a deep, clear body of water. One of these savage, rock-filled gorges descends from this cave’s mouth, down the water-worn mountain slope. Westward, among the cliffs, above the village of Knowersville, is Livingston’s Cave, a small, dry and romantic cavern.

“At Clarksville, twelve miles from Albany, are more caves. Two of these are well known; the entrance of one is in the back-yard of one of the village houses. The subterranean river is the house well; a pair of steps lead down into a crevice in the rock. They have no other water. For drinking it is unsurpassed. This same river bursts forth near by, in the bed of the Oniskethau, and aids that stream to run a saw-mill. Chaff thrown upon the river in the cave is soon found floating on the mill pond.

“These two caves are said to be respectively one-eighth and one-half a mile in length. They should not be called two caves, however, for the ‘river’ seems to flow from one to the other. The smaller cave is dry and airy, and has some spacious corridors. Squeezing your way down through the narrow entrance, you reach a sort of room, faintly lit with the few white rays of daylight which glimmer down through the entrance. You light your lanterns, and the red flame guides your footsteps. A short way through a narrow passage and you ascend into a lofty chamber—the ‘Room of the Gallery.’ That dark hole plunging downward to the right is the continuation of the cave; descend and turn in at and climb the first side passage to your left, and you will reach the ‘Gallery.’ There are other large rooms and corridors in this cave, but there are few stalactites or stalagmites, if any. A singular feature of the cave are the water-worn pot-holes in the rock ceiling. Every one knows that rational, common-sense brooks or rivers of the surface world, make them according to law of gravitation, in their water-worn beds. Here natural laws seem laughed to scorn; and these pot-holes, as though from very perverseness, are set inverted in the roof. They were formed undoubtedly when the cave was filled with water, whirling and rushing against the roof. A narrow passage leads to the extremity of the cave. Where it enlarges is a steep and rather slippery descent to water. This is called by some a lake; the rock-roof comes so close to the surface that its lateral extent can not be seen. The water is very clear and still, and increases in depth, gradually, off the shore.

“The ‘Half-mile Cave’ is about a quarter of a mile from the hotel in Clarksville. This cave is often visited, and has a large, wooden, cellar-like door, and wet, slippery steps, which lead in winter down into warm, steaming darkness. Now go down the dark hole on your right; it is a steep descent. You are in darkness again, and your light but feebly illuminates the place. There is a sickening damp warmth; it is not unlike a charnel house, a catacomb. You may have a mile or more of clambering in and out from this cave. There are long passages where you might drive a team of horses and a wagon; narrow, muddy passages in profusion; bats overhead and fluttering past you everywhere. On all sides you hear them squeaking and chattering and grinding with their teeth; it is horrid. If you determine to see the end of the cave and the lake, and are not afraid of mud and low, flat passages, you will go further. Again the cavern enlarges; a black emptiness is before you. Approach. You stand upon the shores of ‘Styx.’ A vaulted roof of dripping rock, a silent, echoing cavity, scarcely illuminated by dim lantern-light. Unruffled are the still, deep waters, green, though clear.

“Often the roads on the summit of the Helderberghs are of solid, level rock; the mountain top is a plateau smooth as a table. In places the rock is jointed and in small blocks, and resembles a Belgian pavement; again it changes, and a singular sight meets your eyes. The rock plateau is split by numberless parallel crevices. The sutures between the long blocks or trunks of stone, are often twenty feet or more in depth, though sometimes choked with rubbish, and generally six, eight or ten inches wide. On the mountain, above the village of New Salem, these clefts extend perfectly parallel for miles. At times rectangular or diagonal sutures cross the main ones; then the rock is cut in blocks a yard square on the surface; downward, twenty feet, more or less, it is a pillar. Near Clarksville, on the slope of Copeland Hill, the clefts are two, three, or four feet wide; sometimes black, bottomless looking pits, unexplored. Below are often other subterranean rivers, flowing no one knows where from or whither.

“But there is not space to mention everything of interest in this forgotten range of hills—the numerous waterfalls and caverns and mountain-split gulfs.”

In December 1869 Mr. Springsted sold his interest to his partner, Thomas McKee, the present editor and proprietor.

The record of this County during the Rebellion bears a favorable comparison with that of other counties in the State. The news of the fall of Fort Sumter was received with a profound sensation; party zeal was forgotten and the people generally vied with each other in demonstrations of loyalty and devotion to the country. Recruiting offices were immediately opened and volunteers were rapidly enlisted. On the evening of April 15th, Captain John Lawless, at the head of a company of volunteers, marched to the Capitol and tendered their services in defense of the Union. The Common Council of the City recommended that an appropriation of $30,000 be made for the families of volunteers, and an installment of $5,000 was immediately set apart for that purpose. They also tendered the Industrial School building for the use of the soldiers gathering at this point. The east wing of the Albany Hospital, with its dispensary, was devoted, by its directors, to the use of the State Medical Department. Funds were raised by private subscription for the families of volunteers, and large contributions of provisions and clothing were made to meet the immediate necessities of the volunteers. The ladies of the City instituted a relief association, which contributed greatly to the comfort of the soldiers in camp and hospital. On the 22d of July it was officially reported that $18,350 had been expended from the public sources, and the private contributions greatly exceeded that amount.

The Twenty-fifth Regiment of the uniformed Militia of the State tendered their services to the Government and were ordered to Washington to serve until relieved by other regiments. The Regiment was commanded by Col. Michael K. Bryan; Lieut. Col. James Swift; Major David Friedlander. It left Albany, April 22, amid a crowd of anxious spectators and friends assembled to bid them farewell. The Regiment numbered between five and six hundred when it left Albany, but was joined by the Burgess Corps, in Washington, about the first of May. It arrived in Washington the 29th of April, being the fifth regiment that reached that city. May 23 they were ordered to Arlington Heights, where they encamped on the 24th, and soon after commenced the erection of a fort which, in honor of their City, they called Fort Albany. About twenty acres of woodland were cleared in the vicinity of the Fort. The Regiment remained in the service until August 4, when it was mustered out. The patriotism manifested at the commencement of the war was continued with few exceptions to its close, the people showing themselves worthy of their Revolutionary sires.

GAZETTEER OF TOWNS.

ALBANY CITY, named from the Duke of York and Albany, to whom the Province was granted, was incorporated by patent, July 22, 1686, having previously enjoyed divers rights and privileges under the names of Beverwyck, William Stadt and Albany. It was also called by the Dutch, New Orange. The first officers were Peter Schuyler, Major; Isaac Swinton, Recorder; Robert Livingston, Clerk; Jan Bleecker, Chamberlain; Richard Pretty, Sheriff; James Parker, Marshall. The original charter conveyed municipal jurisdiction over the territory bounded east by the low water mark on the Hudson, south by a line drawn from the southernmost end of the pasture at the north end of Martin Gerritsen's Island, and running back due north-west, sixteen miles into the woods, to a certain creek called Sandkil; north by a line parallel to the former, about a mile distant, and west by a straight line drawn from the western extremities of the north and south lines. This charter embraced the right to certain public buildings and fields, the ferry, all waste land within their boundaries, the right of fishing in the Hudson within the limits of the County, and of purchasing of the Indians 500 acres of meadow land at "Schaatcogue" on the north, and 1,000 acres at "Tionnonderoga," (Fort Hunter,) on the west, in the Mohawk country, on which to plant, colonies as barriers against hostile incursions. The quit rent was fixed at one beaver skin, payable annually at Albany, on the 25th of March, forever.

The part of the City north of Patroon and Quackenboss Streets, known as the Colonie, was incorporated March 31, 1791, and again March 30, 1801. It was made a village April 9, 1804, and was organized as a town April 11, 1808. The town was divided and merged in Albany and Watervliet, Feb. 25, 1815. In 1870 a portion of Watervliet was annexed to Albany, as was also a small portion of Bethlehem on the south.

The City lies upon the west bank of the Hudson River, a little north of the center of the County, and, until a few months since, embraced a strip of land about a mile wide, extending thirteen and a half miles in a north-west direction, to the north boundary of the County. The last Legislature set off that portion of the City lying north-west of a point near where the road crosses the City line into Guilderland, on to Watervliet.

A narrow interval of low land lies along the course of the river, bounded by steep banks from 150 to 250 feet high, where a barren region commences, rising towards the west and broken by numerous sand hills and ridges. The banks which form the declivities of this tract are separated into several distinct ridges by the deep gulleys worn in the clay by the streams which flow through them. The soil, except near the river, is a light sand, producing very little without the aid of costly fertilizers.

The Erie Canal terminates at this place, opening into a large basin and thence into the river. The eastern termini of the N. Y. Central, Rensselaer & Saratoga and Albany & Susquehanna Railroads are in this City. The Boston & Albany, Hudson River, Harlem and Troy & Greenbush Railroads are connected with the City by a substantial bridge.

Albany is the largest barley market in the United States, immense quantities of this grain being manufactured into malt and beer. It is an extensive lumber market, a vast amount of which is transported hither from the north and west.

"The Lumber District" is along the canal, above the Little Basin, where extensive wharves and slips have been constructed to facilitate the transfer of lumber from canal boats to vessels, upon which it is transported down the river. The manufactures of the City are varied and extensive, embracing agricultural implements, steam engines, carriage and car factories, iron foundries, machine shops, breweries, type and stereotype foundries, lithographs, picture frames, pianos, and almost everything to be found in any city of the size in the United States. The stove foundries and breweries are very extensive. Bricks are also extensively manufactured.

The City is supplied with water from works erected at public expense, the water being obtained from several creeks west and north of the City. The main reservoir, Rensselaer Lake, is five miles west of the City Hall and has an elevation of 262 feet above the river. It covers thirty-nine acres and has a capacity of 180,000,000 gallons. A brick aqueduct conveys the water to Bleeker Reservoir, on Patroon Street, where it is distributed to the portion of the City west of Pearl Street. This Reservoir has a capacity of 30,000,000 gallons. The lower portion of the City is supplied from Tivoli Reservoir, on Patroon Creek, covering twenty acres and having a capacity of 30,000,000. These works are under the control of a Board of Water Commissioners, and the rents are charged to property owners and collected with the taxes. The receipts from the Water Works for the year ending Nov. 1, 1869, were $127,427.59. The original cost of the Works was $850,000.

The State buildings at Albany are the Capital, State Hall, State Library, Geological and Agricultural Hall, Normal School and State Arsenal.

The Capitol was commenced in 1803 and finished in 1807 at the joint expense of the City and County of Albany and the State of New York. The original cost was over $120,000, of which $34,200 was paid by the City and $3,000 by the County of Albany. It was used for County, City and State offices until 1832, when it was fitted up for legislative and other public purposes. It stands at the head of State Street, 130 feet above the Hudson, and has in front a park of three acres, enclosed by an iron fence. It is built of stone, faced with Nyock Red Freestone. The building contains the Assembly Chamber, the Senate Chamber, Court of Appeals, and various other rooms for the Executive and Legislative Departments of the Government.

The State Library is a fire-proof building in the rear of the Capitol, and connected with it by a corridor. It is constructed of brick and iron, and faced on its two fronts with brownstone. It was erected in 1853-4 and cost nearly $100,000. It was opened to the public, Jan. 2, 1855. The first story is devoted to the Law Library, and the second to the General Library. The latter contains a large number of costly presents from other Governments, a valuable series of manuscripts and parchments relating to our Colonial and early State history, and an extensive collection of coins and medals, both ancient and modern. The General Library embraces about 50,000 volumes, and the Law Library about 20,000. The Library is open from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M., when any person is permitted to consult any work contained therein, but is not allowed to take books from the room.

The State Hall, located upon Eagle Street, fronting the Academy Park, is built of cut stone, with a colonnade in front, supported by six Ionic columns, and is surmounted by a dome. The building is 138 by 88 feet, and 65 feet high. The ceilings of the basement and two principal stories are grained arches, and all the rooms except the attic story are fire-proof. The basement and attic are each nineteen feet, and the other stories each twenty-two feet high. The building cost about $350,000. It contains the offices of the Secretary of State, Comptroller, Treasurer, Auditor of Canal Department, Canal Commissioners, State Engineer and Surveyor, Division Engineers, Clerk of Court of Appeals, Superintendent of Public Instruction, Superintendent of Bank Department, Attorney General, State Sealer of Weights and Measures and Insurance Department.

The State Geological and Agricultural Hall, corner of State and Lodge Streets, was erected in 1855. It is constructed of brick, and is four stories high besides the basement. The Agricultural Rooms were dedicated Feb. 12, 1857, and the Cabinet was opened to the public Feb. 22, 1858. The building contains a lecture room, the Geological Cabinet, the Museum of Natural History, and rooms for the officers of the various departments connected with the building. The Cabinet originated in the Geological Survey, and in extent and value ranks among the first in America. The Museum is designed to embrace a complete representation of the geological formations of the State, with their accompanying minerals and fossils, and of its entire native flora and fauna. The birds and quadrupeds are preserved by a skillful taxidermist, with the attitudes and appearance of life, and the reptiles and fishes are principally preserved in alcohol. Connected with this Cabinet is an historical and antiquarian department, embracing numerous aboriginal antiquities and specimens of modern Indian art, relics of battle-fields and other objects of historical interest. The whole is under the charge of a curator appointed by the Regents. The Museum of the State Agricultural Society, in a separate apartment of the building, contains a large collection of obsolete and modern implements of husbandry, specimens of agricultural and mechanical products, models of fruits, samples of grains and soils, and drawings illustrating subjects connected with the useful arts. These collections are open to the public every week day except holidays.

The State Normal School is located at the corner of Howard and Lodge Streets. The present building was erected in 1848 at a cost of $25,000. The school was established for the instruction and practice of teachers in the common schools of the State. The school is supported by an annual appropriation from the Literature Fund, and is under the immediate charge of an executive committee appointed by the Regents of the University.

The State Arsenal is a fine brick building situated on Eagle Street, corner of Hudson.

The City Hall is situated on Eagle Street, fronting the east end of Washington Avenue. It is a fine building, faced with Sing Sing marble, built at the joint expense of the City and County, and containing most of the City and County offices.

The City Building is a fine brick structure on South Pearl Street, corner of Howard. It is a new building and contains the office of the Capital Police Commissioners and several of the city offices. It is three stories high, with a Mansard roof, and cost about $150,000.

The Albany Exchange is a granite building situated on Broadway, at the foot of State Street. It contains the Post Office, the general office of the N. Y. C. R. R., and various other offices.

The Albany Academy is a fine brown stone structure fronting on Eagle Street. The main building is 70 by 80 feet, and three stories high including the basement. There are two wings 30 by 45 feet each. The building has a fine park in front, surrounded by a substantial iron fence, and is finely ornamented with trees and shrubbery. It cost about $100,000. The institution was incorporated by the Regents, March 4, 1813. The corner stone of the edifice was laid July 29, 1815, by Philip S. Van Rensselaer. The copper plate deposited on this occasion contained the following inscription: "Erected for an academy anno. 1815, by the corporation of the City of Albany; Philip S. Van Rensselaer, Mayor; John Van Ness Yates, Recorder; building committee, Philip S. Van Rensselaer, John Brinkerhoff, Chauncey Humphrey, James Warren and Killian K. Van Rensselaer. Seth Geer, architect; H. W. Snyder, sculpt." The Academy was completed in 1817, and opened Sept. 1 of the same year. T. Romeyn Beck was elected Principal, and continued to hold the office for thirty-one years.

The Albany Female Academy was established in 1814, under the designation of the Union School, which was located on Montgomery Street. The present edifice on North Pearl Street was erected in 1834. The building is in the Grecian style, with an Ionic portico. It has sustained a high reputation and is patronized by the best citizens of the City.

The Albany Medical College was incorporated Feb. 16, 1839.—It is located on Eagle Street. It had its origin in the efforts of Drs. March and Armsby to instruct the people in anatomy and physiology. Dr. March came from Massachusetts in 1820, and the next year commenced a course of lectures on anatomy to a class of fourteen. The prejudice against dissections was so great that he was compelled to bring his subjects from Boston, sometimes in his own private carriage. In 1825 he was appointed Professor in the Vermont Medical College at Castleton, and in 1830 he delivered a lecture on the propriety of establishing a medical college at Albany. In 1831 Dr. Armsby came to Albany as a student of Dr. March. He subsequently delivered lectures on anatomy, and aroused such an interest on the part of some of the citizens, that the building erected for a Lancasterian school was procured for the use of the Professors.

The first Professors were Alden March, J. H. Armsby, Amos Dean, E. Emmons, Henry Greene and D. M. McLochlin. The first class after the incorporation of the College, numbered 57. During the late war, 243 graduates of the College and five of the Faculty were volunteer surgeons in the service. For the purpose of establishing this institution, fifty citizens of Albany gave $1,000 each; fifty others $500 each, and fifty ladies $100 each. It has an extensive medical museum and a choice library of several thousand volumes. Two courses of lectures are delivered annually.

The Albany Law School was established in 1851. Two courses of lectures are delivered annually, in rooms attached to the Medical College. Graduates of this institution are admitted to practice in all the courts of the State.

The Young Men's Association was organized in 1833, and incorporated March 12, 1835. It supports a lecture course during the winter, and has a library of about 12,000 volumes. The Reading Room is supplied with the leading daily papers from all parts of the country, as well as a large number of weekly papers, periodicals and reviews, numbering in all about 100. The rooms are very pleasantly situated on State street, near Broadway, and are fitted up for comfort and convenience.

The Albany Institute, a society for the promotion of science and art, was incorporated Feb. 27, 1829, by the union of the Society of Arts and the Albany Lyceum of Natural History. It has three departments. The first is devoted to Physical Science and the Arts, the second to Natural History, and the third to History and General Literature. From October to May the Society meet semi-monthly at the Albany Academy. It has a valuable library and an extensive collection of minerals, and specimens of natural history. Prof. Henry, of the Smithsonian Institute, read his first scientific papers before this association, while a student in the Albany Academy.

The Albany City Hospital, situated on Eagle Street, corner of Howard, was incorporated April 11, 1849. It was founded by private subscription, and the present building was opened for the reception of patients August 8, 1854. This building was originally erected by the City for a jail.

St. Peter's Hospital, located on the corner of Broadway and North Ferry Streets, was founded by Mrs. Peter Cagger and daughter, in 1869. It has accommodations for 36 patients, and is under the charge of the Sisters of Mercy.

The Albany Orphan Asylum, located on Robin Street, between Washington Avenue and Great Western Turnpike, was incorporated March 30, 1831, though it had previously been in operation about two years. It was commenced as a private enterprise, and the building was erected by subscription and the product of several ladies' fairs. It is now supported by appropriations from the State, the interest on its endowment and the proceeds of an annual fair.

St. Vincent's Orphan Asylum was incorporated in 1849. The male department is situated on Western Avenue and is under the care of the Christian Brothers. The female department is on North Pearl Street and is under the care of the Sisters of Mercy.

The Dudley Observatory, located on an eminence in the north part of the City, was named in honor of Mrs. Blandina Dudley, who contributed liberally towards its establishment and endowment. It was incorporated April 2, 1852, and its management intrusted to fifteen trustees. The ground plan of the building is in the form of a cross, 84 feet in front and 72 feet deep. The center room is 28 feet square; the east and west wings are 26 feet square, and the north wing 40 feet square, divided into library and computing rooms. The Equatorial Room, which is in the second story, is of a circular form, 24 feet in diameter, the tower revolving upon iron balls. The main pier for the support of the equatorial was commenced six feet below the bottom of the cellar, with its base, fifteen feet square, resting on a bed of concrete and rubble sixteen inches in thickness. The size of the pier was gradually reduced to ten feet square at the level of the cellar, and continued upward without further variation. The whole is built in the most substantial manner, of large stone, well bedded. The piers in the transit rooms are six feet by eight, and each is furnished with clock piers of similar construction. The building is admirably arranged and furnished with some of the best instruments to be found in this country. It was dedicated Aug. 28, 1856, and placed under the charge of a scientific council to be employed by the coast survey. Hon. Edward Everett delivered an oration on the occasion. Mrs. Dudley contributed $76,500 towards the erection and endowment of the institution, and other citizens of Albany contributed liberally.

The Albany Alms House is located in the south-west part of the City. It includes the necessary buildings for the poor and the insane. The County as well as the City poor are supported at this place.

The Albany Industrial School for vagrant children was established in 1857. It was located near the Alms House. The building was subsequently used as a Soldiers' Home, but is at present unoccupied.

The New Capitol, the foundation of which is already laid, will stand in the rear of the old one and Congress Hall, between State Street and Washington Avenue, fronting the Park. Its extent north and south is 290 feet, and east and west 390 feet. There will be a carriage entrance under the portico of the east front. The main entrance floor will be reached by a flight of steps on the east front, leading to the entrance hall, which occupies an area of 60 by 74 feet, and a height of 25 feet. There will also be entrances to this floor from State Street and from Washington Avenue. Communicating directly with the main hall are two grand stairways, forming the principal means of communication with the second story. On the left of the main hall will be a suit of rooms for the Governor, his Secretary and Military Staff; on the right will be rooms for the Secretary of State and Attorney General, with a corridor leading to the Court of Appeals. On the second floor will be the Assembly Chamber, 75 by 92 feet, with a gallery on three sides, twenty feet in width. The Senate Chamber, upon the same floor, will be 55 by 75 feet, with a gallery similar to that of the Assembly. The State Library will occupy the east front of these two stories, and will be 283 by 54 feet. This will be the finest room in the whole building, and will doubtless be a place of resort for the Literati of the City and State. The main tower will be sixty-six feet square and 320 feet high. In the center of the building will be an open court, 137 by 92 feet. The foundation is laid on concrete, and is of large closely cut limestone, from two to six tons in weight, laid in regular courses. The entire weight of the structure will be about 150,000 tons. When completed according to the present plans it will be one of the finest public buildings in the United States, and far superior to any other State Capitol. The Commissioners for its erection are Hamilton Harris, J. V. L. Pruyn, O. B. Latham, J. S. Thayer, A. B. Cornell, W. A. Rice and James Terwilliger. Its cost is variously estimated at from $4,000,000 to $10,000,000.

The Hudson River Bridge at Albany, is a magnificent structure, and was formally opened for traffic on the first of March, 1866, two years having been occupied in its construction. The total length of the bridge and the approaches is 4,009 feet. Some idea of the magnitude of the work may be obtained from the following statement of its cost and the materials used in its construction:—

Lineal feet of piles,.....	165,000
Feet of timber, board measure,.....	2,500,000
Tons of iron,.....	430
Cubic yards of concrete,.....	4,000
Cubic yards of loose stone,.....	14,000

Cubic yards of masonry,..... 13,000
 The total cost including real estate, right of way, etc., was.....$1,150,000

It is the design to replace the present wood superstructure with iron, and have a double track. A new railroad bridge is to be built across the river near the old railroad ferry, the new bridge to be used for passenger trains and the present one for freight exclusively.

The Public Schools are under the control of a Board of Education, consisting of a president, secretary and twelve commissioners, four of whom are elected annually for three years. In 1795 an act passed the Legislature appropriating £20,000 annually for the term of five years, for school purposes. The proportion allotted to Albany County was £1,590 or $3,975. This was a long step towards our free school system.

In May 1785, a school was opened by Elihu Goodrich and John Ely. The Latin and Greek languages were taught, and the most useful branches of mathematics and the elementary branches. The hours of study were from 6 to 8, 9 to 12, 2 to 5 and 6 to 8. The terms were for Greek, Latin and Mathematics, 20 shillings; writing and ciphering, 16 shillings; reading and spelling, 12 shillings, to all of which, singing, "by the latest and most approved method," was added for 12 shillings.

For many years after the first settlement, the inhabitants were Dutch, and that was the language of the town. It was not until 1665 that an English school was taught. The following is a copy of a license by the Governor:—

"WHEREAS the teaching of the English Tongue is necessary in this Government, I have therefore thought fit to give license to John Shutte to be the English Schoolmaster at Albany. And upon condition that the said John Shutte shall not demand any more wages from each Scholar than is given by the Dutch to their Dutch Schoolmasters, I have further granted to the said John Shutte that he shall be the only English Schoolmaster at Albany. Given under my hand at Fort James in New York, the 12th day of October, 1665."
 "RICHARD NICOLS."

Albany was at first a mere trading post, but under the patronage of the Patroon quite a hamlet sprung up in the vicinity of the Fort, erected near the present steamboat landing, and called Fort Orange. It was a stockade, and for several years served the purposes for which it was designed. A larger fort was afterwards erected on the hill, near the site of St. Peter's Church, in State Street. A line of palisades extended from the Fort as far north as Steuben Street, and south to Hudson, extending on the east to the river. A more extended line of palisades was afterwards constructed, reaching to Hamilton Street on the south, and north to Orange Street. The following description of Albany in 1695 will give a good idea of its appearance :

"As the city of New York is the chief place of strength belonging to this province for its defense against those enemies who come by sea, so Albany is the principal consideration against those who come by land, the French and Indians of Canada. It is distant from New York 150 miles and lies up Hudson's River on the west side, on the descent of a hill from the west to the eastward. It is in circumference about six furlongs and hath therein about 200 houses, a fourth part of what there is reckoned to be in New York. The form of it is septangular, and the longest line, that which butts upon the river, running from the north to the south. On the west angle is the fort, quadrangular, stongly stockaded and ditched round, having in it twenty-one pieces of ordnance mounted. On the north-west side are two block-houses, and on the south-west as many; in the south-east angle stands one block-house; in the middle of the line from thence northward is a horned work, and on the south-east angle a mount. The whole city is well stockaded round, and in the several fortifications named are about thirty guns."

From a plan of Albany at that time there appears to have been six gates, two upon the Handlaers street, now Broadway, one upon North Pearl, one near the Fort, and two upon the east side; giving access to the river. There was also a church at the junction of Broadway and State Streets, and another upon the present site of the new City Building.

The first church organized in Albany was the Reformed Protestant Dutch. It was organized at a very early day, but the precise time is not known. In 1642 Rev. Johannes Megapolensis came out under the patronage of the Patroon, as pastor of this society. The conditions upon which he accepted the call to Rensselaerwyck were a free passage for himself and family; an outfit of 300 guilders ($120) and an annual salary of $440, twenty-two and a half bushels of wheat and two firkins of butter for the first three years; and if the Patroon was satisfied with his services he was to receive an additional sum of $80 per annum for another term of three years. His family consisted of a wife and four children. A house had been contracted for but was not completed on his arrival, though one was afterwards purchased for $120. The first church edifice was erected in 1643, it was 34 by 19 feet, and stood near Fort Orange, near the present site of the Albany & Susquehanna R. R. Depot. The furniture of the church consisted of a pulpit ornamented with a canopy, pews for the magistrates and the deacons, and nine benches for the congregation, the entire cost of which was $32. This house continued to accommodate the congregation until 1656, when a new one was erected in State Street, corner of Broadway. In 1652 Rev. Gideon Schaets came over to supply the pulpit at Albany, receiving a salary of $320, which was afterwards increased to $400, and again to $520. He retired in 1683. Rev. Mr. Niewenhuysen was a colleague of Mr. Schaets as early as 1671. In 1675 Rev. Nicholas Van Rensselaer arrived here and set up a claim, not only to the pulpit, but also to the Manor, but failed to obtain either. This caused some difficulty in the Colony, but it was finally referred to the Consistory of the Dutch Church at Albany, for decision. Collections were taken in the church for the support of the poor, and though they supported a poor house, the funds accumulated so that at one time there was more than 13,000 guilders in the treasury. This money was used to build the church and parsonage. Sometimes money was loaned to the Patroon, as the following note shows :

"I the undersigned, Anthonie de Hooges, have, on the part of the noble Patroon of the Colonie Rensselaerwyck, borrowed from the Diaconie of the aforesaid place, for the term of one year, to be repaid in cash at the option of the lenders with ten per cent interest per annum, the sum of three hundred guilders in seawan, whereof one hundred and twenty is in ordinary seawan, promising thankfully to produce at the aforesaid time, in stated specie aforesaid, to the Diaconie of the aforesaid place.

In testimony whereof, have I subscribed this Acte with mine own hand.
Actum R. Wyck, 9th May, 1647."

In 1656 a church was erected at the corner of Jonkers and Handlaers Streets, known now as State and Broadway. This church was built of stone and served the congregation until 1715, when another one was erected on the same site, similar in all respects except in size. The foundation was laid around the old one, and the walls were carried up, enclosing the old church, which was not removed until the new one was so near completion that services were suspended only three Sabbaths. The corner stone of the church erected in 1656 was laid by Rutger Jacobson, one of the magistrates, in presence of the authorities both of the town and Colonie, and of the assembled inhabitants. A temporary pulpit was at first erected for the use of the minister, but the settlers subscribed twenty-five beavers to purchase a more splendid one in Holland. The Chamber at Amsterdam added seventy-five guilders to this sum, on account of the beavers being greatly damaged, and "with a view to inspire the congregation with more ardent zeal," presented them the the next year, with a bell "to adorn their newly constructed little church." The Patroon and Co-directors subscribed 1,000 guilders, and 1,500 were appropriated from the fines imposed by the Court at Fort Orange, towards the erection of this church. The new church, erected in 1715, was furnished with the same pulpit that had been imported from Holland, and was retained in its place until the church was taken down in 1806. This pulpit was constructed of oak, octagonal in form, and about four feet high and three feet in diameter. The windows of the church contained the armorial bearings of several of the wealthy families of the City. The land upon which the church stood was sold to the City in 1805 for $5,000. The customs of the worshipers at this church would be regarded novel at this day. The men sat with their hats on during the service. The collections were taken up by means of a pole with a small bag and bell attached to it. In the midst of the sermon the Dominie would stop, the Deacons would rise up, take the implements for the collection, bring the poles to a perpendicular against the shoulder, and await an address from the Dominie, explaining the object of the collection. The Deacons would then present the bag, the little bell arousing the sleepy burghers, and after the collection was taken, the choir sang a hymn and the sermon was then concluded. The form of the collecting implements was such as to conceal the amount of the contribution, and sometimes on examination there proved to be a variety of coin unrecognized by the statute, anything that would fall into the bag with a chink answering the purpose. To rid themselves of this kind of contributions, the Deacons procured some open plates, but to their surprise, on presenting them to the honest burghers, some of them turned their backs in indignant scorn. The plates were however retained and have continued to this day. In those early days when the money in circulation consisted of beaver skins and wampum, and the wealth of the citizens was very small compared with the present, 225 guilders were sometimes taken up on the Sabbath, equal to ninety dollars.

The funeral ceremonies of the Dutch were quite singular. No person attended without a previous invitation. At the appointed hour they met at the neighboring houses or stoops until the corpse was brought out. Ten or twelve persons were appointed as pall bearers and took the bier. The clerk would then invite the gentlemen to fall into the procession. They returned from the grave to the house in the same order. Here they found the tables handsomely set and furnished with spiced wine, tobacco, pipes, candles, paper, &c. The conversation soon turned upon general subjects and the house of mourning soon became a house of feasting and merriment. Ladies never went to the grave except to that of a near relative. They would remain at the house, eat cakes and drink spiced wine until the return of the men, and then leave. The best room in the house was set apart as "the dead room," and was rarely opened except to be aired and cleaned. A bill of expenses for burying a church pauper amounted to about forty dollars, some of the most prominent items being for rum and beer. Wealthy citizens procured a cask of wine during their lifetime and preserved it for their funeral.

A conflict of jurisdiction arose between the officers of the garrison at Fort Orange and the agents of the Patroon. Director Stuyvesant claimed jurisdiction for the Fort over a circle the radius of which was equal to the range of a cannon shot, and estimated at about one hundred and fifty rods. As the hamlet of Beverwyck at this time [1651] was chiefly within that circuit, the authorities of Rensselaerwyck not only opposed this jurisdiction but claimed that the Fort stood upon the Patroon's land, and could have no jurisdiction outside of its walls. While the controversy was at its height, Jean Baptiste Van Rensselaer was elected one of the magistrates, and shortly after an order was issued for all the inhabitants to take the oath of allegiance to the Patroon and his representatives. The oath was as follows: "I promise and swear that I shall be true and faithful to the noble Patroon and Co-directors, or those who represent them here, and to the Hon. Director, Commissioners and Council, subjecting myself to the Court of the Colonie; and I promise to demean myself as a good and faithful inhabitant or Burgher, without exciting any opposition, tumult or noise; but on the contrary as a loyal inhabitant, to maintain and support, offensively and defensively against every one, the Right and Jurisdiction of the Colonie. And with reverence and fear of the Lord, and uplifting of both the first fingers of the right hand, I say—so truly help me God Almighty." On New Year's night, 1652, some soldiers sallied out and fired a number of shots at the Patroon's house. Several pieces of ignited wadding lodged upon the roof, which was of reeds, and set it on fire, and would have caused its destruction had not the inmates been on the alert. The next day a collision occurred between the soldiers and citizens, resulting in the severe beating of several children and others. The difficulties continued, and a placard was dispatched to Dyckman, the Commissary of the Fort, declaring that the jurisdiction of Fort Orange extended within a circumference of 600 paces of said Fort, "and in order that no man shall plead ignorance, we further charge our Commissary, after publication hereof, to erect on the aforesaid limits, north, south, and west of the aforesaid fortress, a post marked with the Company's mark, and to affix on a board nailed thereto a copy hereof." Within these bounds no house was to be erected except by the consent of the Director and Council, or those authorized to act for them. This violent and illegal act separated Beverwyck from the Colonie of Rensselaerwyck. It was in direct violation of the 6th article of the Charter, and was afterwards so acknowledged.

Killian Van Rensselaer, the first Patroon, died in 1647, leaving the property to his son Johannes, a minor. The management of the Colonie devolved upon the executors, who appointed Brant Arent Van Slechtenhorst, "Director of the Colonie, President of the Court of Justice and Superintendent of all the bouweries, farms, mills and other property belonging to the Patroon, at a salary of 750 florins ($300) per annum, to reckon from the date of his arrival out, together with a house, four milch cows, two horses, four morgens of tillage and four morgens of pasture land." He arrived in the Colonie in March 1648. From the commencement of establishing colonies by Patroons, the Directors of the Amsterdam Chamber became jealous of their existence and opposed their continuance. In the prosecution of their policy they endeavored to induce the Patroon of Rensselaerwyck to cede to them his rights, privileges and possessions, but failing to effect their object, they endeavored to circumscribe his jurisdiction as much as possible. Peter Stuyvesant, the Director-general on the part of the Amsterdam Chamber, and Brant Van Slechtenhorst, the representative of the Patroon, were the champions of the opposing interests. The former claimed to be supreme ruler of the whole country, irrespective of the special rights and feudal privileges granted to the Patroon. The latter recognized no authority within his limits except that of the Patroon and his legal representatives. He maintained that whatever orders might be issued by the Director-general, they were powerless unless indorsed by his commander and executed by the officers of his court. Under such circumstances it was not strange that in a very short time a collision occurred. On the 26th of April a copy of a proclamation, ordering a general fast to be observed on the first Wednesday in May, was received at Rensselaerwyck and strongly protested against by Van Slechtenhorst. This was not pleasing to Stuyvesant and he resolved to visit the Colonie, accompanied by a military escort, and correct the abuse. His arrival was greeted by a salute from the Patroon's artillery.

In 1749 Peter Kalm, a naturalist of one of the Swedish universities, visited this country for the purpose of making scientific investigations. In speaking of the means of transportation between Albany and New York, he says, all the yachts which ply between these two cities belong to Albany. "They go up and down the River Hudson, as long as it is open and free from ice. They bring from Albany boards or planks, and all sorts of timber, flour, pease and furs, which they get from the Indians or which are smuggled from the French. They come home almost empty and only bring a few merchandises with them, among which rum is the chief. This last is absolutely necessary to the inhabitants of Albany. They cheat the Indians in the fur trade with it; for when the Indians are drunk, they will leave it to the Albanians to fix the price of the furs. The yachts are pretty large and have a good cabin, in which the passengers can be commodiously lodged." * * * "The canoes which the yachts have along with them are made of a single piece of wood hollowed out; they are sharp at both ends, frequently three or four fathoms long and as broad as the thickness of the wood will allow. The people in it do not row sitting, but commonly a fellow stands at each end with a short oar in his hand, with which he governs and brings the canoe forward." "Battoes are another kind of boats which are much in use at Albany. They are made of boards of white pine. The bottom is flat that they may row the better in shallow water; they are sharp at both ends and somewhat higher towards the end than in the middle. They have seats in them and are rowed like common boats." In speaking of the water of the wells, Kalm says, "I found an abundance of little insects in it, which were probably monoculi." He says: "I think this water is not very wholesome for people who are not used to it, though the inhabitants of Albany who drink it every day, say they do not feel the least inconvenience from it." "The houses in this town are very neat and partly built with stones covered with shingles of the white pine. Some are slated with tiles from Holland, because the clay of this neighborhood is not reckoned fit for tiles. Most of the houses are built in the old way with the gable end towards the street; a few excepted which were lately built in the manner now used." "The street doors are generally in the middle of the houses, and on both sides are seats on which during fair weather the people spend almost the whole day, especially on those which are in the shadow of the houses. In the evening these seats are covered with people of both sexes, but this is rather troublesome, as those who pass by are obliged to greet everybody, unless they will shock the politeness of the inhabitants of this town. The streets are broad and some of them are paved, in some parts they are lined with trees. The streets upon the whole are very dirty because the people leave their cattle in them during the summer nights."

"The inhabitants of Albany are much more sparing than the English. The meat which is served up is often insufficient to satisfy the stomach, and the bowl does not circulate so freely as amongst the English. The women are perfectly well acquainted with economy: they rise early, go to sleep very late, and are almost over nice and cleanly in regard to the floor, which is frequently scoured several times in the week. The servants in the town are chiefly negroes. Some of the inhabitants wear their own hair, but it is very short, without a bag or queue, which are looked upon as the characteristics of Frenchmen; and as I wore my hair in a bag the first day I came here from Canada, I was surrounded with children, who called me Frenchman and some of the boldest offered to pull at my French dress.

“Their meat, and manner of dressing it, is very different from that of the English. Their breakfast is tea, commonly without milk. About thirty or forty years ago, tea was unknown to them, and they breakfasted either upon bread and butter or bread and milk. They never put sugar into the cup, but take a small bit of it into their mouths whilst they drink. Along with the tea they eat bread and butter, with slices of hung beef. Coffee is not usual here: they breakfast generally about seven. Their dinner is buttermilk and bread, to which they sometimes add sugar, and then it is a delicious dish for them; or fresh milk and bread; or boiled or roasted flesh. They sometimes make use of buttermilk instead of fresh milk, to boil a thin kind of porridge with, which tastes very sour, but not disagreeable in hot weather. To each dinner they have a great salad, prepared with abundance of vinegar and very little or no oil. They frequently eat buttermilk, bread and salad, one mouthful after another. Their supper is generally bread and butter, and milk and bread. They sometimes eat cheese at breakfast, and at dinner; it is not in slices, but scraped or rasped, so as to resemble coarse flour, which they pretend adds to the good taste of cheese. They commonly drink very small beer, or pure water.”

In 1789 a writer in the Gazette gives the following account of the condition and prospects of the City: “Every thinking man who takes a prospective view of this City and contemplates what it was seven or eight years ago, and what it now is, will be astonished at the improvements in the City and the increase of commerce, manufactures &c., since that period. Then some of the principal streets were shamefully neglected, without a pavement sufficient even for a foot passenger to walk on, without annoying himself with filth. We have a prospect, ere another year shall transpire, of seeing the principal streets not only comfortably, but elegantly paved. In addition to which the wharves have been repaired and enlarged and the City adorned with several new private buildings which would not disgrace some of the principal cities of Europe and would ornament any in America. At that period a competent English teacher was scarcely to be found. We now have an Academy which flourishes under the direction of Mr. Merchant, a gentleman who has always given such proofs of his abilities as to render encomium entirely superfluous. At that period not more than seventy, at the utmost calculation, shops and stores were kept in this City. Now we behold Market and State Streets crowded with stores, and rents in those streets enhanced to such a degree as to put houses out of reach of the considerable traders. Nor had we manufactories of any kind, but depended on importation entirely for every manufactured article. Now we see the citizens stimulated by motives of public spirit daily promoting them. Messrs. Stevenson, Douw & Ten Eyck have erected a nail factory, in which nails of every description are manufactured as cheap and pronounced to be superior to any imported. Much praise is also due to James Caldwell, of this City, merchant, for his spirited exertions in promoting the manufacture of tobacco of every description, snuff, mustard and chocolate, for which purpose he has at great expense, erected mills which are ranked among the first in America." The tobacco factory of Mr. Caldwell is described in the Gazette in 1790, as follows: "The buildings belonging to these works extend on a line along the front about 200 feet. That part which contains the machinery of the mills is forty-two feet front. One water wheel of three and a half feet wide with one and a half inches water, by an upright shaft, puts in motion the snuff mill, which consists of four mortars, sixteen rollers and a snuff bolt. A mustard mill with two large rollers, four mortars and stampers, a charcoal mill with a run of stones and cocoa roaster; an engine for cutting smoking tobacco; a machine for cutting tobacco for the snuff mill and a large grindstone for the use of the works. It likewise gives motion to an elegant colossal figure of a man, represented in the act of turning a winch, from which all the machinery apparently receives motion." On the 12th of July, 1794, these extensive works were entirely consumed by fire, together with stock to the value of $12,000 or $15,000. The entire loss was over $30,000. The works were soon after rebuilt.

The following is from the "Random Recollections of Albany." The writer is describing the appearance about the beginning of the present century: "Pearl Street was in those days the west end of the town, for there the town ended, and there resided some of the most aristocratic of the ancient burghers. There a little after sunrise, in a mild spring morning might be seen sitting by the side of their doors the ancient and venerable mynheers, with their little sharp cocked hats, or red-ringed worsted caps as the case might be, drawn tight over their heads. There they sat like monuments of a former age, still lingering on the verge of time, or like milestones upon a turnpike road solus in solo, or in simple English unlike anything I had ever seen before. But there they sat smoking their pipes in that dignified silence and with that phlegmatic gravity, which would have done honor to Sir Walter Van Twiller, or even to Puffendorf himself. The whole line of the street, on either side was dotted by the little clouds of smoke that issued from their pipes and after curling round their noddles, rose slowly up the antique gables and mingled with the morning air, giving beauty to the scene and adding an air of life to the picture. But the great charm was in the novelty of the thing. I had seen a Dutch house before, but never till then had I seen a row of Dutchmen smoking in a Dutch City. Albany was indeed Dutch in all its moods and tenses, thoroughly and inevitably Dutch, in style, attitude and aspect. The people were Dutch, the houses were Dutch and even the dogs were Dutch. If any confirmation were wanting as to the origin and character of the place, it might be found in the old Dutch church which was itself always to be found in the middle of State Street, looking as if it had been wheeled out of line by the giants of old and there left, or had dropped down from the clouds in a dark night and had stuck fast where it fell. All the old buildings in the City, and they constituted a large majority, were but one story high with sharp peaked roofs, surmounted by a rooster, vulgarly called a weather-cock. Every house having any pretensions to dignity, was placed with its gable end to the street with huge iron numerals, announcing the date of its erection, while from its eaves long wooden gutters or spouts, projected in front some six or seven feet so as to discharge the water from the roof, when it rained, directly over the center of the sidewalk. This was probably contrived for the benefit of those who were compelled to be out in wet weather, as it furnished them an extra shower bath free of expense. But the Yankee, who considers that the earth belongs to him, intruded into the old Dutch City, whose inhabitants awoke one morning to learn that he had gained a majority in the City government, and then came the order with a handsaw to cut off those spouts." Great was the consternation of the honest burghers at this announcement, and it could hardly have been exceeded had they been forbidden to speak their mother tongue. But the Yankees continued to increase and soon their influence began to be felt among the dogs, who "began to bark in broken English, many of them indeed had already caught the Yankee twang," so rapidly was the progress of refinement. In the course of a few years, nearly all that was venerable in the eyes of the ancient burghers, disappeared.

In 1803 there was but one first-class hotel in the City, that was the "Tontine Coffee House," in State Street, kept by Mr. Gregory. This house was the resort of the respectable portion of the community and was always full. Here the leading politicians and distinguished men of the State congregated and laid their plans for future campaigns. The house had no bar, and no liquors were furnished to any except guests of the house, and to those only at their meals.

The Mohawk and Hudson Railroad, connecting the Mohawk and Hudson Rivers, at Albany and Schenectady, was the first constructed in the State. It was commenced in 1830, and a double track completed in 1833. It was originally constructed with an inclined plane at each end of the road, the one at Albany a little more than half a mile in length, and both of them having a rise of one foot in eighteen. The track was laid in the following manner: stone blocks were placed three feet apart, from center to center, laid on broken stone, and cross sleepers of wood, seven inches in diameter and eight feet long, rested upon them, supporting the timber rails, on which were placed iron bars, three-fifths by two and a half inches, with the upper corners rounded to one and a half inches width. The width between the rails was four feet nine inches. The road constructed in this manner cost $1,100,000, or over $70,000 per mile for the double track. The stock at one time sold for 30 per cent. premium, and afterwards went down to 25 cents on a dollar. It finally passed into other hands, the inclined planes were abandoned, and by a more circuitous route and the use of heavy locomotives the road became a profitable one. In 1843 the road was laid with heavy rail, and in 1853 it was consolidated with the New York Central.

The earliest traveled route between Albany and New York was by the Hudson River. For many years schooners plied at intervals between these two cities, and when great dispatch was required, a canoe was the means of conveyance.

In 1785 the Legislature granted to Isaac Van Wyck, Talmage Hall and John Kinney, the exclusive right "to erect, set up, carry on and drive" stage wagons between Albany and New York, on the east side of the Hudson River, for the term of ten years. The journey was at first performed in two days, at three pence per mile, but in the fall, "for the ease of the passengers," the time was extended to three days and the price raised to four pence a mile. They were to have at least two covered wagons, each drawn by four able horses, and perform the trips once a week, under penalty of forfeiture of charter. At this time the Post Office at Albany served for the adjoining towns, and for Orange and Dutchess Counties, Cherry Valley, &c., and letters were advertised for Vermont. By the Post Office arrangements of January 1786, the New York mail arrived twice a week, Wednesdays and Saturdays. There was at this time a mail once a week from Springfield, Mass. Communication with the neighboring counties and States was kept up by post riders, who met at certain points and interchanged letters and papers, and when the business was insufficient to pay, subscriptions were made among the citizens who were interested in their continuance. In 1789 a stage commenced running from Platt's Inn, in Lansingburgh, to Lewis's Tavern, Albany, three times a week. The fare for the round trip was four shillings. In 1790 a post left Albany on Monday afternoon and reached Schenectady the same day, Johnstown on Tuesday, Canajoharie on Wednesday, Fort Plain on Thursday, Fort Hunter and Warrensbush on Friday, and arrived at Albany on its return on Monday forenoon. The post to Vermont left the City Monday evening, arrived at Pittstown on Tuesday, at Bennington on Wednesday, at Little White Creek and Cambridge on Thursday, at Tomhannic and Schaghticoke on Friday, and at Hoosick on Saturday.

In 1790 the Legislature granted Ananias Platt the exclusive right of running a stage between Albany and Lansingburgh. In 1794 Mr. Platt, "grateful for public custom," undertook to run his stage twice a day from Lansingburgh to Albany and back. In the winter of 1795 he had increased the number of daily trips to six. In the summer of 1796 the travel had increased to such an extent as to employ twenty stages daily between Waterford, Lansingburgh, Troy and Albany, averaging more than one hundred and fifty passengers daily. In 1791 the Postmaster General was authorized by law to extend the post route from Albany to Bennington, Vt., and the first mail reached that town on the 25th of March, the anniversary of the settlement of that town thirty years before.

In 1792 some one proposed to establish a line of stages from Albany to Whitestown, so great had the intercourse become with the western country. In the spring of 1793 Moses Beal "erected a stage for the accommodation of passengers from Albany to Schenectady, Johnstown and Canajoharie, once a week." It left Albany at 6 o'clock Friday morning and arrived at Canajoharie the next day. It returned on Tuesday. The fare was three cents a mile. The success of this enterprise was so great that John Hudson, inn-keeper, established a line of stages to run from Albany to Schenectady three times a week; and John Rodgers, of Ballston, ran a line from that place to connect with it, by which a regular communication was first established for the convenience of those who visited the springs. The fare was four shillings to Schenectady and three cents a mile to passengers who went beyond. About this time a stage line was established connecting Albany with the Connecticut River Valley at Northampton. A stage started from each end of the route on Tuesdays and Fridays, in the morning, and met at Pittsfield in the evening, accomplishing the entire route in two days. The proprietors of this route, in their appeal to the public for patronage, remark that the difficulty of extending a line of stages across the mountains had always been considered insurmountable, but reflecting that such an establishment would complete the line of an expeditious and sure communication from "Portland, in the province of Maine," through a rich and flourishing country, to Whitestown, in the western part of the State of New York, a distance of over four hundred miles, they had determined to make the experiment. The fare was four cents a mile. In 1794 there were five post routes centering in Albany. The first, to New York once a week, stopping at the principal places along the east bank of the river. The second, north, via Lansingburgh, Bennington, Manchester, Rutland and Middlebury, to Burlington, Vt. The third, via New Lebanon, Pittsfield and Northampton, to Brookfield, Mass. The fourth, via Kinderhook and Stockbridge, to Springfield, Mass. On each of these routes the mail was carried once a week. The fifth route was via Schenectady, Johnstown, Canajoharie, German Flats, Whitestown, Old Fort. Schuyler, Onondaga, Aurora, Scipio, Geneva and Canandaigua, once in two weeks. The fare to New York was this year reduced from ten to eight dollars.

The mails during this year (1796) were carried between Albany and Philadelphia, a distance of 260 miles, in three days; from Boston to Philadelphia in four days, and from Savannah to Philadelphia in thirteen days. By comparing the foregoing with the time tables of our great railroads, we can form some idea of the mighty progress during the last seventy-five or eighty years.

The introduction of steam has changed the mode of travel on all the great thoroughfares. The first steamboat upon the Hudson was so great a curiosity, and astonished the inhabitants as much as a vessel for aerial navigation would now.

The following description of Albany in 1789, taken from Morse's American Geography, gives a good idea of the City at that time: "It contains about 600 houses, built mostly by trading people, on the margin of the river. The houses stand chiefly on Pearl, Market and Water Streets and six other streets or lanes which cross them nearly at right angles. They are built in the old Dutch Gothic style, with the gable end to the street, which custom the first settlers brought with them from Holland. The gable end is commonly of brick with the heavy moulded ornament of slanting with notches, like stairs, and an iron horse for a weathercock on the top. There is one little appendage to their houses which the people, blind to the inconvenience of it, still continue, and that is the water gutters or spouts which project from every house, rendering it almost dangerous to walk the streets in a rainy day. Their houses are seldom more than one story and a half high and have but little convenience and less elegance; but they are kept very neat, being rubbed with a mop almost every day and scoured every week. The same neatness however is not observed in the streets, which are very muddy most of the year, except those which are paved; and these are seldom swept and very rough. The City of Albany contains about 4,000 inhabitants, collected from almost all parts of the northern world. As great a variety of languages is spoken in Albany, as in any town in the United States." Speaking of the people, he says: "Their diversions are walking and sitting in mead houses, and in mixed companies they dance. They know nothing of the little plays and amusements common to small social circles. The gentlemen who are lively and gay play at cards, billiards, chess &c., others go to the tavern, mechanically, at 11 o'clock, stay until dinner and return in the evening. It is not uncommon to see forty or fifty at these places of resort at the same time; yet they seldom drink to intoxication, unless in company, or on public occasions, when it is thought to be no disgrace. They seldom admit many spectators to their marriages, but the day after, the groom prepares a cold collation, with punch, wine &c., to partake of which he expects all his friends will come at eleven o'clock without invitation. A dictator, with absolute power is then appointed to preside at each table or in each room, and it seldom happens that any are suffered to leave the house, until the whole circle exhibits a shocking specimen of human depravity." "The best families live exceedingly well, enjoying all the conveniences and luxuries of life; but the poor have scarcely the necessaries for subsistence."

The Bank of Albany, the first that went into operation in this City, and the second one in the State, was incorporated April 10, 1792, and continued in existence until May 11, 1861. The preliminary arrangements had been made and it was decided that the capital should be $75,000, divided into 500 shares of $150 each; $15 to be paid on subscribing and the remainder in three installments. Jeremiah Van Rensselaer, Jacob Vanderheyden and Barent Bleeker were a committee to open the books for subscriptions, which they did on the 17th of February, and the stock was all taken in less than three hours. After the stock was all taken and the books were closed, offers of ten per cent. advance were made on the stock, and the next day it rose to one hundred per cent. cash. The first election of Directors under the charter, was held June 12th, and resulted as follows: Abraham Ten Broeck, Cornelius Glen, Stephen

Van Rensselaer, John Maley, Abraham Van Vechten, Henry Cuyler, John Stevenson, James Caldwell, Jacob Vanderheyden, Goldsbrow Banyar, Jeremiah Van Rensselaer, Daniel Hall and Elkanah Watson. Abraham Ten Broeck was the first President. The act of incorporation limited the capital to $260,000, each share to be 400 Spanish milled dollars or its equivalent. In January 1794, the capital was increased $54,000. The affairs of the Bank were managed prudently for many years, and its stock was worth from 45 to 50 per cent. above par. In proportion to its capital it had more specie than any other bank.

New York State Bank, the second bank in Albany, went into operation in 1803, with a capital of $460,000. May 10, 1804, the Bank commenced business in their new banking house, which they have occupied ever since. By the act of incorporation, the Controller, together with John Taylor, Thomas Tillotson, Abraham G. Lansing, Peter Gansevoort, Jr., Elkanah Watson, John R. Bleeker, Francis Bloodgood, John Robison, Gilbert Stewart, John de Peyster Douw, Richard Lush and Thomas Mather were constituted the first Directors.

The Mechanics' and Farmers' Bank was incorporated in 1811, with a capital limited to $600,000. It has been one of the most successful banking institutions in the State. In 1853, on the second expiration of its charter, it closed up its business and divided among the stockholders fifty per cent, besides the par value of the stock. During the Rebellion it organized under the National Banking Law, but in 1868 abandoned that, and is now doing business under the laws of the State.

The Commercial Bank was incorporated in 1825. The first Directors were Willard Walker, Joshua Tuffs, George W. Stanton, Lewis Benedict, William Cook, Daniel D. Gregory, Seth Hastings, Ira Jenkins, Joseph Alexander, Robert Gilchrist, Richard Marvin, John Townsend and Asa H. Center.

The Canal Bank was incorporated in 1829, with a capital of $300,000. It failed in 1848.

The Albany City Bank was incorporated in 1834 with a capital of $500,000. Erastus Corning was the first President, and Watts Sherman, Cashier.

The Albany Exchange Bank was incorporated in 1838, to continue 662 years, with a capital of $311,100, with the privilege of increasing it to $1,000,000. John Q. Wilson was the first President.

The Merchants Bank was organized in 1853. John Tweddle was its first President, and John Sill was Cashier.

The Union Bank was organized in 1853. B. P. Learned was elected President, and A. P. Palmer, Cashier.

The Presbyterian Church in Albany was formed in 1763. The City executed a deed in trust for the congregation, to John Mecom, Daniel Edgar, Samuel Holladay, Robert Henry, Abraham Lyle and John Munro, for the ground upon which the first church edifice was erected. This lot was bounded by Beaver, William, Hudson and Grand Streets, and was occupied by the church until 1796. During this year a new church was erected at the corner of South Pearl and Beaver Streets, the site now occupied by the Beaver Block. It was 64 by 76 feet and altogether the finest church in the City. Oct. 3, 1798, Rev. Elishaet Nott, late President of Union College, was installed pastor, and continued until he assumed the Presidency of the College. In 1849 a new edifice was erected on the corner of Hudson and Philip Streets, and is still occupied by the society. The old church was occupied for several years by the Congregational Society.

BERN was formed from Rensselaerville, March 17, 1795. Knox was taken off in 1822. It lies near the center of the west border of the County. The Helderbergh Mountains form the eastern border and rise to the height of 1,200 feet above tide. Grippy and Irish Hill occupy the center. They are broad mountains with steep declivities and rolling summits, from 900 to 1,000 feet above tide. The south and west parts are hilly and the north rolling. The principal streams are the Foxen Kil and the Switz Kil, passing through the town from the south-east to the north-west, and forming a junction near the north-west corner. They flow through narrow valleys, bordered by steep hillsides. Thompson's Lake, in the north-east corner, partly in this town, and Werner's Lake, near East Bern, are small bodies of water. Numerous small caves and sink holes are found in the lime rock in the north-east part. In one of the caves, still known as the "Tory's Hole," a notorious royalist spy, named Jacob Salisbury, is said to have been captured about the time of Burgoyne's invasion from the North. This cave is a semi-circular cavity in the cliff, just above the road, a good view of which it commands. It is a single room, about 25 or 30 feet in diameter, open on one side, looking out over a block of fallen stone, down the wooded slope, to a road, and beyond into a deep valley between the mountain spurs. This was a secure retreat for Salisbury for some time, and it was with difficulty that his hiding place was discovered. A band of daring men penetrated his secret retreat in the night, and he was forced to surrender. He was immediately disarmed, bound and hurried down the mountain.

The soil is a sandy and gravelly loam, interspersed with clay. There are three mineral springs on the farm of Jacob Hochstrosser, valuable for their medicinal qualities.

Bernville, (Bern p. o.) in the north part, contains three churches, viz., Methodist, Reformed and Lutheran; two hotels, five stores, a grist mill, a woolen factory, a bedstead factory, several other mechanic shops and about 60 dwellings.

Peoria, (West Bern p. o.) in the north-west part, on the line of Knox, contains a Reformed church, two hotels, three stores, a tannery and several other shops.

South Bern (p. v.) contains two churches, viz., Methodist and Christian; a store, a saw and grist mill, and 15 or 20 dwellings.

Reidsville (p. v.) contains two churches, viz., Methodist and Christian; a hotel, a store and about a dozen houses.

East Bern (p. v.) contains two stores, a hotel, a grist mill, a wagon shop, a blacksmith shop and 25 houses. There is a Masonic Lodge of 109 members. A Masonic Hall was erected in 1869, the lower portion of which is to be used for a Union church.

The settlement of this town was commenced about 1750, by a few German families. In 1777 a company of eighty-five militia were raised in this town, sixty-three of whom joined the British, and the remainder the Americans at Saratoga. Bernville, then called Beaver Dam, was fortified during the war, and sentinels were posted at night to prevent surprise by the Indians. The place at one time was a rendezvous for Tories. The family of Johannes Deitz, consisting of eight persons, were murdered by the Indians. Cornelius Schermerhorn kept a Tory rendezvous, and at one time an absconding paymaster from Burgoyne's army is said to have been murdered at his house.

The Reformed Protestant Dutch Church of Beaver Dam was formed in January, 1763; the first settled pastor was Johannes Schuyler, in 1767. A parsonage farm was given to this Church by the Patroon, midway between Bernville and Peoria, and a church was erected upon it. In 1835 the society was divided and a new edifice was erected at each of the villages, the farm being held in common by both societies.

The Evangelical Lutheran Church was organized in 1792, and the first house of worship was erected the same year. The number of members at its organization was 84; the present number is 250. The present house of worship was erected in 1835, during the pastorate of Rev. Adam Crounse. It will seat 600 and cost $8,000. Rev. James Seifer is the present pastor.

The Baptist Church of South Bern was organized in 1810, and a house of worship was erected the same year. Rev. E. Crocker was the first pastor; Rev. David B. Collins is the present pastor. The present house of worship will seat 300 and is valued at $1,500.

The First Methodist Church was organized in 1844, with about 40 members. A house of worship was erected in 1844. Rev. — Townsend was the first pastor; Rev. Milton Tator is the present pastor.

The First M. E. Church of Bernville erected a house of worship in 1846, at an expense of $1,200. Its seating capacity is about 300. Rev. — Earl is the present pastor.

The Methodist Church of Reidsville was organized in 1841, with twenty members, and a house of worship was erected the same year. Rev. Manly Wither was the first pastor; Rev. G. C. Simons is the present pastor. The house of worship will seat 300 and cost $2,200.

The Christian Church of Reidsville was organized in 1832 with twelve members. The first pastor was Rev. Levi Hathaway. A house of worship was erected in 1832; it will seat 300 and cost $2,000. The present pastor is Rev. D. P. Warner.

The Second Christian Church of Bern was organized in 1834 by Lewis H. Taylor, with twelve members. A house of worship was erected the same year, seating 400. The first pastor was Rev. Stephen Hitchcock; the present pastor is Rev. D. Warner. The present membership is 180.

The Second Reformed Church was organized in 1853 with 80 members. The present house of worship was erected the same year and will seat 300. The present membership is 104.

The population of the town in 1865 was 2,851, and its area 39,952 acres.

The town contains 21 school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 973; the number attending school, 774; the average attendance, 304, and the amount expended for school purposes for the year ending September 30, 1869, was $5,540.73.

BETHLEHEM was formed from Watervliet, March 12, 1793. New Scotland was taken off in 1832, and a part of Albany in 1870. It lies on the bank of the Hudson, east of the center of the County, and includes the islands west of the main channel of the river. Its surface consists of a rolling upland, ending upon the river in steep bluffs from 100 to 150 feet in height. A few sand ridges and rocky knolls occupy the central part. The principal streams are Coeymans Creek, Vlaman's Kil and Norman's Kil. The declivities of the upland are broken by numerous deep gulleys, worn from streams flowing into the Hudson. There are several small caves, sulphur springs and quarries of coarse brown sandstone in the town. The soil consists of sand and clay. The proximity of a large portion of this town to Albany has afforded a market for produce, and considerable attention is paid to the production of milk, butter and garden vegetables for that market.

Kenwood is a small village near the mouth of Norman's Kil.

Adamsville, (Adams Station p. o.,) Normanskill (p. o.,) Bethlehem Center (p. o.,) Cedar Hill (p. o.,) Upper Hollow, Slingerland's, Becker's Corners and South Bethlehem are hamlets.

Callanan's Corners, in the south-west corner, is a post office.

The first settlement was made upon Castle Island in 1614, and a fort was erected the same year. As this island was liable to overflow, causing great damage, another fort was erected on the Norman's Kil in 1817. The island was leased to Martin Gerritsen, in 1668, and is sometimes called after his name. It is now known as Van Rensselaer's Island. One of the early settlers of this town was Albert Andriessen Bradt de Noorman, in honor of whom Norman's Kil was named. He had eight children. Tradition says that one of them was born on board the ship while coming over, during a storm, and hence was called "Storm von der Zee." He came over in 1630 and leased the water privileges of the Norman's Kil, and was succeeded in 1672 by his son Albertsen, who paid $150 a year. He was succeeded by his brother Slingerland, in 1677, as lessee of the farm which his father had occupied on this stream. He died June 7th, 1786. Many of his descendants are still in Albany and vicinity. The Indian name of this stream was Ta-wal-son-tha. Mills were built on this stream at a very early day. A part of the house known as "Whitehall," near the Delaware Road, was built by General Bradstreet, and during the Revolution is said to have been a secret rendezvous for Tories. Cherry Hill, on the River road, just beyond the City limits, was the residence of General Solomon Van Rensselaer.

A Reformed Protestant Dutch Church was formed in colonial times, and in 1794 S. Van Rensselaer gave the society 100 acres of land, known as the "Parsonage Farm."

The First Presbyterian Church of Bethlehem was organized Nov. 3d, 1835, by Rev. Dr. Campbell and Rev. W. R. Davis. It consisted of 53 members. The first pastor was Rev. Wm. P. Davis, who was ordained and installed Dec. 1st, 1835. The first house of worship was erected the same year at a cost of $1,800. It was enlarged and refitted in 1869 at a cost of $4,000. It will now seat about 300. The present membership is 106; the present pastor is Rev. J. W. Edie. The society own a good parsonage, and are now in a flourishing condition.

COEYMANS was formed from Watervliet, March 18, 1791. A part of Westerlo was taken off in 1815. It was named in honor of Barent Coeymans, the patentee. It is the south-east corner town of the County, and includes the adjacent islands in the Hudson. Its surface consists of an upland from 200 to 400 feet above the river, broken by ridges and hills rising from 100 to 400 feet higher. The principal streams are the Coeymans and Haanakrois Creeks. In the former, at Coeymans village, are two falls, at which the stream descends in the aggregate 75 feet. Lawson's Lake is a small sheet of water in the north-west part of the town. A stratum of marble or limestone extends through the town three or four miles from the river. In the north-east part are two caves, the largest extending about forty rods into a perpendicular ledge. Feuri-Spruyt Kil, a small stream in the north part, disappears and flows for half a mile in a subterranean passage, and comes to the surface again in New Scotland. At the place where the stream disappears it falls perpendicularly into a deep cavity, forming a considerable water power. Another small stream in the west part flows in a similar manner for forty or fifty rods. There are several mineral springs in town impregnated with sulphate of magnesia. The soil in the east part is sand mixed with clay, and in the west part gravel and clay. The fossil remains of an elephant were found on the farm of Mr. Shears, about four miles west of the river. Large quantities of hay are sent annually from this town to the New York market.

Mossy Hill, near the south-west part of the town, received its name from its mossy cover. In 1828 a quarry of blue stone was opened here, and ever since large quantities of this stone have been shipped to various parts of the country.

Coeymans Landing, (Coeymans p. o.,) on the Hudson, in the east part of the town, at the mouth of Coeymans Creek, contains three churches, viz., Methodist, Reformed and Roman Catholic; a newspaper office, an academy, two hotels, four broom factories, a flouring and plaster mill, several stores, groceries and mechanic shops, and about 700 inhabitants.

The Coeymans Academy was established in 1858 by Fletcher Blaisdell, Theophilus Civill and Peter Seabridge. The first teachers were Misses C. B. and Emma Brace. It is open to both sexes and is now under the control of Thomas McKee. About half a mile south of the village, at the mouth of Haanakrois Creek, is the paper mill of Robb & Caroll. It was established in 1832, and turns out about $30,000 worth of straw wrapping paper annually.

Coeymans Hollow (p. o.) is a thickly settled public road in the valley of Haanakrois Creek, and contains a Methodist church, two stores and about 40 houses.

The Valley Mills Paper Manufactory of Andrews & Briggs is located in the west part of this valley. The mills were established in 1847 by J. E. Andrews, and in 1854 were rebuilt and enlarged by the present proprietors. They are run by water and steam, and contain two 300 pound engines and two 400, and one 36 inch and one 48 inch cylinder machines.

Indian Fields, (p. o.) in the west part, contains a hotel, a store, a foundry, a woolen mill, a saw mill, two wagon shops, two blacksmith shops and about fifteen houses.

Stephensville, in the south-west part, on Haanakrois Creek, contains a church, a grist mill, a wagon and blacksmith shop, and fifteen houses.

Keefer's Corners (p. o.) is a hamlet containing a Methodist church, a blacksmith shop and a store. The place was named in honor of Balthus Keefer, who settled at this place in 1791. There were but two settlements in this part of the town at that time. They had no wagons and their roads were traced by marked trees.

The first settlement was made by Barent Pieterse Coeymans, who came from Utrecht in 1636 and immediately entered the service of the Patroon as miller, at a salary of thirty guilders a year. Three brothers accompanied him, viz., David, Jacob and Arent. Barent worked in the Patroon's grist mill until 1645, when he took charge of the Patroon's saw mills, in company with Jan Gerritsen, receiving 150 guilders each a year for board, and three stivers a cut for every plank they sawed. He remained in this employment until 1647, having cut in that time between three and four thousand boards. Previous to 1650 he lived a little south of Patroon's Creek, and in 1655 took a nineteen years lease of a farm of "maize land" at twenty-four guilders a year. In 1657 he took a lease of the mills on Patroon's Creek for three years, and in 1660 he leased the mills on the Norman's Kil for thirteen years. About the time this lease expired, in 1673, he purchased from the Katskill Indians a large tract of land, about twelve or fifteen miles south of Albany. It had been known as offering peculiar advantages for the erection of mills, Cryn Cornelissen and Hans Jansen having erected saw mills on the creek just north of Beeren Island as early as 1651. Coeymans obtained of Governor Lovelace a patent of a tract eight or ten miles on the river and extending back ten or twelve miles. But this tract falling within the bounds of Rensselaerwyck, Coeymans purchased the Patroon's claim, agreeing to pay a quit-rent of nine shillings a year. In 1714 he obtained from Queen Anne a patent of this tract, confirming the whole to him and his heirs forever. The Indian name of Coeymans Creek was Oniskethau, and the flats at Coeymans Landing were called Achquetuck. Andreas and Lendert Whitbeck were early settlers near the Landing, and Daniel Traver and Balthus Keefer, near Keefer's Corners. John and Thomas Whitbeck settled near Indian Fields. Among the other early settlers were the Verplanks, Ten Eycks, Vanderveers and David McCarley, who surveyed Countryman's Patent.

The first mills were erected by the patentee at Coeymans Falls. A small number of Indians belonging to the Oneida tribe lived in this town after the Revolution. They removed and returned in 1812 for a short time. Among the records of the town is an account of ten pounds in 1792, for erecting stocks and a whipping-post.

John B. Shear was born in this town in 1803 and has resided here ever since. He was elected to office before he was twenty-one years of age, and has held office almost every year since that time. He has kept a hotel and store for the last 43 years and is one of the most respected and influential men of the town. He is still in the vigor of manhood and has a prospect of many years of usefulness before him.

The first church (Ref. Prot. Dutch) was built in 1797, one mile west of Coeymans Landing. The Church was organized March 5, 1793; Rev. Jacob Sickles was the first pastor.

The First Methodist Church was organized in 1788 or '89 by Rev. John Crawford, the first preacher. He formed a class of twelve members. Rev. Freeborn Garretson was presiding Elder. The first church edifice was built of stone, in 1793, and located about two and a half miles west of Coeymans. It is said to have been the first Methodist church built west of the Hudson River. The first trustees were James Waldron, Lewis Civill, Wilhollamas Row, Jacob Springsted, Isaac C. Huyck, Ephraim Holbrook, Peter Hogan, Nathan Williams, James Selkirk. Levi Blaisdell was the first clerk, and Lewis Civill was the first sexton. The following are the names of some of the early members, viz: Hugh Jolly, Samuel Jolly, John Ten Eyck and wife, Levi Blaisdell and wife, Dr. Clement, Hugh Crumb, James Selkirk and Jacob Springsted. A new church edifice was erected in 1836, and dedicated by the Rev. Benjamin Griffin. The building is of brick, 40 by 50 feet, with a lecture room, of wood, 26 by 40. The present membership is 100. The M. E. Church at Coeymans Hollow has a membership of 350.

The Reformed Church was organized in 1793. The first church edifice was located one mile west of Coeymans Landing. A large brick church was subsequently erected at the village. Rev. Jacob Sickles was the first pastor.

There are six churches in the town, viz: three Methodist, one Reformed, one Christian and one Roman Catholic.

The population of the town in 1865 was 3,264, and its area 30,740 acres.

There are 14 school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 1,017; the number attending school, 710; the average attendance, 325; and the amount expended for school purposes during the year ending Sept. 30th, 1869, was $4,738.02.

COHOES CITY was formed from Watervliet, and incorporated as a City by act of the Legislature, passed May 19, 1869. It was incorporated as a village in 1848. It lies upon the Mohawk River, near its junction with the Hudson, and has one of the finest water powers in the world. The facilities for transportation by land and water are unsurpassed by any manufacturing city in the United States. The Erie Canal affords direct communication with the western country and the great lakes; the Champlain Canal opens an easy communication with Lake Champlain and all parts of Canada, and with the Hudson River to New York and the Ocean. The Rensselaer and Saratoga Railroad, and the Troy and Schenectady branch of the N. Y. C. R. R., extend through the City.

The Cohoes Falls is a cataract with a perpendicular fall of about fifty feet. Below the Falls the river flows through a deep gorge whose perpendicular walls rise on each side to the height of nearly one hundred feet. A dam has been erected across the river above the Falls, and the water is conveyed by canals to convenient places for manufacturing purposes. The surface of the land is such that the water in some instances is used as many as six times.

The manufacturing is extensive, and consists of six extensive cotton mills, running 203,000 spindles, eighteen large knitting mills, two foundries, three machine shops, a rolling mill, two ax factories, a planing mill, a sawing and veneering establishment, and many other large and flourishing establishments. The City contains about 300 stores of various kinds, six churches and a population of about 16,000.

The following are the boundaries of the City, as set forth in the act of incorporation:—

“SECTION 1. The territory within the following limits shall constitute the City of Cohoes: Commencing at a point in the center of the south branch of the Mohawk River, in the town of Watervliet, and county of Albany, immediately east of the south line of the farm owned by Cornelius L. Tracy and Sarah M. Gould; thence westerly along said line to the center of the Erie Canal, thence northwardly along the center of said canal to the north line of said farm, thence westerly along said north line to the west boundaries of said farm, thence in a direct line to the west line of the highway near the residence of Francis T. Lansing in said town, at a point immediately west of the center of the bridge over the Saut Kill or Salt Kill at that point, thence northwardly along the west line of said highway to its intersection with the highway leading from Cohoes Falls to the Boght, thence north until it strikes the boundary line between the farms of Isaac D. F. Lansing and Sarah Miller, thence along said boundary line north-easterly to the easterly line of the Erie Canal, thence northwardly along said line of the Erie Canal to a point where it strikes the line between the lands of the Cohoes Company and said I. D. F. Lansing, thence northeasterly along said last mentioned line in a direct line to the boundary line between the counties of Albany and Saratoga, thence easterly along the said center of said Mohawk River, which is said boundary line between the counties of Albany and Saratoga to and along the center of the Sprout of said Mohawk River, flowing between Haver and Van Schaicks Island to the boundary line between the counties of Albany and Rensselaer, in the Mohawk River, thence southwardly along said last mentioned line to a point in Hudson River east of the mouth of the middle sprout of the south branch of the Mohawk River, thence westerly along the center line of said middle sprout or water course, to the center of said south branch, thence southerly along the center of the same to the place of beginning.” This includes Van Schaick’s Island.

The history of Cohoes as a village and city is the history of its manufactories. The earliest accounts which we have of this locality have reference to the Falls. Rev. Johannes Megapolensis, who came to Albany in 1642, as pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church, in speaking of the Mohawk River says :

“This river comes out of the Mahakas country about four miles north of us. There it flows between two high rocky banks, and falls from a hight equal to that of a church, with such a noise that we can sometimes hear it with us.” * * *

“In the spring, in May, the perch are so plenty that one man, with a hook and line can catch in one hour as many as ten or twelve men can eat. There is also in the river a great plenty of sturgeon, which we christians do not eat, but the Indians eat them greedily.”

In 1680, Jasper Dankers and Peter Sluyter, members of the Society of Labadists in Holland, came here to find a suitable place for a colony of their sect. They visited the Falls April 23, and gave the following account :

“Mr. Sanders having provided us with horses, we rode out about nine o'clock to visit the Cohoes which is the Falls of the great Maquaskil, which are the greatest falls not only in New Netherlands but in North America, and perhaps as far as is known in the whole New World. We rode two hours over beautiful level tillable land along the river, when we obtained a guide who was better acquainted with the road through the woods. He rode before us on horseback. In approaching Cohoes from this direction the roads are hilly, and in the course of half an hour you have steep hills, deep valleys and narrow paths which run round the precipices, where you must ride with care in order to avoid the danger of falling over them as sometimes happens. As you come near the falls you can hear the roaring which makes everything tremble, but on reaching them and looking at them you see something wonderful, a great manifestation of God's power and sovereignty, of his wisdom and glory. We arrived there about noon. They are on one of the two branches into which North River is divided up above, of almost equal size. This one turns to the west out of the high land and coming here finds a blue rock which has a steep side as long as the river is broad, which is according to my calculation two hundred paces or more, and rather more than less, and about one hundred feet high. The river has more water at one time than another, and was now about six or eight feet deep.”

Upon the approach of Burgoyne, in the summer of 1777, General Schuyler retired to Van Schaick's Island and threw up fortifications to check the advance of the enemy, who threatened from the north and the west. After the retreat of St. Leger from the siege of Fort Stanwix, no further trouble was apprehended from the west by way of the Mohawk Valley, and Gen.

Gates, who had superseded Gen. Schuyler in command of the Northern Army, advanced into Saratoga County, where he succeeded in capturing Burgoyne and his whole army. The remains of some of the earthworks upon the island are still visible.

Previous to 1811 the present site of the City was a barren tract of land, bordered by one of the finest water-powers in the world, and known only to the world at large through the wonders and beauties of the surrounding scenery, as depicted by travelers whom circumstances compelled or curiosity prompted to visit the vicinity.

The first extensive attempt at manufacturing here was made by the "Cohoes Manufacturing Co." in 1811. The Company was incorporated "for the purpose of manufacturing cotton, woolen and linen goods, bar iron, nail rods, hoop iron and ironmongery." The works were erected at the junction of the Champlain Canal with the Mohawk River, and the water-power was supplied by a wing dam extending into the river. The factory was burned in 1827 and the corporation failed. In 1830 the population of Cohoes was chiefly at what was the junction of the Erie and Champlain Canals. In 1831 Mr. Hugh White built a saw mill upon the present site of one of the Harmony Company's buildings. At this time there was neither post-office, church, tavern or store, in what is now the principal manufacturing portion of the City. The nearest post-office was at Waterford, and the nearest church was at the "Boght." Mr. Wilkinson, from Pawtucket, Rhode Island, was one of the pioneer manufacturers of Cohoes. He was at one time the largest manufacturer in the place, but finally moved away.

The Cohoes Company was incorporated March 28, 1826, with a capital of $250,000, which was increased to $500,000 April 26, 1833. The first trustees were Peter Remsen, Charles E. Dudley, Stephen Van Rensselaer, Jr., Francis Olmstead, Canvass White, Henry J. Wycoff and David Wilkinson. The Company now owns the entire water-power from half a mile above to one mile below the Falls, with a total fall of 120 feet. A dam was built across the river in 1831, but it was carried away in 1832. Another was immediately constructed which was partially destroyed in 1839 and rebuilt the same year. The present stone dam was constructed in 1865 and is one of the most costly and substantial structures of the kind in the world. It is 1,443 feet in length and, with its appurtenances, cost $180,000. The engineer of this work was Wm. E. Worden, assisted by D. H. Van Auken. The work was done under the supervision of Mr. T. G. Younglove, the agent of the Company. The water is used from five successive canals, at different levels, and is again used from the level of the State Dam. The first of these canals was constructed in 1834, and is three-fourths of a mile in length, and has a fall of eighteen feet. The second was constructed in 1843, is one-third of a mile in length and has a fall of 25 feet. The third is half a mile in length with a fall of 23 feet. A part of the last two consist of portions of the old Erie Canal. The fourth and fifth canals have a fall of 20 feet each, and are only partly constructed. The entire power is estimated at 10,000 horse-power, only about one-half of which is utilized.

The Harmony Mills Company was organized in 1850 and incorporated in 1853. This Company purchased the mill that had previously been erected by the "Harmony Manufacturing Company," and engaged in the manufacture of cotton goods. They have at present five mills, known as Nos. 1, 2 and 3, "Old Harmony," "Ogden" and "Strong" mills. No. 1 is 550 by 70 feet, four stories high, and was built in 1852. No. 2 is 660 by 75 feet, and three stories high. It was built in 1857 and enlarged in 1866. No. 3 is 675 by 70 feet, five stories high, and was commenced in 1866 and finished in 1869. The "Old Harmony Mill" is 150 by 50, and four stories high; the "Ogden" is 500 by 50, and five stories high, and the "Strong Mill" 200 by 50 feet, and four stories high. The aggregate number of spindles in these mills is 203,000; the number of looms is 4,400, and the number of employes over 3,000, two-thirds of whom are females. The annual pay-roll foots up nearly $1,000,000. Harmony Mill No. 3 is one of the largest, as well as one of the finest structures ever erected for manufacturing purposes. It is popularly known as the "Mastodon Mill," from the circumstance that in excavating for the foundation, the skeleton of a Mastodon was discovered and is now in position in the State Geological Rooms at Albany. This immense structure cost over $1,000,000. This Company own nearly 700 tenements, which are occupied by operatives, besides five large boarding houses for the accommodation of unmarried employes.

The principal streams are the Norman's Kil and its branches, Bozen Kil, Black Creek, Wildehouse Kil and Hunger Kil. The lower course of the Norman's Kil in this town is through a narrow ravine with steep clayey banks. The soil is light and sandy in the east, and a gravelly loam mixed with clay in the west. A mineral spring is found on the farm formerly owned by Wm. McGowan.

Guilderland, (p. v.) known also as "Hamiltonville," is situated in the eastern part, on the Hunger Kil, and contains three churches, viz., Presbyterian, Methodist and Roman Catholic; two dry goods stores, a flouring and feed mill, a cotton factory, a wagon shop, a blacksmith shop, a marble shop and about fifty dwellings.

A glass factory was erected here in 1792, and the next year the State loaned the proprietors £3,000 for eight years, three years without interest and five years at five per cent. The place was at this time known as Glass House. In 1796 the ground was laid out into streets and lots, under the name of Hamilton, and it was proposed to establish a manufacturing town. To encourage the project the Company and workmen were exempt from taxation for five years. In 1815 the works were discontinued for the want of fuel.

There are a hundred looms in families which make annually about 25,000 yards of cloth for common clothing." During the Revolution a portion of the inhabitants adhered to the British, and the feuds which grew up between families and neighborhoods continued for a long time. The news of Burgoyne's surrender was celebrated by the Whigs by burning a hollow chestnut tree on a hill, a barrel of tar having previously been poured down its trunk.

Its surface consists of a high plateau region, broken by a few small hills. Its eastern part constitutes a portion of the Helderbergh region, but the declivities are gradual and give the surface a moderate inclination towards the north and west. The principal streams are the Bozen Kil, forming a part of the eastern boundary, and its branches, and the Foxen Kil and Beaver Dam Creek in the south part. There are two caves, supposed to be of considerable extent, about one and a fourth miles north of Knoxville. The soil is chiefly gravel and clay, with hardpan underneath. The Albany & Susquehanna Railroad extends through the north-east part of the town.

Knoxville (Knox p. o.) was formerly known as "Union Street," and is still locally called "The Street."

West Township, (p. o.), East Township and Peoria, (West Bern p. o.) on the line of Bern, are small villages.

This town was settled by Germans before the Revolution. During the war the people became divided in politics, and after the defeat of Burgoyne, many of the Tory families went to Canada. Captain Jacob Van Aernden was an active leader of the Whigs of this section during the war. Upon the side of Bennett Hill, in the south-west part, is a strong sulphur spring. Near Clarksville are two caves, extending respectively one-eighth and one-half mile under ground. Streams flow through each of them. The outlet of Lawson's Lake, in the south-west part, about a mile from the lake, falls into a deep cavity and flows for half a mile in a subterranean passage, and in its course receives a considerable tributary. Within this cavity are found beautiful stalactites and thousands of bats clinging to the walls and roof. At the northern foot of Copeland Hill, near the same locality, are remarkable sink holes, from five to eight feet in diameter, and extending down through the soil and lime rock, to the depth of from ten to twenty feet. These cavities are connected at the bottom by a subterranean stream. This passage has been explored and is found to contain several rooms of considerable size. Some years ago a notorious thief used this cavity as a depository for stolen goods, and for a long time eluded the vigilance of those who were searching for him. He was at length tracked to his hiding place and the existence of the cavity was made known. The soil is a gravelly loam mixed with clay. It is built of hewn stone, and is still in good preservation. Isaac Perry, the great grandfather of Henry, was one of the first settlers in the County. He emigrated from France, lived here the rest of his life, and his remains were buried on the old farm.

From the Helderbergh Hills, just above the village of New Salem, one of the most lovely prospects can be seen; the eye ranging over a vast extent of as beautiful farming country as can be seen anywhere in the State. The country around clothed with the green verdure of spring, the trees in all their lovely foliage, the neat white farm houses here and there dotting the landscape around, surrounded with orchards, which, at the time of the year we visited it, were loaded down with blossoms, evidences of a coming bountiful fruit harvest, the roads threading their way in serpentine form all over the country, all these made the scene one of the most delightful it has ever been our lot to look upon. From this point can be seen the villages of New Salem and New Scotland, and some ten or twelve miles in the distance, on clear days, the City of Albany, West Albany, as well as Troy and Greenbush. The Green Mountains can also be distinguished, also fogs rising along the Hudson River. Five railroads can be clearly seen from this point, viz., the Hudson and Saratoga, Albany and Susquehanna, Hudson River, N. Y. C. and Troy and Boston. At night the lights in the City of Albany are clearly seen.

land, broken by parallel ridges extending north and south, and rising from 400 to 600 feet above the valleys. The principal streams are Catskill Creek and its tributaries, Scrub, Fox, Ten Mile and Eight Mile Creeks, and Willow Brook. The valleys of these streams are narrow and are bordered by steep hill sides, and the streams are rapid and subject to destructive freshets. Upon Ten Mile Creek, near Rensselaerville, is a fall of one hundred feet, and upon Willow Brook is another of forty feet. Bog iron ore has been found in the east part. There is a sulphur spring two and a half miles north-east of Preston Hollow. The soil is a clay and gravel, underlaid by hardpan.

At the time of the Indian incursion into Bern, Mr. Brandt had gone to Catskill Landing, leaving his family alone. The savages on their return passed close by with their scalps, prisoners and plunder, but offered no molestation.

About the year 1785 John Coons, from Columbia County, squatted on what is now lot 168. This was before the land was surveyed. The same farm is now occupied by Jeremiah Coons and his sister, grand children of the first settler. At the time of his settlement there was only one house where the village of Rensselaerville now stands.

Silas Sweet came from West Stockbridge, Mass., in 1791, and located about a mile east of Rensselaerville. His son, John Sweet, who was then eleven months old, is still residing in Rensselaerville and retains his mental and physical powers to a good degree. Several others of the same family came in soon after.

Apollos Moore, from Pittsfield, Mass., settled about two miles east of Rensselaerville, in 1785. He came on foot, while his wife rode a horse which cost five dollars, and carried all their property. Mr. Moore afterwards became justice of the peace, supervisor, and finally first Judge of the County, an office which he held until he was nearly seventy years old. He had a store at his farm, and a large mill in the village. He was a soldier of the Revolution, having enlisted when he was sixteen, and served till the close of the war. He died in 1840 at the age of 76.

Gerardus Drake, from Dutchess Co., settled near Potter's Hollow in 1803; John Drake came in 1808. He was an influential man and prominent among the Friends. Abram and Jeremiah Young, and Aaron Winnie, from Ulster Co., came about 1790. Stephen Treadwell, an eminent minister, came in 1846. Daniel and Josiah Conklin, from Long Island, were among the early settlers. Daniel engaged in tanning and shoe manufacturing, and became wealthy. They located for a time with Reuben King, who lived about two and a half miles west of where they located. Joseph Lincoln, John Rensier, and several brothers named Hatch settled in the town about 1787. One of them built the house which for many years was known as the "Hatch House."

The first settler in the village of Rensselaerville was Samuel Jenkins, who came here Feb. 22, 1788; and in the following April erected the first dwelling house in the place, and afterwards the first mill. Daniel Shay, the leader of what was called

"Shay's Rebellion," moved to this town in 1795. Major John Edwards, a Revolutionary officer was also a settler in this town.

The first church, Presbyterian, was organized in 1793. Rev. Samuel Fuller was the first pastor. The first Sabbath spent in the town was April 14, 1793, when he made the following record in his journal: "This is a new settlement and they have no meeting house. The trustees applied to me to preach for them for three Sabbaths longer, which I agreed to do." In November he received a unanimous call to settle at this place. He was to receive £100 settlement and £50 a year till it makes £80." The ordination took place Jan. 23, 1794. In a sermon delivered by his son he says: "The services were held in a log building occupied temporarily as a meeting house which stood in the south-west corner of what was afterwards my father's orchard. It was originally a dwelling house of two rooms, but by removing the chimney and putting a rude pulpit in its stead on the western side, it was converted into a place of worship. The day of the ordination was stormy and the snow driven through the crevices, so wet the hands of Mr. Judson, the ordaining minister, that the print of his thumb still remains upon the Bible used on the occasion." In February Mr. Fuller removed his family to this town, and "from the eighth of February to the 10th of April, he lived in a house with Mr. Samuel Nichols which stood on a spot about one-third of a mile north of what has long been called the "Red House," west of my father's late residence. The building was a log cabin of two small rooms, with a trough roof. The apartment occupied by my father's family had but one window, and that contained only four lights, covered with oiled paper instead of glass, and was so contracted that after meals they were obliged to put the table upon the bed, and the only space allowed him for a study was the corner of the room, where a board laid upon the head of a barrel served him for a writing desk. The country being new and furniture not easily obtained, the cradle for their child was the half of a basswood log hollowed out for that purpose. In the spring he removed from his uncomfortable quarters at Mr. Nichols' to what is now the middle room of the house for many years occupied by Matthew Mulford." The first house of worship was erected in 1796. Mr. Fuller continued pastor of this Church for sixteen years, at the close of which he united with the Episcopal Church and became the founder of

The Episcopal Church in Rensselaerville. It was organized February 20, 1811. Services were held in the chamber of Rufus Watson's house until the fall of 1812. The first wardens were Jacob Wood and Allen Durant, and the vestrymen Asa Colvard, Jonathan Jenkins, Josiah Watson, Jesse Hollister, Ezra Lester, Apollos Moore, Elijah Griggs and Ichabod Peck. The first church edifice was consecrated October 24, 1815, and cost about $3,000. The present edifice will seat about 200 and is valued at $6,000. The following is the inscription upon Mr. Fuller's grave stone:

"Rev. Samuel Fuller died April 9, 1842, in the 75th year of his age. Looking for the general resurrection of the dead and the life of the world to come through our Lord Jesus Christ. Born at Stafford, Conn., Sept. 21, 1767. Graduated at Dartmouth College, 1791. The first minister of the Gospel in this town; Pastor for sixteen years of the Presbyterian Church, and for thirty-one years Rector of Trinity Church of which he was the founder."

The Baptist Church at Preston Hollow was organized about 1790. Rev. Timothy Green was the pastor in 1793. The first meetings were held in a school house. The first church edifice was erected in 1821, about two miles from the village. The present house was erected in 1845 and is valued at $5,000. The present pastor is Rev. Leonard Smith; the present membership is 230.

The Baptist Church of Rensselaerville was formed in 1797; Rev. Truman Beman was the first pastor.

The Friends' Meeting House at Potter's Hollow was organized about 1795 with about 30 members. The first preacher was Reuben Palmer. The first house of worship was erected in 1806; the present house in 1818; the number of members is 40; their house of worship will seat 200 and is valued at $1,000. The present preacher is Israel Drake.

The population in 1865 was 2,745, and the area 37,578 acres.

There are 18 school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 751; the number attending school, 543; the average attendance, 236, and the amount expended for school purposes during the year ending September 30, 1869, was $3,931.62.

WATERVLIET was formed March 7, 1788, and included the West District of the Manor of Rensselaerwyck. The Manor was divided into the East and West Districts, March 5, 1779, the river being the separating line. The West District, as defined by act of March 24, 1772, embraced all that part of the Manor north of an east and west line from Beeren Island, north to Cumberland Co., except the City of Albany. Rensselaerville was taken off in 1790, Coeymans in 1791, Bethlehem in 1792, Guilderland in 1803 and Niskayuna in 1809. The city of Cohoes was taken off in 1869, and a part of Albany in 1870. It lies in the north-east corner of the County at the junction of the Hudson and Mohawk Rivers. The surface is chiefly an upland from 200 to 300 feet above the river. The declivities of this upland are broken by numerous gulleys worn by the small streams. A fine interval, nearly half a mile in width, extends along the Hudson. The Erie Canal crosses the Mohawk at the northern limit of the town, in a stone aqueduct 1,137½ feet in length, twenty-six feet high and supported by twenty-six piers. The soil is a rich deep alluvium upon the river and flats, and a light sandy loam upon the upland. Sulphur and chalybeate springs and bog iron ore are found in the town. The quarries of graywacke furnish an excellent flagging and building stone.

West Troy, (p. v.) in the east part part of the town, was incorporated April 30, 1836. It is a manufacturing village and is engaged extensively in the lumber trade. The Erie and the Champlain Canals and the Hudson River afford communication by water to all parts of the country. The Rensselaer and Saratoga Railroad extends through the village, and it is connected with Albany by horse railroad, and with Troy by ferries. It contains eight churches, viz., Baptist, Episcopal, two Methodist, two Reformed, and two Roman Catholic; a bank, a newspaper printing office, an extensive bell foundry, various other manufactories and about 12,000 inhabitants.

The United States Arsenal at this place occupies about one hundred acres. The grounds are chiefly inclosed by a high wall and contain a number of shops and storehouses. This establishment was commenced in 1814 under Col. George Bomford, of the Ordnance Department. It was for many years the principal manufactory of gun carriages, machines, equipments, ammunition and military supplies for the troops and forts of the United States. During the late war a very large number of persons were employed and a vast amount of the munitions of war were manufactured. The workmen are chiefly citizens residing in the vicinity.

The village is built on land formerly held by the Blecker family. It was purchased by a company of Troy capitalists and laid out as a village, and has mostly grown up since the completion of the canals.

Green Island (p. v.) was incorporated October 14, 1853. It contains four churches, viz., Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopal and Roman Catholic; several extensive manufactories and about 3,500 inhabitants. Among the manufactories are the extensive car and coach manufactory of Gilbert, Bush & Co., the stove foundry of M. L. Filley; the machine shops of the Rensselaer & Saratoga and the New York Central Railroads, and other important manufactories of various kinds. A considerable lumber trade is carried on. It is connected with Troy by a bridge, over which the cars of the Rensselaer & Saratoga and the New York Central Railroads pass, both of which roads have stations here. The bridge contains also a drive for carriages and foot passengers. It is connected with Troy and Cohoes by horse railroad.

Newtonville (p. o.) is a hamlet containing two churches, viz., Methodist and Baptist; a store, a blacksmith shop and a wagon shop.

Lishas Kil (p. o.) and

Ireland Corners (p. o.) are hamlets.

West Albany (p. o.) is about three miles from Albany, on the N. Y. C. R. R., and contains the car shops, engine houses and cattle yards of the N. Y. C. R. R.

The Shaker Settlement, in the west part of the town, consists of four families, numbering about 300 persons and living in a manner peculiar to their sect. The following account of their origin, doctrines &c., was furnished by one of their number:

“Their founder was Ann Lee, of Manchester, England, who settled in the town of Watervliet in the year 1775. Her remains lie in the Shaker Village of this County. She and her followers are remarkable for their extreme divergence from what is popularly termed “Christianity.” Ann Lee announced the second appearance of the Spirit of Christ in her person, testifying that the Godhead being male and female, so also is the Christ spirit male and female. She established four fundamental principles for her followers to build upon, viz., Community of goods; a celibate life; non-resistance, freedom from war in any shape; distinction of government, freedom from the strifes of political parties. Her followers maintain these principles strictly. They do not believe that Jesus was born the Christ, but became so at his baptism, they believe he was then Jesus Christ. So of Ann Lee, they do not worship her any more than they do Jesus, they respect both as agents of the Almighty. They believe all will become Christ's when fitted by self-denial. They dance in their worship, evincing a jubilee in consequence of their victory over the world, claiming to be the end of the world after the manner of Jesus' words, ‘Ye are they upon whom the ends of the world have come.’ Immense crowds from all parts of the country and from Europe congregate at their place of worship to witness their dancing and hear their singing and speaking. Their present expositor is G. Albert Lomas. They are large landholders, having about 2,500 acres. Farming, gardening and mechanical pursuits are prosecuted by them. Their village, composed of four families, contains about three-fourths of a million dollars worth of real estate. Their houses are substantially built and present a beautiful appearance. The present officers, male and female, are: D. A. Buckingham and Elizabeth Harrison, presiding elders at the Church Family; Sylvester Prentiss and Sarah A. Van Wyck, ditto at the North Family; Jeremiah Lowe and Paulina Bates, ditto at the West Family; with G. A. Lomas and Harriet Bullard, the acting corresponding elders of the South or Novitiate Order. All persons admitted enter the last order. The business superintendents of the Church Family are Chauncey Miller and Lydia Annis; North Family, C. Copley and Harriet Ingham; West Family, Alex. Youngs and Nancy Wicks; South Family, Galen Richmond and Mary Ann Ayers; Clarissa Shufelt, Janet Angus, society physicians. They number nearly 300, females slightly predominating. They depend upon accessions from without their own order for their numerical strength. Probably a more peculiar sect does not exist than these highly respected but very eccentric people."

Water and steam power are abundant for all manufacturing purposes. There are four ponds with an area of ten acres each, having an average fall of twelve feet.

Waterliet Center (p. o.) is a hamlet.

Town House Corners is a populous neighborhood where town business has usually been transacted.

Boght, so called from a bend in the Mohawk, is a hamlet. The Reformed Church of this place was organized April 14, 1784, by Rev. E. Westerlo.

The Albany Rural Cemetery was incorporated April 20, 1841, and the site selected April 20, 1844. The premises were dedicated October 7 of the same year. The Cemetery is located among the hills west of the Troy and Albany Road, about four miles from the City. The grounds contain over 200 acres, are finely laid out and contain many elegant monuments. A station of the Rensselaer and Saratoga R. R. is near the entrance. The improvements made every year add to its beauty, and it bids fair to become one of the finest rural cemeteries in the country. Its variety of surface, hill and dale, ravine, dell, ponds and cascades, are attractions rarely seen of equal extent upon grounds devoted to the burial of the dead.

The population of the town in 1865 was 27,275, and its area 32,817 acres.

The number of school districts, according to the report of Sept. 30, 1869, was 28, employing 59 teachers. The number of children of school age was 14,076; the number attending school

7,400; the average attendance 2,759, and the amount expended for school purposes during the year was $67,292.03.

WESTERLO, named from Rev. Eilardus Westerlo, of Albany, who came from Holland in 1760 as pastor of the Reformed Dutch Church, was formed from Coeymans and Rensselaerville, March 16, 1815. It lies upon the south border of the County, near the center. Its surface is broken and hilly, with a general southerly inclination. The highest point in the northerly part of the town is 800 feet above tide. The hills are very steep and irregular, and the valleys are mere narrow ravines. The streams are Haanakrois, Basic, Wolf, Fly and Eight Mile Creeks and their branches. These are all rapid streams and are liable to severe freshets. The soil is a sandy and gravelly loam, interspersed with clay and underlaid with hardpan. There are several fine quarries in the town, from which flagging stones are taken.

Chesterville, (Westerlo p. o.,) named in honor of Rev. John Chester, formerly pastor of Second Presbyterian Church, Albany, is about a mile north of the center of the town, on Basic Creek, and contains two churches, viz., Baptist and Reformed; two hotels, four stores, a wagon shop, two blacksmith shops, a cooper shop, a harness shop, a shoe shop, two undertakers and about 215 inhabitants. About half a mile north of the village is the cheese factory of James A. Sloan. The building is 26 by 50 feet, with a wing 10 by 20.

Dormansville, (p. v.,) named in honor of Daniel Dorman, is located in the east part of the town and contains a Methodist church, a hotel, a store, a wagon and blacksmith shop, and 9 houses.

South Westerlo, (p. v.) in the south part of the town, on Basic Creek, contains a Christian church, a hotel, two stores, a grist mill, a saw mill, a woolen mill, a wagon shop, a blacksmith shop, a harness shop, a shoe shop and about 100 inhabitants.

Lamb's Corners and Van Leuwen's Corners are hamlets.

The settlement of this town commenced previous to the Revolution. Among the early settlers were Nicholas Stoddard, Philip Myers, Lodowick Haynes, William Haverland, Josiah Hinckley, a Revolutionary soldier, William Bird and his brother, James Arnold, Jacob Haynes, Abram Becker, Andrew Hannay and Rev. Reuben Stanton. Mr. Stanton was one of the first surveyors and received as compensation for his services 100 acres of land.

Philip Myers, the first settler, was born in Germany, Sept. 22, 1744. In 1753 he came with his father to America and landed at New Baltimore, Greene Co. Leaving the vessel they went into the country in search of a location, and stopped for a time with Andreas Whitbeck, an early settler of Coeymans. In the fall Mr. Myers left his son Philip, to return to Germany for the rest of his family, but was never heard of afterwards. Philip being thus bereft of his father, remained with Mr. Whitbeck until 1763, when he located on the present site of the village of Chesterville, erected a log house and kept bachelor's hall for two years, when he married a daughter of Nicholas Stoddard, who had settled there. After the commencement of the Revolution the Indians and Tories became somewhat troublesome, requiring him to be on the watch to avoid a surprise. Owing to the unsettled state of affairs, he took his family to Dutchess Co., where they remained until the close of the war, when they returned to their old home and remained there until their death. Mr. Myers died April 12, 1813, and his wife Oct. 23, 1833. The farm is now occupied by their grandchildren.

Andrew Hannay, another of the early settlers, was a native of Galloway, Scotland, born in 1733. He learned the coopers' trade and worked at that for some time, but at the age of 24 he enlisted in the 51st Regiment of Infantry and served in the King's army six years. The original discharge is now in the hands of his youngest son, David Hannay. In 1774 he came to America, landing in New York with only four shillings. He immediately obtained employment for himself and wife, where he continued for some time. His great desire appears to have been to obtain land for himself and his children. After trying his fortune in various places, he at length settled in Westerlo, on the farm now occupied by his youngest son, David Hannay. In 1777 he raised a company of volunteers to join Gen. Gates, but on reaching Albany and learning that Burgoyne had surrendered, the company was disbanded and returned to their homes.

Isaac Winston, a Revolutionary soldier, settled a little east of Chesterville. During the war he was taken prisoner and held for eighteen months. Stephen Mabey located on lot 337. Dr. Jonathan Prosser, from Dutchess County, settled in 1788 on the farm now occupied by his son, John Prosser. He was a skillful physician and had an extensive practice. Josiah Hinckley, a Revolutionary soldier, settled in 1783 on the farm now owned by his grandson, Charles Hinckley. At this time there were but eight families in the town.

Apollos Moore, afterwards first judge of the County, taught school in 1788. Robert O. K. Bemet taught a school in 1790.

Grant & Eadie kept a store and made potash at Chesterville in 1798. Lobbell & Baker built the first mill about 1795.

The Baptist Church was organized about 1800 at Chesterville. Roswell Beckwith was the first pastor. Their present house of worship is of wood and will seat 350. The membership is 198; the present pastor is Rev. William Carpenter.

The Reformed Church was organized about the same time, at Van Leuven's Corners.

Emanuel Church (Prot. Epis.) was organized at South Westerlo in 1854.

The population of Westerlo in 1865 was 2,497, and the area 35,177 acres.

There are 18 school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 800; the number attending school 665; the average attendance 281; and the amount expended for school purposes during the year ending, Sept. 30th, 1869, was $4,701.28.

SCHENECTADY COUNTY.

THIS COUNTY was formed from Albany, March 7, 1809. It is centrally distant twenty miles from Albany and contains 221 square miles. The greater part lies between Schoharie Creek and Mohawk River, only one town lying north of the Mohawk. The surface consists of the flats along the Mohawk, and an upland, generally broken by ridges and isolated hills from 200 to 350 feet above the river. The highlands are the northern continuation of the Helberbergh and Schoharie Mountains. The shales of the Hudson River group constitute the principal underlying rocks which crop out in the valleys and in the bottom of the ravines. In portions of Glenville and Duaneburgh this rock is underlaid by birdseye limestone, from which are obtained lime and building stone. The greater part of the surface is covered with a thick deposit of drift, consisting chiefly of clay in the west part, and sand in the east. The rocks crop out on the banks of the streams and form the declivities of the steeper hills. The soil in the west part is a tenacious clayey loam, underlaid by hardpan on the hills, and in the east it is light, sandy and of poor quality. The valley of the Mohawk consists of a deep rich alluvium, well adapted to tillage and extensively devoted to the cultivation of broomcorn. It is said that one-half of the entire broomcorn crop of the State is raised in this County. A large part of the broomcorn land is annually overflowed, rendering it very fertile. Many tracts have produced this crop for many years in succession.

The principal streams are Mohawk River, Schoharie Creek and Norman's Kil, and their tributaries. The valleys of these streams are generally bordered by the steep declivities of the uplands, rising to the height of about 300 feet. Many of the smaller streams have worn deep gulleys in the loose drift deposits, giving the surface a very broken character. Many of these streams are dry in summer. The alluvial flats near Schenectady, and extending west about five miles on the south side of the river, were called by the first settlers "The Bouwland," or arable land. A tract two miles in extent, north of the river, was called the "Maalwyck," meaning Whirlback, from the tortuous course of the Mohawk. A tract on both sides of the river, about four miles west of the City, was called "Woestina," meaning Wilderness. A region in the immediate vicinity of Schenectady was called "Oron-nygh-wurrie-gughre," and the hills were known as the "Yan-ta-puch-a-berg," which is a mixture of Indian and Dutch, meaning "John-ear-of-corn-hill." The hills on both sides of the river, above the City, were called "Tou-ar-e-u-ne." The streams of "Woestina," were "Werf Kil," or Paint Creek, "Zantzee Kil," or Sea Sand Creek, and "Righel-brigh Kil," or Railbridge Creek.

The valleys are well adapted to tillage, but the hills are better for pasturage. The Mohawk Valley was formerly noted for its large wheat crops, but there is much less raised now than formerly. The manufactures of the County are confined chiefly to the City of Schenectady.

The County Seat is located at Schenectady. The Court House is a substantial brick edifice, located on Union Street, and contains the court room, jail, Sheriff's office and Supervisors' room. The County Clerk's office is a small fire proof building, a short distance from the Court House, on the same street. The Surrogate's office is in the same building. The work of preparing the foundation of an enlargement to this building has already commenced, and when completed according to the present plan, the building will be one of the most commodious and convenient of any in the State, considering the size of the County, and highly creditable to the enterprising portion of the County, through whose efforts the improvement has been accomplished. The building when completed will be 60 by 36 feet, and two stories high. On the first floor will be the Clerk's office, 30 by 33 feet, and the Surrogate's office. On the second floor will be the Surrogate's court room, Supervisors' room and a room for the Library. The lower rooms will be fire-proof and all warmed by a heater in the cellar. The extreme height of the building above the side-walk will be forty-five feet, and its value when completed will be about $25,000.

The Alms House is located on a farm in the east part of the City. The greatest number of inmates at any one time during the last year was 78, and the least number 64. There were five deaths and one birth during the year. The whole expense of supporting the poor of the County during the last year was $10,291.10, and the weekly expense of supporting each was $2.22. The rent of the farm is estimated at $400.

The County have a Fair and Parade Ground of about thirty acres, surrounded by a high, substantial and tight board fence, a short distance from the business portion of the City. The County laid out about $10,000, and the County Agricultural Society about $1,500. Sheds and other buildings have been erected, and a drive of a half a mile laid out upon the grounds. When the improvements are completed according to the present plan, Schenectady will have one of the finest grounds for fairs and military parades in the State.

The first newspaper published in the County was

The Western Spectator, issued previous to 1807.

The Schenectady Cabinet was commenced in January 1809, by Isaac Riggs. In 1850 it passed into the hands of S. S. Riggs, who continued it until 1857.

The Reflector and Schenectady Democrat. It was successively published by G. Yates, E. H. Kincaid, A. A. Keyser and Fred. W. Hoffman, and others, until May 1867, when it was purchased by J. J. Marlett and its name changed to

THE SCHENECTADY REFLECTOR, under which title it is still published by Mr. Marlett.

Freedom's Sentinel was issued during the campaign of 1840, by Stephen S. Riggs.

The Antiquarian and General Review was a monthly, started in 1845 by Rev. W. Arthur, and continued two years.

The Scroll was published a short time in 1849.

The Schenectady Morning Star was started February 24, 1854, by W. M. Chadbourne and W. N. Clark. It was soon after changed to

THE SCHENECTADY EVENING STAR. In September 1865 it passed into the hands of J. J. Marlett, the present publisher.

The Schenectady Daily News was started April 1859 and discontinued soon after.

The Schenectady Republican was started in 1857 by Colbourne & Landon. In 1867 it was merged in the Reflector.

THE SCHENECTADY DAILY UNION was started in the fall of 1865 by Charles Stanford, the present publisher.

THE SCHENECTADY WEEKLY UNION is issued from the same office.

THE WEEKLY GAZETTE was started May 13, 1869, by Walter N. Thayer. In January 1870 it passed into the hands of James H. Wiseman, the present publisher.

The public works of the County are the Erie Canal, which crosses the Mohawk in the north part of the town of Niskayuna, and thence extends along the valley, through Schenectady and Rotterdam; the New York Central Railroad, including the Troy and Schenectady Branch, the Saratoga and Schenectady Railroad, the Saratoga and Hudson and the Albany and Susquehanna Railroads, all extend through some part of the County. A railroad from Schenectady, connecting with the Albany and Susquehanna, in the town of Duaneburgh, is soon to be built, forming a direct communication with Binghamton and the great coal region of Pennsylvania. A survey of a route from Schenectady to Ogdensburg has already been made, and a favorable report rendered as to its feasibility. This, when built, will open a large extent of country that has not hitherto had any communication by rail with the rest part of the State.

The settlement of this County was commenced in 1661. The great flat upon the Mohawk, embracing the present site of Schenectady, was purchased of the natives in 1661, by Arent Van Corlear. The grantors of this tract were four Mohawk chiefs, named Cantuque, Sonareetsie, Aiadane and Sodackdrasse. The grant was confirmed the next year, and in 1664 the tract was surveyed. The inhabitants of Fort Orange, wishing to monopolize the trade with the Indians, required from the settlers a written pledge to abstain from trading with them, before the land was received from the Surveyor. A remonstrance against this was signed by the following early settlers, viz: A. Van Corlear, Philip Hendrickson, Sanders Lendertsen Glen, Simon Volcretsen, Pieter Soghmaekelyk, Teunis Cornelissen, Marte Cornelise, William Teller, Bastiaen De Winter for Catalyn, widow of Arent Andries de Voss, Pieter Jacobse Borsboom, Pieter Danielse Van Olinda, Jan Barentse Wemp and Jaques Cornelise. It was under the charge of five Commissioners until November 1, 1684, when Governor Dongan granted a patent confirming previous rights and extending the territory so that it embraced Schenectady, Glenville, Rotterdam and a part of Niskayuna. William Teller, Ryer Schermerhorn, Sweer Tunison, Jan Van Eps and Myndert Wemp were appointed Trustees under this grant. In 1702 R. Schermerhorn became sole trustee, and in 1705 a new patent was issued, confirming certain township privileges. On the 23d of October, 1765, the place was created a borough with the rights and privileges incident to those corporations.

In 1690 a party of between 200 and 300 French and Indians left Montreal for the purpose of making an attack upon Fort Orange. The weather was very cold and the party experienced extreme hardships, being compelled sometimes to "march up to their knees in water and to break the ice with their feet in order to find solid footing." About four o'clock in the afternoon of February 8th, after a march of 17 days, they arrived within about six miles of Schenectady, where they made a halt and were harangued by the great Mohawk Chief of the Iroquois. At eleven o'clock they came in sight of the town and resolved to defer the assault until two o'clock in the morning, but the intense cold admitted of no further delay.

"The town of Corlear (Schenectady) forms a sort of oblong with only two gates, one opposite the road we had taken, the other leading to Orange, which is only six leagues distant. Messieurs de Sainte Helene and de Mantet were to enter at the first which the squaws pointed out, and which in fact was found wide open. Messieurs d'Iberville and de Montesson took the left, with another detachment, in order to make themselves masters of that leading to Orange. But they could not discover it and returned to join the remainder of the party. A profound silence was everywhere preserved until the two commanders who separated at their entrance into the town for the purpose of encircling it, had met at the other extremity. The signal of attack was given Indian fashion and the entire force rushed on simultaneously. M. de Mantet placed himself at the head of a detachment, and reached a small fort where the garrison was under arms. The gate was burst in after a good deal of difficulty, the whole set on fire and all who defended the place slaughtered. The sack of the town began a moment before the attack on the fort. Few houses made any resistance. M. de Montigny discovered some which he attempted to carry sword in hand having tried the musket in vain. He received two thrusts of a spear, one in the body and one in the arm. But M. de Sainte Helene having come to his aid, effected an entrance and put every one who defended the place to the sword. The massacre lasted two hours. The remainder of the night was spent in placing sentinels and in taking some repose. The house belonging to the minister was ordered to be saved, so as to take him alive to obtain information from him, but as it was not known it was not spared any more than the others. He was slain and his papers burnt before he could be recognized. At daybreak the same men were sent to the dwelling of Mr. Coudre (Sanders), who was Major of the place and who lived at the other side of the river. He was not willing to surrender and began to put himself on the defensive with his servants and some Indians, but it was resolved not to do him any harm, in consequence of the good treatment that the French had formerly experienced at his hands. M. d'Iberville and the great Mohawk proceeded thither alone, promised him quarter for himself, his people and his property, whereupon he laid down his arms, on parole, entertaining them in his fort and returning with them to see the commandants of the town."

The houses had already been set on fire, and none were spared except one belonging to Coudre, and that of a widow who had six children, whither Montigny had been carried when wounded. Sixty men, women and children were put to death, some of them in the most barbarous manner. Twenty-seven were taken prisoners and fifty or sixty escaped. The loss in houses, cattle and grain, was estimated at more than four hundred thousand livres. The enemy took away with them fifty horses, only sixteen of which reached Montreal, the remainder having been killed for food on the road.

The settlement at this time consisted of about eighty houses, nearly all of which were burned. A few of the inhabitants escaped to Albany, the nearest place of refuge, and gave the alarm. The fear of an attack upon that place prevented as vigorous a pursuit of the enemy as would otherwise have been made. A small force sent in pursuit were compelled to return on account of the deep snow and the excessive cold.

The place was never visited by a hostile enemy after 1690, but the Fort was kept up, provision having been frequently made for rebuilding and repairing the same. During the Revolution the place was garrisoned at the public expense, and many families from the upper Mohawk sought protection from the incursions of Tories and Indians. A large number of friendly Oneida and Tuscarora Indians, driven from their homes, were supported in this vicinity at the public expense, for several years succeeding 1779.

After the return of peace the settlement shared in the general prosperity. The improvements of the Western Inland Navigation Company gave a new impulse to trade by enabling larger boats to navigate the Mohawk. The Company cleared the river of impediments as much as possible, built a lock at Little Falls, and in 1796 constructed a canal between the Mohawk and Wood Creek, leading into Oneida Lake, thus opening communication by water with the chain of lakes in the interior of the State, and with Lake Ontario and the St. Lawrence. The boats were propelled up stream by setting poles, and were floated down by the current. The navigation of the Mohawk was entirely abandoned on the completion of the Erie Canal. The railroads centering in Schenectady afford unusual facilities for communicating with all parts of the State.

The following account of an expedition of the French "into ye terrytories of His Royal Highnesse the Duke of Yorke in America," is taken from "Documentary History," the principal change being in the orthography:

"On the 29th of December Monsier Coarsell the Governor of Canada, in New France, began his march with nearly six hundred men, to seek out their inveterate enemies called the Mohawk Indians in their own country and forts, there to take revenge upon them for the several murders and spoils which the barbarians had for many years exercised in Canada upon the French, and the Indians of those parts even to the ruin of most, but to the insufferable discouragement of all those inhabitants, who being taken alive were usually tortured and eaten, or burnt by the Mohawks. If not taken they lived in perpetual alarms to see their dwelling houses burnt, their cattle and corn destroyed. All which powerful arguments furnished the French with heat enough to march over the frozen lake of Canada, and taking their time that the snow upon the ground was hard frozen (though in most places four feet deep,) made use of Indian snow shoes which have the form of a racket tied to each foot, whereby the body and feet are kept from sinking into the snow, and because it was not possible for horses to pass or subsist in the snow, or for the soldiers to carry their necessary provisions on their backs, and had less expectation to meet with any relief in the vast wilderness, the Governor caused slight sledges to be made in good number, laying provisions upon them, drew them over the snow with dogs, all these difficulties put together impeded his march, and by the mistake of his guides happened to fall short of the castles of the Mohawks, and to take up his quarters, or rather encamp upon the 9th of February within two miles of a small village called Schonectade, lying within the woods beyond Fort Albany in the territories of his Royal Highness, and three days march from the first castle of the Mohawks."

The French supposed they had arrived at their place of destination, and encountering a party of Mohawks who, under the appearance of retreating, drew a party of sixty French fusileers into an ambuscade of about two hundred Mohawks stationed behind the trees. At the first fire eleven Frenchmen were killed, one of whom was a lieutenant, and several others wounded. The French party immediately fell back upon the main body, giving the Mohawks an opportunity to escape with three killed and six wounded. The Indians immediately reported this encounter to the Commissary of the village, bringing with them as trophies the heads of four Frenchmen. The news was immediately sent to Albany, and the next day three of the principal inhabitants were sent to the Governor of Canada to inquire as to his intention in bringing such a body of armed men into the dominions of His Majesty of Great Britain, without acquainting the Governor of these parts of his designs. Governor Coursell replied that he came to seek out and destroy his enemies, the Mohawks, without the intention of visiting their plantations or of molesting any of His Majesty's subjects, and that he had not heard of these parts being reduced to his Majesty's subjection. He desired that he and his soldiers might be supplied with provisions for their money, and that his wounded men might be taken to Albany and cared for. To all of this the Embassy sent from Albany assented, and made him a small present of wine and provisions, and offered him the best accommodations afforded. These he declined, as there were not accommodations for his soldiers, with whom he had marched and camped for six weeks. He could more easily keep his soldiers from straggling, as they feared the Indians on every side. The next day the wounded were sent to Albany. The Dutch inhabitants of Schenectady supplied the French with peas, bread and such other provisions as they could spare. The Mohawks had gone to their castles, and the French, with a show of marching against them, in reality directed their course to Canada.

“Upon the 12th of February, whether a panic fear, mutiny or the probability of the thawing of the lake caused this sudden retreat, which the Indians called dishonorable, I cannot learn, but surely so bold and hardy an attempt, all things considered, has not happened in any age. All which vanished like false fire and gave new courage to their old enemies, the Mohawks, who by their spies, hearing of the retreat of the French pursued them to the lake, but the French making greater speed, did not suffer serious damage from the pursuit, losing only three prisoners, one of whom the Mohawks put to death at his own request, as he was unable to march. Five others who perished by cold and hunger were scalped and left where they fell. Those who observed the words and countenance of Monsieur Coursell, saw him disturbed in mind that the King was master of these parts of the country where he expected to find the Dutch interest the uppermost, saying that the King of England did grasp at all America, but he did not believe to see the Dutch the masters ere long. He inquired what garrison or what fort was at Albany, and was told that a captain and sixty English soldiers with nine pieces of ordnance in a small fort of four bastions, and that the captain thereof, Captain Baker had sent twenty men from another garrison of the King at Sopes, who probably might be in Albany at the same time, thus finding his men tired, the Mohawks resolute and something doubtful without trial of the good will of the English garrison because the reports were strong that the French King and the States of Holland were united against his Majesty of England. Monsieur Coursell found it reasonable to return home, nothing effected, the two prisoners taken by the Mohawks in the retreat tell them that this summer another attempt will be made upon their country with a greater force and supplies of men, the truth or success of which I shall not now discourse upon, having given the true relation of what passed from the 29th of December to the 12th of February.”

Though one of the smallest counties in the State, Schenectady has steadily progressed in population and in all the enterprises of the age. The first railroad in the State connected Albany and Schenectady, and was built about 1830. In 1832 a railroad was built to Saratoga; in 1835 to Utica; in 1843 to Troy; and in 1868 to Athens. Other roads are projected and will be built in due time. The plank road mania, that prevailed to such an extent about twenty years ago, was participated in by the inhabitants of this County, but, as in other parts, the roads have been abandoned.

The call of President Lincoln, April 15, 1861, for 75,000 volunteers, was responded to by the citizens of Schenectady, who held a meeting on the evening of the 19th, when forty-seven men enrolled their names to an application to be organized into a company. The Company was organized the next day with William Seward Gridley, Captain; and Daniel Daley, First Lieutenant. It was attached to the Eighteenth Regiment upon its organization, May 11th, and designated as Company A. It numbered 74 besides the officers, 60 of whom were from the City. The Regiment was commanded by Col. Wm. A. Jackson. The Company was in the first battle of Bull Run, and in several other engagements, remaining in the service two years. About the first of May another company was organized and officered by Capt. Stephen Truax and First Lieutenant William Horsfall. It numbered 78 men and was attached to the Eighteenth Regiment as Co. E. Captain Truax resigned soon after on account of ill health, and Lieutenant Horsfall was promoted to the command. He led the Company in the various battles fought by the Army of the Potomac, and was killed at South Mountain, while cheering his men on to the conflict. Another company was organized about the same time as those already mentioned, and officered by Captain B. M. Van Voast and Lieutenants M. V. V. Smith and E. B. Van Voast. It was attached to the Thirtieth Regiment. These three companies were organized in answer to the first call, and previous to the battle of Bull Run. Many persons belonging to this County attached themselves to other organizations. We have no means of determining the number of men who enlisted from this County during the war, but the several calls were responded to with a readiness that showed that Schenectady was not behind the other counties in furnishing men and means to crush out the most gigantic rebellion the world ever saw.

GAZETTEER OF TOWNS.

DUANESBURGH, named in honor of James Duane, the principal proprietor, was erected as a township by patent, March 13, 1765. It was first joined with Schoharie as "the united district of Duanesburgh and Schoharie." It was made a separate district March 24, 1772, and was first recognized as a town March 22, 1788. It lies in the south-west corner of the County. The surface consists of an upland, broken by the narrow valleys and gulleys of small streams. Schoharie Creek forms a portion of the west boundary, and Norman's Kil flows through the south part. The hills which border upon these streams are steep and in some places rocky. The other principal streams are Corry's Brook, Chuctenunda Creek and Bozen Kil. Maria Pond and Featherston Lake are two small sheets of water in the north-east part, about 250 feet above the canal. The soil is a stiff clay loam with a slight intermixture of gravel. It is better adapted to pasturage than to tillage. The Albany & Susquehanna Railroad extends through the south part of the town.

Duanesburgh, (p. v.) in the south-east part of the town, contains a hotel, two stores, several mechanic shops, and about a dozen dwellings.

Quaker Street, (p. v.) in the south part, contains three churches, a hotel, several stores and mechanic shops, and about 30 dwellings.

Mariaville, (p. v.) in the north-east part, on Maria Pond, contains two churches, two hotels, several stores, mills and mechanic shops, and about 20 dwellings.

Braman's Corners, (p. v.) in the west part, contains two churches and about a dozen dwellings.

Eaton's Corners is a hamlet in the west part.

The settlement of this town commenced about the time of its organization in 1765, though large tracts had previously been purchased by different parties. Mr. James Duane purchased a tract of about 60,000 acres, and contracted with twenty Germans from Pennsylvania, sixteen of whom came on and made permanent settlements. The lands were leased for about fifteen dollars per hundred acres, on long leases. The agents of Sir William Johnson excited a prejudice against these lands and somewhat retarded their settlement.

The first church (Prot. Epis.) was organized Aug. 3, 1795, and the church edifice was erected by Judge Duane. Rev. David Belden was the first rector.

The Presbyterian Church of Mariaville was organized as a Reformed Protestant Dutch Church, July 19, 1842, and was re-organized as a Presbyterian Church, June 15th, 1859. The number of members at its organization was 28. The first pastor was James Donald. The first house of worship was erected in 1842 at a cost of $2,000; its present value is $3,000. It will seat 300. Rev. David Lyon is the present pastor. The membership is 59.

The population of the town in 1865 was 3,099, and its area 42,392 acres.

There are 21 school districts, employing 22 teachers. The number of children of school age is 1,073; the number attending school, 796; the average attendance, 386, and the amount expended for school purposes for the year ending September 30, 1869, was $5,267.91.

GLENVILLE, named in honor of S. L. Glen, the patentee of the township, was formed from Schenectady, April 14, 1820. It lies on the north bank of the Mohawk, and is the only town in the County, on that side. The central and west parts are occupied by rugged and wooded hills, rising abruptly from the valley of the river to a height of 300 feet. The east part is nearly level. The principal streams are Crabbs Kil, Chaughta-noon-da, Aalplaats and Jan Wemps Creeks, and Verf Kil. The soil among the hills is a stiff clay, underlaid by hardpan, with an occasional outcrop of slate; and in the east part it is a sandy and gravelly loam. The Mohawk Flats are very fertile and devoted to a great extent to raising broom corn. The N. Y. C. R. R. and the Schenectady and Saratoga R. R. extend through the town.

Glenville, (p. v.,) in the north-east part, contains two churches and about 20 dwellings.

Reeseville, (Scotia p. o.,) in the south part, near the river, contains two churches and about 300 inhabitants.

High Mills, in the north-east part, is a hamlet, containing a woolen factory and several mills.

Hoffman's Ferry (p. o.,) is a station on the N. Y. C. R. R. A ferry was established here in 1790, by Hermanus Vedder. It was called Vedder's Ferry until 1835, when it was bought by John Hoffman and received its present name.

East Glenville (p. o.,) is in the east part of the town.

Bridges connect this town with Schenectady and Niskayuna.

Settlements were commenced about 1665 and were among the earliest in the County. The country around Scotia was granted to Sanders Lendertsen Glen, a native of Scotland, who removed to Holland in 1645 on account of religious persecutions. After several years spent in mercantile pursuits, he removed to this country. Van Slyck's Island was granted to Jaques Van Slyck, in 1662. A party of Frenchmen sent against the Mohawks became reduced to such extremities on arriving at this place, as to seek assistance from the English. They were so kindly treated by Mr. Sanders at this time, that when the country was invaded in 1690, and Schenectady destroyed, Mr. Sanders' house was spared. Several of his descendants still reside in the town.

The First Reformed Church of Glenville was organized in April 1813, with twenty members, and a house of worship was erected about the same time. Rev. Peter Van Zandt was the first pastor. The original cost of the church was about $2,000. It was extensively repaired in 1837 and will seat about 450. The present pastor is Rev John Miner. The society contemplate erecting a new church during the present year, at a cost of $10,000 or $15,000.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of West Glenville was organized in 1822 with seventy members. The first pastor was Rev. Roswell Kelly. The first house of worship was erected in 1823, and the present house in 1842. The present pastor is Rev. — Patterson. The church will seat 250 persons and is valued at $2,500.

The population of Glenville in 1865 was 3,038, and its area 29,653 acres.

There are 14 school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 1,020; the number attending school 708; the average attendance 313, and the amount expended for school purposes for the year ending September 30, 1869, was $6,319.33.

NISKAYUNA was formed from Watervliet, (Albany Co.,) March 7, 1809. A part of Schenectady was annexed in 1853. It lies upon the Mohawk, in the east part of the County. Its surface is chiefly upland, terminating in steep bluffs upon the river valley. The river flats are very fertile and productive. A strip of land about a mile wide, extending back from the bluffs, has a hard clay soil and much of it is swampy and unfit for cultivation. Further south the soil is sandy.

Niskayuna, (p. o.) in the south-east corner, is a hamlet.

The first settlement of this town was commenced about 1640. Among the early settlers were the Clutes, Vedders, Van Vrankens, Groots, Tymesons, Pearces, Jansens and Van Bockhoovens. The canal crosses the Mohawk into this town on a magnificent stone aqueduct. By an act of 1805, Alexander was authorized to erect a dam at this place.

The population of the town in 1865 was 845, and its area 7,443 acres.

There are four school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 345; the number attending school 226; the average attendance 117, and the amount expended for school purposes during the year ending September 30, 1869, was $1,525.66.

PRINCETOWN, named in honor of John Prince, a member of Assembly from Albany Co. when the town was formed, was formed from Schenectady, March 26, 1798. It lies a little west of the center of the County. The surface consists of a broken upland, gently descending towards the south-east. The streams are Norman's Kil, in the south, and Zantzee Kil in the north. A cascade sixty feet in height is upon this stream, and from this point to the Mohawk are several rapids and small cascades. The soil is a heavy clay loam, underlaid by hardpan, and is best adapted to grazing.

Princetown (p. o.) is a hamlet in the southern part.

This town was conveyed chiefly to George Ingoldsby and Aaron Bradt, in 1737. William Corry subsequently became the owner and formed a settlement which was long known as "Corry's Bush." The town was thinly settled at the time of the Revolution. The Princetown Academy was opened on a large scale in 1853, and was discontinued in 1856.

The population in 1865 was 931, and the area 14,421 acres.

There are seven school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 345; the number attending school, 287; the average attendance, 137, and the amount expended for school purposes for the year ending September 30, 1869, was $1,852.07.

ROTTERDAM was formed from Schenectady, April 14, 1820. A part of the City was annexed in 1853. It lies near the center of the County, upon the south bank of the Mohawk.

The surface consists of a broken, hilly region in the north-west, a level interval extending from the center towards the south, and a high plain in the east. The soil upon the west hills is a tough clay, underlaid by shale, which frequently crops out. The central valley or plain, extending five miles, was called by the Dutch the "Bouwlandt." The soil is a deep alluvium. The east plateau is sandy and barren.

Rotterdam, Mohawkville and Factoryville are hamlets.

Settlements were commenced about 1661. Among the early settlers were Wilhelmus Van Otto, Van Curazoa, a native of the Island of Curazoa, Ryer Schermerhorn and Simon Veeder. The house of Van Otto stood on the site of the one formerly occupied by Simon Veeder. During the Revolution there were families living in town by the name of Delemont, Van Pelten and Brangham.

The first church was organized August 29, 1800. Rev. Thomas Romeyn was the first pastor.

The Methodist Episcopal Church of Rotterdam was organized in 1846, by the Presiding Elder Lindsey, and consisted of 60 members. Revs. S. Covel and W. R. Brown were the first pastors. A house of worship was erected about the same time. The present house was erected in 1866 at a cost of about $4,000. Its seating capacity is about 400. The present membership is 120; the present pastor is Rev. Demas Burroughs. James Fisher, Sen., purchased the site for the church, of Daniel D. Campbell, in 1844, and presented it to the society. Mr. Fisher came from England in 1818, and is still living, in the 86th year of his age.

The population in 1865 was 2,290, and the area 21,052 acres.

There are twelve school districts, employing the same number of teachers. The number of children of school age is 905; the number attending school 480; the average attendance 251, and the amount expended for school purposes for the year ending September 30, 1869, was $4,513.70.

SCHENECTADY CITY was patented with certain municipal rights, Nov. 4, 1684; it was chartered as a borough, October 23, 1765; incorporated as a district, March 24, 1772; as a town, March 7, 1788; and as a city, March 26, 1798. Princetown was taken off in 1798, Rotterdam and Glenville in 1820, and parts of Niskayuna and Rotterdam in 1853. The name is of Indian origin and signifies "beyond the plains." In old documents we find it spelled Schenectada and Schenectedi. The City, under its first charter, contained an area of 128 square miles, but has now an area of about 550 acres. It is situated on the Mohawk River, on the borders of one of the finest alluvial flats in the State. Its situation affords excellent facilities for trade and commerce by the Erie Canal, which passes through it, and the railroads extending through and terminating here. The New York Central Railroad, forming one of the great thoroughfares between the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans, with its branches to Troy and Athens on the Hudson; the Saratoga and Schenectady Railroad, affording easy and rapid communication with the north and east, have all been in successful operation for many years. A short road from Schenectady to Duaneburgh is about to be constructed, connecting with the Albany and Susquehanna Railroad, giving a direct communication with Binghamton and the coal region of Pennsylvania. A survey has been made for a railroad from Schenectady to Ogdensburgh, on the St. Lawrence, which, when completed, will form a direct road to New York.

The City contains 14 churches, Union College, two daily and three weekly newspapers, three banks, the Schenectady Locomotive Works, agricultural works, several machine shops, foundries, carriage factories, planing mills, manufactories of steam boilers, hollow ware and various other articles, and about 12,000 inhabitants.

Union College was incorporated by the Regents February 25, 1795, and received its name from the co-operation and union of several religious denominations in its foundation. As early as 1779 the inhabitants north of the Mohawk River petitioned for the incorporation of a college, but without success. In 1782, and again in 1791, the petition was renewed with no better success than before. In 1793 an academy was incorporated, and an effort made to raise funds to secure the endowment of a college. The sum of $7,935 was subscribed by ninety-nine persons in Albany, and $3,425 by 231 persons in Schenectady. This amount was further increased, and through the influence of General Philip Schuyler, the College was located at Schenectady. In 1805, 1814 and in 1822, lotteries were authorized by the Legislature, the net proceeds of which were to be appropriated to the endowment of the College. The total amount for permanent investment in 1822 amounted to $331,612.13. The proceeds of the last lottery were so involved with the private property of Dr. Nott, who managed the whole, that it required several months to ascertain the rights of the two parties. The question having been amicably adjusted, Dr. Nott, on the 28th of December, 1858, made over to the Trustees several hundred thousand dollars, the proceeds of which are applied to the various purposes of the College. The first college building was erected on Union Street, and is now occupied by the public schools of the City. In 1814 the tract of land now occupied by the College was purchased, and the buildings subsequently erected. The site is upon an eminence that overlooks the City, sufficiently near the business portion for all practical purposes, and far enough away to avoid the noise, dust and confusion incident to a City. The first president was Rev. John Blair Smith, who was succeeded in 1799 by Rev. Jonathan Edwards, who held the office until his death in August 1801. Rev. Jonathan Maxcy was the next president, and was succeeded in 1804 by Rev. Eliphalet Nott, who held the office until his death, January 29, 1866. During his presidency, over 4,000 young men graduated, a large number of whom have been conspicuous in political, commercial and ecclesiastical life. For many years the Junior and Senior classes were by far the largest in the College, a very unusual thing. Dr. Nott contributed largely of his private property, and several professorships bear his name. In 1855 the College was partially reorganized, and departments of Civil Engineering and Analytical Chemistry were established. Besides the courses of special instruction in the departments just named, there are two courses of study in the institution, the Classical and the Scientific, each of which embraces a course of four years. The apparatus of the College is ample for illustrating the principles of the various branches taught, including a full supply of field instruments for the Engineering department. A valuable collection of minerals and shells, known as the "Wheatly Collection," and purchased for $10,000, was presented to the College by E. C. Delavan, Esq. About 4,000 specimens of minerals have been systematically arranged and labeled for the purpose of instruction, and form a collection which stands among the first in the country in value and interest. A large number of students have their bills for instruction paid wholly or in part by scholarships which are accessible, under certain restrictions, to all who present the requisite certificates of character, and sustain the examination required for admission to the regular classes of the College. The last annual catalogue gives the names of 114 undergraduates in the various classes, 92 of whom were residents of this State. The Faculty consists of fourteen professors and teachers, at the head of whom is Rev. Charles Augustus Aiken, Ph. D., D. D., President.

The Public Schools of the City are under the control of ten Commissioners, two from each ward, who hold their office for two years; one from each ward being chosen annually. The schools are graded and afford instruction in all the branches usually taught in the best public schools of the State. Thirty-one teachers are employed. The number of children of school age is 3,654; the number who attended school some portion of the last year was 1,950; the average daily attendance was 1,176; the amount expended for teachers' wages was $11,744.20, and the whole amount expended for school purposes during the year was $17,755.24. The number of volumes in the library is 3,000, valued at $4,600. The estimated value of school house sites is $15,000, and of school houses $28,000.

The Schenectady Locomotive Works Co. was incorporated in 1851, with a capital of $130,000. About 600 hands are employed, turning out about 75 locomotives annually. The officers of the Company are John C. Ellis, President; Charles G. Ellis, Treasurer; Walter McQueen, Superintendent.

The New State Arsenal is a fine brick edifice, occupying a commanding position near the Park. Its size is about 75 by 100 feet, and two stories high, with a Mansard roof, and cost $40,000.

Vale Cemetery occupies a beautiful site a short distance from the City. It is handsomely laid out and contains many fine monuments. When the present contemplated improvements are completed it will form one of the most beautiful rural cemeteries of its size in this part of the State. Among the monuments of this Cemetery is one "Sacred to the memory of 57 American soldiers who were buried at Schenectady during the Revolution." The monument was erected by the citizens of Schenectady in 1859.

The first settlement of Schenectady was made in 1661, as already noticed in the sketch of the County. As this was a frontier settlement, the compact part was at an early day surrounded by palisades, as a protection against the incursions of the Indians. In 1690 the inclosure was in the form of an oblong rectangle, with gates at the ends. The gates were frequently left open, and sometimes no guard was kept, the people feeling so secure. This was the situation on the memorable night of February 9th, 1690, when the French and Indians made the attack, killing sixty-three persons and carrying twenty-seven into captivity. The lives of sixty old persons and children were spared in this massacre. The settlement recovered slowly from the disaster, and but few accessions were made previous to the close of King William's War. A new fort was built in May 1690, which was garrisoned for many years. Another fort was built in 1735, and still another in 1780. By an act of 1780, all the people living within a half mile of the Dutch church were assessed in labor and materials for the erection of defensive works, the work to be done under the direction of the field officers and magistrates. The old Fort stood at the intersection of Ferry and Front Streets. The following description of Schenectady in 1757, is from "Documentary History of New York."

"Chenectedi or Corlear, situated on the bank of the Mohawk River, is a village of about 300 houses. It is surrounded by upright pickets, flanked from distance to distance. Entering this village by the gates on the Fort Hunter side, there is a fort to the right which forms a species of citadel in the interior of the village itself. It is a square flanked with four bastions or demi-bastions and is constructed half of masonry and half of timbers piled one over the other above the masonry. It is capable of holding two or three hundred men. There are some pieces of cannon as a battery on the rampart. It is not encircled by a ditch. The entrance is through a large swing gate raised like a drawbridge. By penetrating the village in attacking it at another point, the fire from the fort can be avoided. The greatest portion of the inhabitants of Chenectedi are Dutch."

"From Chenectedi to Albany or Orange is estimated to be six or seven leagues. The road is excellent for all sorts of carriages; the soil is sandy and the country covered with open timber. There are only a few hills. A league and a half from Chenectedi, there is a house on the road which is a tavern. A league and a half further on, that is to say half way, another house is met which is also a tavern." * * * "The Mohawk River can be forded during the summer a league and a quarter west of Chenectedi. Opposite Chenectedi the traverse is usually in a ferry boat and bateaux. The inhabitants of this country are Dutchmen. They form a company of about one hundred men with those on the opposite side of the river below Fort Hunter."

In 1802 Rev. John Taylor, a missionary sent out from Massachusetts, made a tour through the region of the Mohawk and Black Rivers. He says: "Schenectady makes a singular appearance, being built in the old Dutch form—the houses generally one story or a story and a half and standing endwise to the street. Its local situation is excellent, standing upon the south bank of the Mohawk, and there appears in everything a simplicity and neatness that is very pleasing."

The first mail was brought to this town April 3, 1763. The first English school was opened under the supervision of Rev. Henry Barclay, in 1710. In 1771 Rev. Wm. Andrews opened a grammar school, and in a letter to Sir W. Johnson, dated Nov. 5, 1771, he says, "I have determined on forming it into an Academy and propose giving instructions in reading, writing, arithmetic, geography and history, to those who may be designed to fill the stations of actual life, exclusive of those who may be taught the learned languages, book-keeping and merchants accounts, to fit them for business or the mechanic arts. At present I have thirteen scholars, and as the prices are moderate for teaching and receiving boarders, I have a good prospect of getting more daily." In the same letter he says: "What I only wish for is, that the venerable Society would please to add something to my income, either on account of the school, or because of the poverty of the mission. For I believe I may safely pronounce it to be one of the poorest missions on the Continent. Still I would not wish to appear discontented, for I am far from being so, I only wish to have my income so settled in a moderate way that I can make it barely satisfy my few wants." In 1785 the Consistory of the Dutch Church erected a small academy on the corner of Ferry and Union Streets, and in 1793 the Schenectady Academy was incorporated, and was merged in the College in 1795. In 1816 a Lancasterian school was incorporated and was continued in operation until the present school system was adopted.

The first church organization in the town was the Reformed Dutch. The oldest preserved record of the Church is dated 1681. This record is an account of bonds belonging to the Church, and shows that it had been in existence for some time previous. The first church edifice was erected in 1684 at what is now the junction of State and Church Streets. The first pastor was Rev. Petrus Thesschawmiascher, who continued in charge of the Church until February 9th, 1690, when he fell a victim to the French and Indians during that memorable massacre. Previous to his appointment in 1684, this Church was occasionally supplied by the ministers from Albany. Rev. Barnhardus Freeman was the second pastor, and came here in 1700. About this time a second church edifice was erected, the Governor granting a special license for the inhabitants or their agents, "to gather, collect and receive the free and voluntary offerings and contributions of all and singular his liege subjects, inhabitants of his province, at any time from the day of the date thereof for and during the term of six months then ensuing." The funds raised were restricted to the rebuilding of the church, and all justices of the peace, high sheriffs, and all others, His Majesty's friends, with all Protestant ministers, were exhorted to use each their utmost diligence to excite and stir up the charities of the inhabitants. This church was converted into a fort in 1734. After a pastorate of five years, Mr. F. was transferred to Kings County, and the Church in Schenectady was supplied by the Albany ministers for ten years, when Rev. Thomas Browsers became the pastor. In 1715 the society purchased the lot now occupied by the church, together with a dwelling house, which was occupied as a parsonage for nearly one hundred years. In 1734 a massive stone church was erected at the corner of Church and Union Streets. Another one of brick was erected near the same site in 1814, and continued to be occupied by the society until August 6, 1861. The present church edifice was dedicated August 6, 1863. It is one of the finest structures in the State, and cannot fail to attract the attention of all by its beautiful and unique appearance. It is situated at the corner of Union and Church Streets, upon a lot about 141 by 189 feet. The main building fronts Union Street, and the consistory room Church Street. In the angle between them stands the tower. The buildings are so placed as to leave a large open space in front. The whole building, including buttresses, measures outside 113 feet from north to south, and 116 from east to west; and it is 170 feet from the ground to the top of the spire. The building is of stone, covered with slate, the walls of which are constructed of Graywacke, while a variety of other stones is introduced to adorn the structure. Edward Tuckerman Potter was the architect of the church. On the occasion of the dedication, a sermon was delivered by Rev. Edward Seelye, the pastor of the Church. The original cost of the church was about $50,000, but its present value is nearly double that sum. It will seat about 1,000. The present membership is 450, and the present pastor is Rev. D. Wortman, D. D.

St. George's Church (Episcopal) was organized in 1750 by Rev. Henry Barclay. It was incorporated in 1766, and an edifice erected in 1768. From a letter written by John W. Brown of Schenectady, to Sir William Johnson, Oct. 19th, 1768, we learn that the church was not completed. After expressing grateful sentiments to him, he says: "We shall instantly set about finishing the church, though I fear it will be too late in the season to plaster the walls. According to order I have sent a barrel of Rusk, branded on the head E. B., which I hope has come safe to hand." The present house of worship will seat about 1,000 and is valued at $18,000. The number of communicants is 340. The present rector is Rev. Wm. Payne, D. D.

The following inscription is on a slab in St. George's Church:

"In memory of John W. Brown who departed this life June 30th, 1814, aged 87 years. A native of Great Britain, came to Schenectady in 1748, where he remained until his death. The founder and steady friend of this Church."

The First M. E. Church of Schenectady was organized in February 1807 by Rev. Alexander McKean. The first pastor was Rev. Samuel Howe. The first house of worship was erected in 1809, and the present house in 1834. In 1816 the membership was fifty; it now numbers 350. Rev. J. W. Eaton is the present pastor. The present value of the church edifice is estimated at $12,000; it will seat 1200. The society are about to erect a new church at a cost of about $60,000.

The German M. E. Church was organized in 1848 with seven members. The first pastor was Rev. John G. Grace, and the first house of worship was erected in 1850. The present membership is 310. The church will seat 250 and its value is $3,000. The society have purchased a building lot and are about to erect a new church that will accommodate about 700.

St. John's Roman Catholic Church was organized by Rev. Charles Smith, with twenty members. The first house of worship was erected in 1830; the present house in 1839. The original church cost $2,000; the present one is valued at $25,000. It will seat 2,000 persons. Rev. M. E. Clark is the present pastor.

The First Presbyterian Church was organized previous to 1769, though the precise time cannot now be determined. A new church edifice was commenced this year, and was not completed in 1771, though it had a tower and bell. Rev. Alexander Miller was one of the early pastors, serving the Church at various times from 1771 to 1787, though how long he continued each time is not known. A new church edifice was commenced in 1809. December 6, 1832, Rev. J. Trumbull Backus was ordained and installed pastor, and has continued in that capacity to the present time. The church edifice was enlarged in 1834, and again in 1859, giving it a seating capacity of about 1500. The present membership is about 400.

East Avenue Presbyterian Church, an offshoot of this, was organized with seventeen members, and a house of worship erected in 1867. It will seat 400 and cost $4,000. The first pastor was Rev. George Alexander, the present incumbent of the office. The present membership is 60.

The Second Reformed Church was organized in 1852 by Rev. J. G. Duryea, with 18 members. Their house of worship was erected in 1854 at a cost of $22,000. It will seat 940, and its present value is $35,000. The present membership is 112; the present pastor is Rev. Wm. A. Phraner.

Christ's Church (Epis.) was organized in 1867 by Rev. Dr. Payne, and a house of worship erected the same year. It is valued at $6,000 and will seat 200. The first pastor was Rev. F. C. Wainwright. The present membership is 34. The Church is at present without a pastor.

The Protestant Dutch Reformed Church was organized in 1854, and a house of worship was erected the same year, at a cost of $3,000; it will seat 450. The present membership is 200. Rev. Wm. F. Swilk is the present pastor.

The Congregational Church was organized in 1859 with 24 members. A house of worship was erected in 1863 at a cost of $5,000. It will seat 300. The first pastor was Rev. Amos Dean; the present pastor is Rev. James G. Cordell. The present membership is 62. The society is in a flourishing condition, with an interesting Sabbath school, in which students of Union College render efficient service as officers and teachers.

St. Joseph's Church (R. C.) was organized in 1862 by Rev. P. Leopold, O. M. C., and consisted of 600 members. A house of worship was erected the same year at a cost of $2,500, and capable of seating 500. The present membership is 900. The present pastor is Rev. P. Maurus, O. S. B.

A Physiological View of Marriage.

The cheapest book ever published—containing nearly three hundred pages, and one hundred and thirty fine plates and engravings of the anatomy of the human organs in a state of health and disease, with a treatise on early errors, its deplorable consequences upon the mind and body, with the author's plan of treatment—the only rational and successful mode of cure, as shown by a report of cases treated. A truthful adviser to the married and those contemplating marriage, who entertain doubts of their physical condition. Sent free of postage to any address, on receipt of twenty-five cents in stamps or postal currency, by addressing

DR. LA CROIX,

This Company owns and controls the entire Water Power of the Mohawk River at COHOES, and has constructed one of the finest Dams and Gate Houses in the country to divert the water of the river to their Canals, of which they have a series, so as to use the water under six different Falls, having an aggregate head and fall of one hundred and twenty feet.

The Company lease the water power with the lot, at the rate of about TWENTY DOLLARS per annum for a HORSE POWER. The power costs less than one-third of the cost of steam power, and is always ready and reliable.

Only about one-fourth of the available power is at present used, thus affording a large amount of power still available for manufacturing purposes.

Cohoes being centrally located, with easy facility for Railroad, Canal and River transportation to market, makes it one of the most desirable points for manufacturing in the United States.

TO LADIES.

MRS. EMMA BURLEIGH, M. D.,

From a long practice and intimate acquaintance with the diseases and peculiarities of her sex, believes that she can, in almost any case, relieve the suffering and restore health. All maladies of the UTERUS, (Prolapsus, Leucorrhœa, Ulceration, &c.) yield readily to Chromo Thermal Remedies. Entire Prolapsus has been cured in three weeks, and in an aged subject. Leucorrhœa, the general and insidious destroyer of women's strength and beauty, is invariably overcome by our treatment. In all diseases of woman, from whatever cause and the longest standing, we have the most marked success.

There is so much connected with this subject of woman's health, that all women should consult a physician, herself a woman and conversant with all the improvements and discoveries of science. The preservation of woman's beauty should be an object of scientific care, and is one of which American women are very ignorant. Mrs. BURLEIGH, while in Europe, made herself familiar with the habits and customs of distinguished women in France and elsewhere.

Mrs. BURLEIGH removes all obstructions in the Monthly Courses at one interview. An elegant and strictly private home for those desiring Board and Nursing. Ladies attended in confinement or provided with medical care and nursing in Mrs. B.'s house.

Painful Menstruation is relieved in all cases. Catarrh, so often pronounced incurable, and Bronchitis, Spinal Diseases and Neuralgia, are entirely overcome by Chromo Thermal treatment after years of ineffectual trial of the ordinary practice. Ladies suffer no pain in severe labors under our care. Mrs. Burleigh spent four years in France in the study of Midwifery, and the various modes of treating female diseases, in which the French are so superior.

Mrs. BURLEIGH can be consulted by letter, but all letters must contain one dollar to insure attention. Address, Dr. Emma Burleigh, 62 Howard Street, Albany, N. Y.

Opinion of the Press.—Mrs. BURLEIGH is a lady of the finest intellectual powers and very uncommon literary attainments, and, as she has had very great advantages in the study and practice of medicine, both in this country and Europe, we cannot doubt that she is a skillful physician. She is one of the most accomplished of the daughters of Virginia.—[Editor Louisville Journal.]

IS IT HONEST?

From the Church Union.

Manufacturers of Shuttle or Lock-Stitch Sewing Machines, who make this class of machines only, would have the public believe that the shuttle-stitch alone can or ought to be used in any of the various industries in which the Sewing Machine is employed. Let us examine with how much reason, truth or honesty, they seek to force this conviction, and what methods they employ.

They claim that the shuttle-stitch is "alike on both sides" of the material.

It is true that the shuttle-stitch can be made "alike on both sides" of thick cloth or leather by expert operators; but that this stitch forms a perfect seam "alike on both sides" of thin material is not true, as every Sewing Machine operator knows.

They claim "economy of thread" for the shuttle-stitch.

It is true that the quantity of thread contained in a given length of seam is less than is contained in the same length of seam sewed with the Grover & Baker stitch; but it is also true that from four to six inches of thread is wasted at each end of every shuttle-stitch seam, short or long, in order to secure the ends, and an equal or greater quantity of thread is wasted at the end of each bobbin. It is also true that a large amount of time is wasted in fastening the ends of seams by hand, in re-winding the thread on little bobbins every half hour, and in re-adjusting the machine and work after every interruption.

They claim that the shuttle-stitch will not "rip or ravel."

It is true that it is difficult to remove a shuttle-stitch seam, although it is very desirable sometimes to do so, but it is equally true that the shuttle-stitch will rip out in wear if the seam is cut or broken or the ends left unfastened.

Not satisfied with claiming for their machines all the merits they possess, as well as many which they do not possess, these manufacturers wilfully misrepresent the Grover & Baker stitch (their great rival), and unblushingly publish false statements in regard to it and the machines making it.

They say that the Grover & Baker stitch wastes thread; that the seam is insecure and will ravel; and that the stitch is only fit for embroidering.

Now they know, and every one of the two hundred thousand users of the Grover & Baker stitch machines knows, that there is not any thread wasted in making the Grover & Baker stitch; that the thread used by this stitch enters into the material and no more is used than is necessary to make the seam strong and elastic; that the amount of thread thus used in ordinary seams is not more than is used and wasted by the shuttle-stitch—in short seams it is less. There is no time wasted in fastening ends of thread, nor in winding bobbins, in making the Grover & Baker stitch; nor in adjusting the machine and work after frequent and vexatious interruptions, as the threads are fed to the machine directly from the spools, and there is no necessity for once stopping the machine during the process of working up two spools of thread, of whatever size.

They know, and every one of the two hundred thousand users of the Grover & Baker stitch machines knows, that the Grover & Baker stitch WILL NOT RIP or ravel in wear, that the seam may be cut at every sixth stitch and still remain firm, but that if required, the seam or any part of it can be removed with facility.

They know, also, that the Grover & Baker stitch machine is capable of doing the largest range of family sewing, from the very finest to the coarsest; that the work it does is more elastic, more durable and more beautiful than work done by shuttle-stitch machines, as attested by the numerous prizes awarded for it at exhibitions and fairs throughout the civilized world, in competition with the work of the shuttle-stitch; and that the capacity of the Grover & Baker machine for executing the most beautiful embroidery is an ADDITIONAL QUALITY, and a branch of machine sewing in which it stands without a rival.

For many purposes the shuttle-stitch machines answer well, and for such purposes they are excellent machines. They are well adapted for manufacturing thick and heavy materials, not subjected to much stretching, and that do not require to be washed and ironed. This stitch, being inelastic, is not adapted for dress or cloak making, or family sewing. For these purposes, it is generally conceded that the Grover & Baker stitch is the best.

The still more extensive use of the Grover & Baker stitch machines for family sewing is especially desirable for the two following reasons: 1st, The articles manufactured by this stitch will wear longer than those made with the shuttle-stitch, as the seam outlasts the garments; and hence the use of the Grover & Baker stitch on articles that are to be washed and ironed will prove an incalculable saving to the country. 2d, The many difficulties and annoyances experienced by women, not expert operators, in adjusting the intricate machinery necessary to form the shuttle-stitch, have a tendency to weaken their faith in the general usefulness of Sewing Machines and discourage their employment in the household. The great simplicity of the Grover & Baker stitch machines especially fits them for use in families; while to the skilled operator they offer the widest field for the most elaborate ornamental and fancy work.

Parties interested in shuttle-stitch machines only, may be disposed to question the soundness of these views; but, if the public who desire to purchase Sewing Machines will use the proper means to ascertain for themselves, by actual test, which of the two stitches is best for their purpose, and not be misled by the statements of interested parties, and if that purpose is family sewing, they will not select the shuttle-stitch.

The Buckeye Mowing and Reaping Machine.—When the great U. S. Trial of Mowers and Reapers was held at Syracuse in 1857, this admirable machine, which had just been brought out, surprised every body by its novelty and many excellencies, and won the highest awards. At that time the valuable patents under which it was built were secured for several States by the enterprising firm which now continues its manufacture, Adriance, Platt & Co. At the second great trial of Mowers and Reapers, made by the N. Y. State Agricultural Society in 1866, the Buckeye again carried off the highest honors, showing that in the years intervening it had not gone backward in the race for superiority. Every new suggestion is thoroughly weighed, improvements only are adopted. The verdict of the people is nearly as unanimous as that of the learned and practical committees who made these awards, for its sales far exceed those of any other machine in the sections supplied by Adriance, Platt & Co. In fact they increase so fast, that the demand is almost always in excess of the supply. The Self-Raking Attachment on the Buckeye Machine has met with a success corresponding to that of the Mower, and has surpassed all others in the perfection of its operation. One great secret of the success of Adriance Platt & Co., as manufacturers, has been in the conscientious manner in which they have built their machines, and the great durability of the Buckeye machine has been largely due to the excellence of the material used and the mechanical perfection of the workmanship. See advertisement on Map.

The Reynolds Steel Tempering Works Reynolds, Barber & Co., Proprietors, at Auburn, are largely engaged in the manufacture of Reaper and Mower Knives, Plane Irons, Chisels &c. The process by which they temper steel is a peculiar one, and as patented by Mr. Reynolds, is the result of over forty years labor. This gentleman always worked on the plan that tempering steel was simply changing it from a fibrous to a granular state. He certainly has succeeded in producing a finer granulation (temper) than has ever before been produced. Messrs. Reynolds, Barber & Co. control the patents for these processes, and are applying them successfully in all their manufactures.—Their establishment is capable of turning out an immense amount of work, yet their orders are now, and have been for some months, accumulating far in advance of their present ability to supply; a circumstance which they will not long allow to be the case. We predict that the time is not far distant when all Mower and Reaper Factories and farmers will use their improved sections. See their advertisement on page 6.

Dodge & Lord, manufacturers of Melodeons and Reed Organs, at Ithaca, N. Y., were formerly connected with Syracuse manufactories. They have since moved their business where lumber is cheap, and expenses less than in the larger cities, like New York, Boston, Albany or Syracuse. The styles of their organs are particularly their own, possessing all modern improvements, and some unknown to other manufacturers. They have found market for their instruments in every county of the State, and in Northern Pennsylvania and New Jersey, and have an increasing trade with the West, in all of which places they are brought into successful competition with the first Eastern manufacturers. They are both practical men, and have secured workmen of long experience and tried abilities. Situated midway between the Erie and N. Y. C. Railways, they can ship conveniently to all parts of the country. See card, page 474.

Dr. Kingsley, of Rome, justly celebrated for the many cures he has effected of that most distressing disease, Cancer, publishes a notice on page 1. He is prepared to treat all scrofulous diseases, and others of long standing, and assures his patients that they will not be charged a heavy bill and dismissed without receiving any benefit. Persons who cannot conveniently call upon him in person, can address him by letter, and will receive prompt attention. Dr. K. is a graduate, with an experience of over fourteen years in the practice of medicine. Let the afflicted give him a call.

Y., keeps a Livery and Sale Stable, and is prepared to board horses by the day or week and treat sick or lame horses according to the most approved method known to the profession. As a trainer of horses he is worthy of the patronage of the community. His card appears on page 356. Give him a call.

J. M. Crapser, manufacturer of the Patent Folding Spring Bed Lounges, Nos. 417, 419 and 421 Broadway, Albany, N. Y., advertises on page 104. This is one of the most convenient, comfortable and economical articles of furniture ever invented. It is a nice Lounging during the day and is readily converted into a comfortable Spring Bed at night. We think no one who examines it will fail to be favorably impressed. Mr. Crapser keeps also a great variety of other styles of Lounges and Mattresses of all kinds.

RICE'S GENUINE GARDEN SEEDS,

Grown by JEROME B. RICE, at the

CAMBRIDGE VALLEY SEED GARDENS,

Cambridge, Washington County, N. Y.

To all who have occasion to purchase Seeds:—It is manifest, and needs no argument to make patent the simple truth, that from good seed only can good vegetables be obtained—Figs do not grow on Thistles—and yet, strange and inconsistent as it may seem, we see those who exhibit sound sense in most affairs of life, purchasing seeds from questionable sources, and congratulating themselves (for the moment) on having saved a penny. All not already habitual purchasers of RICE'S SEEDS, are invited to make a trial of these, grown and prepared by me, feeling confident that their efforts (with proper care and management) will be amply rewarded. Jerome B. Rice.

Walter A. Wood's Reaping and Mowing Machines, advertised inside first cover, have been before the country for several years. These machines have been brought to a great degree of perfection, and the immense sales have compelled the manufacturers to enlarge their works from time to time, until they have become the largest in the world. The demand for this and foreign countries is constantly increasing, and the Medals and First Premiums that have been awarded these Machines in England, France and America, far surpasses those received by any other machine. Over 120,000 of them have already been sold. They are manufactured at Hoosick Falls, N. Y., by the Walter A. Wood Mowing and Reaping Machine Company. Their manufactory was destroyed by fire in March 1870, and before the remains were cold, the plan for a new building was arranged, and in less than two weeks, work was commenced in the new building. The facilities for manufacturing are such that one hundred machines can be made daily.

C. S. Sill, dealer in Cloaks, Shawls, &c., 10 and 12 second story, Broadway, N. Y., advertises on page 14. There has probably never been a time since our mother Eve first made a garment of fig leaves, that the ladies have paid so much attention to dress as at the present time. Say what we may about the folly of extravagant display, no one can help admiring the taste displayed in the beautiful dresses of the present day. It is vain to attempt to describe the endless variety of trimming, draping and looping of the dresses seen in the streets every day, and to estimate the cost would require a skillful mathematician. — But the great question with the ladies is, "where can I procure the most stylish suit?" The answer is found by calling at Sill', second story of 10 and 12 Broadway, where they will find some of the richest and most fashionable goods in the city. The display of shawls is such as to satisfy the most fastidious. To all of our patrons we say call at Sill' before purchasing, and see if we have misrepresented the case.
